7 Plead Innocent In Bugging

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Two former White House aides and five other men indicted in the break-in of Democratic national headquarters pleaded innocent today to the charges.

The former White House aides are G. Gordon Liddy, 42, who also was formerly financial counsel for the Committee to Re-elect the President, and Howard E. Hunt, 54, who likewise was formerly connected with the re-election committee.

Lawyers for Liddy and Hunt asked a federal judge, at their arraignment, to release both men on their own recognizance, but the government objected.

Chief Judge John J. Sirrica recessed the hearing until later in the day so that all seven men accused in the incident could be interviewed by bail officials.

The other five men indicted last Friday by a federal grand jury in the alleged bugging of the Democratic offices were arrested in the headquarters by police early on the morning of June 17.

All seven men were indicted on charges of conspiring to steal documents and to bug the Democratic offices.

The defendants along with Liddy and Hunt are: Bernard L. Barker, a Miami real estate man; James W. McCord, Jr., a former security chief for the Nixon re-election committee; Eugenio R. Martinez, an employe of Barker; Crank A. Sturgis, an associate of Barker's, and Virgilio R. Gonzalez, a Miami locksmith.

Sirrica, in a brief order, announced that he would strictly enforce U.S. District Court rules involving a widely publicized or sensational case.

They require that the court may issue special orders governing extrajudicial statements by anyone involved in the case and seating in the courtroom of reporters, plus anything else the court deems appropriate.

Liddy, Hunt and the five others all pleaded "not guilty" when the charges were formally read against them.

The prosecutor attorney, Earl Silbert, did not ask for any change in bond of up to $50,000 set previously for the five other men.

Hunt was first to arrive at the courtroom and said aloud to an attorney, "I've never even been in a traffic court before."

"I've never appeared in court before," Hunt repeated to a girl sitting beside him. Hunt was represented by William O. Bittman, who in the 1950s was the chief government prosecutor against former teamsters' President James R. Hoffa. Bittman now is in private practice.

Bittman told the court: "Even in the Bobby Baker case, which was almost as notorious as this, he was released on his own recognizance with no restrictions." This was a reference to Robert G. Baker, former secretary to Senate Democrats, who was the object of an influence-selling inquiry. The government asked that Hunt and Liddy each be held on $10,000 bond and be required to make personal appearances to bond officers twice a week and to telephone them daily.

Silbert said Hunt had traveled to New York and California under an assumed name when the FBI tried to question him in the case. He said Hunt moved about extensively during 21 years with the CIA, was

Railroad Right-Of-Way Use Denied By Council

By JAY GOODWIN

Despite appeals by Supervisor Michael Wornum, the Mill Valley City Council last night remained opposed to future use of Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way for rapid transit use. (Other Mill Valley City Council storeis, page 3.)

In a companion measure, the council agreed to send a letter to the federal government stating its opposition.

The council was asked by Wornum — who also serves as a Golden Gate Bridge District director — to endorse or remain neutral toward an application by the bridge district for federal funds to buy the right-of-way.

Under a new federal grant program, the federal government can lend about $1 million to the bridge district to purchase the right-of-way. Wornum added that if within 10 years the district decides to make use of the 40-foot-wide strip of land for rapid transit, the federal government probably would grant the bridge district money to pay off the origina loan.

If, on the other hand, the bridge district decides against using the right-of-way, the bridge district could sell it and pay back the federal government's $1 million loan with the proceeds.

According to Wornum, the right-of-way — which runs through East Mill Valley past the new Mill Valley Middle School — may revert to its previous owners if the bridge district doesn't acquire it soon. He said the right-of-way should be preserved to keep open bridge district options for future transit planning.

Wornum described a somewhat contradictory role he plays while trying to shepherd through the federal loan application.

He said he was trying to convince the Mill Valley City Council that he didn't expect the right-of-way ever to be used for mass transit, while in dealing with the federal government he takes the opposite position, stressing the likelihood that the right-of-way would be utilized.

If the bridge district bought the right-of-way, Wornum said, he envisioned a bicycle, pedestrian or horse path in the near future.

He did not believe buses running up and down the right-of-way would be "traumatic" for children at the middle school.

Councilman Robert E. Capron concluded that, on balance, the possible damage to East Mill Valley that a rapid transit system could cause outweighed the short-range benefits of a bike path.

He stressed he wasn't opposed to rapid transit in Marin County, but believed the right-of-way was in the wrong place for such a plan.

Mayor Jean S. Barnard said firmly and without reservation that she favored mass transit anywhere in Marin County and would do nothing to stand in its way.

"I'm four-square for mass transit and it's time we realized we cannot always say 'put it somewhere else'." she said.

Boessenecker opposed rapid transit because of its effect on the growth of the county.

"I think the worst thing you could do is put rail rapid transit in here" he said. "If that goes in, the population growth will blow your mind out."

Burton asked why the council knew so little about reversionary rights that affect the future of the right-of-way. He asked that the council be supplied with accurate information of the status of the property involved.

After a representative from the Mill Valley School District board and planning commissioner Ivan S. Poutiatine expressed opposition to the use of the right-of-way for transit, the council voted 4-1 against such use.

Mrs. Barnard dissented, then grimaced as the council passed another resolution instructing the city manager to forward the council's opposition to the appropriate federal agency.

Corte Madera Housing Plan Junked

Corte Madera's housing element — called by resident Byron White "the most bitterly disputed item before any town council in a long time" — was rejected last night by the Corte Madera Town Council. (Other Corte Madera council stories, page17.)

Developed by a citizens committee over more than a year's time and subject to several public hearings, the controversial housing element for inclusion in the town's general plan was approved by the Corte Madera Planning Commission in March this year.

The most disputed item, recommendation of 0 per cent low and moderate income housing, drew standing-room-only crowds for public hearings, but the whole matter had lain in abeyance since then.

Mayor Holmes S. Norville and Councilmen Harold B. Wagstaff and Robert J. Flahive voted to reject the housing element in its present form and sent it to the town's planning consultants, Sedway and Cooke, to use as reference in their general plan overhaul.

Councilman Herber C. Leney dissented, saying the report should not be denied and that it should include some of the citizen input which will result from the Town Meeting scheduled Sept. 30 at Redwood High School.

Several audience members voiced concern that the housicg element would be buried in the consultants' general plan recommendations.

Robert Holmes of 118 Westward Drive, representing East Corte Madera Hilldwellers Association, said: "In the last five or six months it's been a very hot item: I don't think the public will take very well to the idea it's suddenly going to be closed off from them."

White told the council, "You promised we could take it apart," and Philip O. Sasso, vice president of Mariner Cove Improvement Association said he was concerned it would "get lost in the maze of the general plan."

Wagstaff said there was no reason the housing element couldn't be worked on in the meantime; the council had the power to appoint a new housing element committee and to hear the input from the Town Meeting.

"It's obvious it needs to be revised and rehashed," commented Flahive, making the successful motion that the report in its present form be rejected and referred to the planning consultants.

"Had the people known it was to be closed down," complained Leney, dissenting, "they would have been here in equal numbers, and I'd like to commend the people who worked on the housing element."

Booby-Trapped Mail Kills Israeli Envoy In London

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Middle East violence spread today to London where a booby-trapped envelope exploded in the Israeli Embassy, killing one embassy official and wounding another. In the Middle East itself relations between Lebanon and the guerrillas living in the southern part of the country were reported reaching a crucial stage.

In Cairo, the mass circulation newspaper Al Akhbar today urged Arabs to adopt a tough new policy of striking at American interests in the Arab world because of "American-Israeli collusion" in recent attacks by Tel Aviv troops into Lebanon.

An embassy spokesman in London said Dr. Ami Shachori, the embassy's agricultural attache, was killed when a bulky envelope exploded as he was opening it. Shachori was pronounced dead on arrival at St. George's Hospital. Another embassy staff member, Theodore Kaddar, named as Shachori's successor, was injured in the blast.

Political sources in Beirut said Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad arrived today for talks with Lebanon's Prime Minister Saeb Salam aimed at patching up "explosive" differences between Lebanese authorities and the Pa However, Salam denied tonight there was any "crisis." He said. "We are determined to keep our relations with our Palestinian brothers in the sphere of mutual understanding."

The Middle East News Agency (MENA) in a report from Cairo said relations between the Lebanese and the guerrillas are passing through a delicate stage but are not expected to lead to confrontation.

MENA said the Palestinian resistance has rejected demands submitted to it by the Lebanese Army, but did not mention what the demands were. The agency said Salam explained during a meeting Sunday night with Al Fatah leader Yasser Arafat and other Palestinian officials that the Army instructions were simply implementations of agreements the two sides made in 1969 and not an "ultimatum" as claimed by guerrilla radios. The agency said the meeting was successful.

Manzanita Site Still Is Occupied

The Marin City Learning Center continued to occupy the Manzanita School in Marin City today in defiance of a court order that the private school vacate the building, owned by the Sausalito School District.

The parents, who started the alternative school last year because they were dissatisfied with the education their children were receiving in Sausalito schools, said today they intend to remain in the school and fight further moves to evict them.

Sausalito school officials, meanwhile, have not decided what action they will take now to force the learning center out of the school which the district closed last September when it decided to locate all its students in two Sausalito schools.

Richard V. Godino, attorney for the district, said he may initiate contempt of court proceedings against the learning center today. But he added there is no immediate plan to have the center people forcibly evicted or arrested "although there's no guarantee it won't come to that eventually.

"It's certainly not the intent of the school district to get into that kind of hassle. We don't want to stop the learning center students from continuing their education, but we have to find some way to empty the building."

Yesterday Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson granted the district a temporary restraining order preventing the parents from using Manzanita and set Oct. 3 as the date for a hearing for the learning center to show cause why the order should not become permanent.

The district filed suit yester-

Patrick's Sta-Power Company Hit By Registration Ruling

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A San Rafael-based company belonging to millionaire William Penn Patrick's empire has been told it cannot sell new gas oil distributorships unless it registers with the state.

The ruling, issued last week against Sta-Power Industries by hearing officer Harold Furst, means that prospective distributors for the firm must be provided with financial information on job risks and advantages.

Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., attorney for Sta-Power, told the Independent-Journal today the company would take the issue to a superior court in either San Francisco or Marin.

Furst's ruling, issued after four days of hearings here, is effective Oct. 6. Goldstein said a court stay would be sought.

Like four other firms in the Patrick conglomerate of some 60 companies, Sta-Power, a five-year-old operation, offers distributorships under the so-called pyramid marketing plan. In return for an investment sum, recruits are entitled to product inventory and given the right to go out and bring others into the program.

Sta-Power was ordered by the state Department of Corporations last year to refrain from sale of further distributorships unless the company registered the transactions with the state. The department of corporations claimed the agreements were subject to the state's newly enacted franchise investment law.

Sta-Power asked for a hearing on the issue, resulting in Furst's decision last week.

Goldstein said Sta-Power doesn't look upon registration as impairing its operations, but it does assert that agreements with distributors aren't franchises. Its distributors, the company argues, are independ-

Nixon Election HQ Set Afire

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Vandals set fire to the building housing Nixon re-election headquarters here Monday, but one of them was trapped by the flames and died, fire officials reported.

The dead man was not identified.

Firemen said a group apparently broke into the Star Distributing Co. through a rear door, and then smashed through a panel wall separating its offices from those of the Nixon campaign group.

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The Sausalito City Council last night split sharply over what to do about the Golden Gate Bridge District's plan for a $1.7 million downtown ferry terminal.

The plan was sent to the city officials by the district almost five months ago for their reaction.

Mayor Robin Sweeny said the bridge district was pushing for council action on the plan by November so construction can begin early next year. The council, however, after more than two hours of debate, instead ordered a third "study session" on the plan at 8 p.m. on Oct. 2.

Councilmen Stephen A. Fraser and Evert H. Heynneman pushed hard for endorsement of the plan with tough conditions, but Mrs. Sweeny and Councilman Earl F. Dunphy insisted more information was needed from the city's staff on alternatives to the plan. Councilman Sally Stanford was absent.

City Mgr. Albert R. St. Cyr said the three choices were to ask the district to keep the present service instead of building a terminal to accommodate the new boats to be added to the service in mid-1974, approve the district's plan, or insist that the district build its terminal in North Sausalito and keep the downtown ferry pier as a whistle stop.

The strongest criticism of the proposed downtown terminal came from the Sausalito Citizens Council. No one in the audience of nine persosn defended the plan. No one was present from the bridge district.

Considerable discussion was devotej to everyone's assumption that the district's plan called for elimination of Parking Lot No. 1, which last fiscal year plunked some $160,000 in fees into city coffers.

The parking lot, however, would be eliminated only if replaced with a $2.1 million underground lot for 305 cars. Rare unanimity came over the underground lot; all agreed they did not like the idea. All new parking should be built in North Sausalito, the councilmen said.

In that case, according to the district plan, parking in Lot No. 1 would be cut from 180 to 110 cars, but not eliminated.

The plan also calls for a new parking lot for 320 cars in North Sausalito south of the Big G Supermarket as part of a $1.9 million North Sausalito ferry terminal. The district's consultant for the terminals, Roland B. Mays of Sausalito, has suggested that only the parking lot of the North Sausalito terminal be built now, Mrs. Sweeny said.

(Mays and bridge officials detailed the plan before the council on Saturday.)

The downtown terminal would be on the same side of the sandspit as the old ferry Berkeley and the Sausalito Yacht Club, both of which

Russia To Equip Iraq With Arms

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union will strengthen Iraq's defense capacity, a joint communique said Tuesday.

The communique issued at the end of a six day official visit by Iraqi President Ahmen Hassan al-Bakr, said the two countries "agreed upon concrete measures to further strengthen the defensive capacity of the Iraqi Republic with the aim of enhancing combat readiness of its armed forces."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Election Date Set

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Willy Brandt has ended months of speculation by naming Nov. 19 for West Germany's first premature parliamentary election.

Technically President Gustav Heinemann still has the responsibility for naming the election date. But political sources expected him to follow the chancellor's recommendation.

For several weeks the Bonn press had been speculating on Dec. 3 as the most likely date. This was on the basis of delays required by the constitution from the date the chancellor engineers his own defeat in a confidence vote.

But Brandt told the news conference he will announce the confidence vote Wednesday, during the first session of the Bundestag, parliament's lower house, following a summer recess that started in mid-June.

Rescue Plane Found

GRAND LAKE, Colo. (UPI) — A hunter searching for game in the Colorado Rockies stumbled across the wreckage of a Civil Air Patrol plane which vanished more than 13 years ago on a search and rescue mission over the mountains, officials said Monday.

The body of the pilot, Fred J. Lavine, was found nearby.

The discovery ended a mystery that began July 24, 1959, when the CAP pilot took off with fellow searchers to hunt for a missing plane. He was never heard from again.

Grand County Sheriff L. Ray Grusing, who took part in a search for Lavine 13 years ago while still a high school student, said R.K. Barrett of Grand Junction, Colo., found the wreckage and body in thick underbrush nine miles northwest of Grand Lake Saturday.

Missiles Withdrawn

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has withdrawn from Egypt not only its own advanced secret weapons but also most of the Surface-to-Air SAM3 anti-aircraft missiles installed against American-made Israeli Phantom jets, diplomatic sources said today.

The disclosure came as Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Hassan Zayyat, here on an official visit, was seeking British arms, including Rapier Surface-to-air missiles, to make up for the loss of at least some of the Soviet weaponry.

Social Security Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., introduced a bill today to increase the amount of money a Social Security pensioner could make without losing any benefits.

Besides raising from $1,680 to $3,000 the maximum that could be earned from outside sources, Mansfield said the bill would also "reduce the amount by which a person would be penalized" for earning more than that.

Guerrilla Warning

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Ulster's urban guerrillas warned British troops today to evacuate Belfast's biggest hospital by midnight or be shot on sight. The army said it would stay put, and was ready.

A statement from the Second Belfast Battalion of the extremist Provisional Wing of the illegal Irish Republican Army (IRA) set the 1,200-bed Royal Victoria Hospital, Belfast's largest, as the target for tonight.

A spokesman for the hospital staff, which treats both civilian and military casualties of the violence which has taken 567 lives in three years, said the hospital's job was medical, not political, and would go on.

Teachers Strike

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Teachers in the District of Columbia, angry over personnel cuts and a pay raise bill stalled in Congress, went on strike today in defiance of a court order.

All but five of the schools serving 140,000 students in the nation's capital were being picketed, a spokesman for the D.C. Teachers union, a chapter of the American Federation of Teachers, said.

Products Recalled

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Nu Vita, a food manufacturer and distributor here said Monday it is voluntarily recalling on a nationwide basis some of its products that may carry harmful bacteria.

A spokesman of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in Seattle said that an analysis of the products, mainly elbow macaroni and spaghetti packed in cellophane, is being made to determine if there is salmonella bacteria in them. Salmonella can cause food poisoning, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and cramps.

Asians To Britain

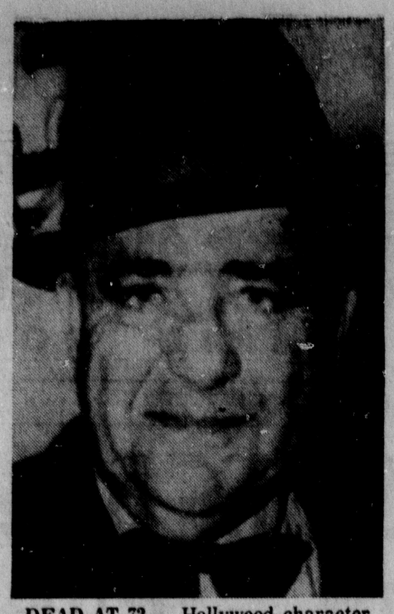
LONDON (UPI) — British resettlement officials today tackled a job they have been rehearsing for weeks — finding homes and work for 50,000 Asians, many of them penniless, flying daily into Britain after expulsion from Uganda.

Communities, individuals and schools began coming forward with offers to take care of the arrivals. The first planeload, 193 Asians airlifted from their East African homeland, arrived at Stansted Airport outside London yesterday.

Confederation Proposed

TOKYO (UPI) — Premier Kim Il-sung of North Korea has proposed a "confederation" of South and North Korea that will keep their political systems intact while they work toward reunification.

Kim made the proposal in an interview with reporters of Japan's Mainichi Daily News Sunday and published today.



DEAD AT 72 — Hollywood character actor Akim Tamiroff, who came to the U.S. with a Russian drama troupe in 1923 and decided to stay, died Sunday in Palm Springs. He toured with Al Jolson and appeared in the films, "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and "Union Pacific." he went into semiretirement in 1960. (UPI Telephoto)

Tanzanians Digging In Near Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)— An invasion force from Tanzania dug into positions just inside the Ugandan border today after being driven back by Ugandan infantry, tanks and planes, military officials said.

Dar Es Salaam, the Tanzanian government announced Ugandan warplanes bombed the Tanzanian border area town of Bukoba today for the second successive day. The government announcement said the bombers struck at about 8 a.m. but gave no further details.

(Bukoba, a town of 30,000 on the shore of Lake Victoria, lies about 20 miles south of the border with Uganda.

President Idi Amin said the 1,500-man force included Tanzanian troops and Uganda exiles bent on restoring former President Milton Obote to power. Obote took asylum in neighboring Tanzania last year after Amin toppled him in a military coup.

Uganda Radio quoted Amin as saying Britain and Tanzania wanted to restore Obote to power and halt Amin's expulsion of Uganda Asians.

In Dar Es Salaam, President Julius Nyerere moved about 1,000 Tanzanian troops up to the Ugandan border with strict orders not to provoke incidents or cross into Uganda.

Amin told a meeting of African diplomats Monday evening that 50 Tanzanians had been captured and more than 200 killed. He quoted three captives—one allegedly a cousin of Obote—as saying the guerrillas expected to reinstate Obote and expected British troop support.

FBI's Grapp Facing Yet Another Demotion

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The former chief of the FBI office here, already demoted once in a moustache conflict, faces another demotion, suspension and official censure, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times said it pad learned that Wesley G. Grapp faces the severest punishment possible short of outright dismissl for violating bureau rules by installing wiretaps and bugs in his own offices.

The newspaper said the action against Grapp was ordered by Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray.

Grapp, who has been involved in a running dispute with Gray, was not available for comment.

His whereabouts were not known. He was recently demoted from head of the Los Angeles FBI office to agent in charge of the much smaller El Paso, Tex., office, but has not yet reported for duty there.

Gray sent Grapp a letter Friday in which the acting director said Grapp would be stripped of his rank as a local office chief, at $36,000 a year, and reduced to an ordinary special agent, at a maximum of $24,362 a year, sent to the Minneapolis bureau, and suspended for 30 days of censure, the Times said.

Grapp has 10 days to respond to the letter, and can appeal the punishment.

Grapp, who reportedly was on close terms with the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, clashed with Gray over the relaxation of the bureau's strict dress code. Gray, on a visit to the Los Angeles office, personally told agents they could grow moustaches, wear their hair a bit longer, and wear colored shirts instead of the white ones that were regardedas mandatory under Hoover.

When some of the agents began to grow moustaches, the FBI said, Grapp ordered them to shave, saying he was charge of the office, not Gray.

Grapp was demoted to head of the El Paso office for the manner in which he refused to carry out a policy change order, Gray said.

The latest proposed punishment is for another offense. The FBI said an inspection team sent from Washington discovered that Grapp had equipped the office with electronic devices to record telephone conversations, and discussion in the office, "in violation of FBI policy and regulations."

Spending Limit Necessary For Economy, Says Adviser

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said today efforts to halt inflation and cut unemployment will fail unless Congress adheres to a proposed $250 billion limit on federal spending this fiscal year.

If spending is held down, Herbert Stein told the House Ways and Means Committee, unemployment can be reduced to the neighborhood of 5 per cent by the end of the year. It now is estimated at 5.6 per cent. He said a spending limit also would lead to "progress on the inflation front."

Stein said federal, state and local governments together now spend about $400 billion a year, which he said averages out to $100 per family per week.

"We think this share is very large," Stein said. "We believe it should certainly not increase, certainly not until or unless governments show themselves better able to use our incomes than they have shown to date.

"But the share will increase unless we draw the line and stick to it. The $250 billion spending ceiling would be an important step toward drawing the line."

Democrats generally agree with Nixon that there should be a ceiling on federal spending, but they want the administration to say which programs should be cut to stay within the proposed limit. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Budget Director Caspar Weinberger told the committee Monday the ceiling was necessary to combat inflation.

The administration has asked that the ceiling be included in their request for a $15 billion increase in the temporary $450 billion limit on the national debt. The temporary debt limit will expire Oct. 31 without Congressional action to extend or increase it.

Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., said he had long supported a spending ceiling, but Rep. James Burke, D-Mass., third ranking Democrat on the panel, called the administration proposal "a joke, a hoax and a fraud."

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — Gale Ott knelt before the eternal flame at President John F. Kennedy's gravesite Monday and stabbed himself to death, U.S. Park Police reported.

Berkeley Man Guilty Of Car Theft Charge

A Marin jury has convicted Gregory Carl Brown, 20, of Berkeley of two counts of car theft, but cleared him of a charge of grand theft.

Brown was arrested in the midwest in February on a warrant charging him taking a car from Dexter Toyota of San Rafael on the pretext of test driving it and never returning it. When arrested, he was driving a Pontiac, also stolen in Marin.

Sentencing was set for Oct. 27.

Japan Riot Against U.S. Army Stopped

TOKYO (UPI)—Japanese riot police battled hundreds of leftist demonstrators south of Tokyo todayto successfully open a path for 10 U.S. Army armored personnel carriers being taken to a Yokohama pier for shipment.

About 5,000 protesters tried to block the shipment, which they said was bound for the war in Vietnam. U.S. officials did not say where the vehicles were headed.

The police evicted an estimated 1,500 of the demonstrators from in front of the U.S. Army supply depot at Sagamihara and escorted the convoy of heavy-duty trucks carrying the canvas-wrapped vehicles to the U.S. military's north pier. They reported no major incidents along the 19-mile route after they got by the demonstrators.

Wife Of POW: Bombing Raids Have To Stop

TOKYO (UPI) — Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency (VNA) Monday quoted the wife of a U.S. pilot shot down while bombing North Vietnam as saying the raids "have got to stop" and said the mother of another flier called the bombing "so unnecessary."

The VNA report said Mrs. Olga Charles, wife of Navy Lt. Norris Alphonzo Charles of San Diego, and Mrs. Minnie Lee Gartley, mother of Lt. .j.g.) Markham L. Gartley of Dunedin, Fla., toured bomb-damaged areas within the Hanoi city limits Monday and witnessed "extensive damage done by the American bombing."

VNA said the women were scheduled for more sightseeing in the North Vietnamese capital today. Charles, Gartley and Maj. Edward Elias of Valdosta, Ga., all prisoners of war, were released Sunday in a downtown Hanoi ceremony. They are expected to leave for home Saturday.

VNA, monitored in Tokyo, said the American women had visited the Bach Mai Hospital, largest in North Vietnam, and "learned that the doctors and medical personnel had performed surgical operations on 29 victims of a U.S. bombing just the previous night."

The dispatch said the women were shown the Trung Dinh residential quarters where "four U.S. 2,000 pound-bombs on June 27 destroyed eight blocks of houses and killed or wounded 44 persons, mostly women and children."

HOUSTON (UPI) — The labor caucus of the Texas Democratic convention Monday condemned former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally as a "traitor" to the party and the working man.

Communists Launch Offensive On S. Vietnam Central Coast

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops Monday launched heavy attacks on the Central Coast against defenders of a district capital and nearby outposts in South Vietnam's least secure province, military sources said today.

Three American advisers with a government unit were wounded in one of the attacks, centered near the district capital of Bong Son in Binh Dinh Province 290 miles north of Saigon, the U.S. command said. Binh Dinh has long been rated by U.S. pacification experts as the country's most dissident.

The command also disclosed that two U.S. Navy airmen were missing in the crash of their A6 Intruder jet northeast of Hanoi Sunday only hours before the North Vietnamese government released three American prisoners of war in a ceremony in the capital. Spokesmen said the exact location of the crash and its cause were not known.

Air Force spokesmen officially announced that Capt. Charles D. Debellevue, 27, of Lafayette, La., was credited with bringing down his sixth North Vietnamese MIG jet fighter—giving him more MIG kills than any other American in the Vietnam War.

In air action, the command reported 230 U.S. fighter-bomber strikes Monday over North Vietnam and said 15 B52s bombed Communist positions around Dong Hoi just north of the Demilitarized Zone. Spokesmen said the fighter-bombers knocked out 12 bridges, 24 warehouses, 18 trucks and 16 small supply ships. A total of 57 B52s hit targets in North and South Vietnam Monday and today, officials said.

About 2,000 government paratroopers today began pushing north of Quang Tri City along the Thach Han River and almost immediately met heavy Communist mortar, artillery and recoilless rifle fire, UPI correspondent Barney Seibert reported. The airborne troops were trying to push the North Vietnamese back into the Demilitarized Zone after recapturing the city's fortress Citadel Friday, ending 140 days of Communist occupation.

In an English language broadcast heard in Saigon today, Hanoi Radio insisted Quang Tri was still in North Vietnamese hands and that 24,000 "enemy troops" had been "wiped out" over the past 82 days.

Mill Valley Tackles Dog Problem

The Mill Valley City Council last night established a seven-man committee to come up with solutions to the city's dog problem. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 1)

The council acted after listening to John Gill, new Marin County Humane Society director, who was making his second consecutive appearance before the council.

Gill warmed the somewhat disgruntled audience by announcing that the humane society had decided to staff Mill Valley with a full-time animal control officer. In the past, the control officer only worked in Mill Valley part-time.

Gill also recommended the council sharply increase the impound fees charged owners of dogs that have been picked up by the humane society. He suggested the rates be raised to $10 for the first impound, $15 for the second and $25 for the third. The intention, he said, was to penalize those irresponsible dog owners who are causing all the problems.

Several councilmen offered a variety of different impound fee schedules, but Gill quickly urged them to adopt the same fees recently adopted by San Anselmo.

After some discussion, the council decided not to set a new fee schedule but to instruct the city attorney to draft an ordinance allowing the council to set new impound fees at a single meeting by council resolution.

Gill also suggested that a ceiling of three dogs per single household be established in Mill Valley. He said he thought such an ordinance should include a "grandfather clause" allowing owners of more than three dogs, at the time of the ordinance, to keep their extra pets.

Before long, the council began to ramble through a series of possible solutions to the city's dog troubles. Councilman Gerald J. Hood said Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker's wife, Joan, had an excellent suggestion.

Mrs. Boessenecker approached the microphone and recommended the creation of a dog committee that would thrash out the dog problems and present the council with a series of proposals.

After some disagreement over composition of the committee, the council agreed it should consist of a representative from the humane society; Mrs. Boessenecker; Francis Wolff, who put the public spotlight on the problem of wild dogs on Cascade Drive; Cherrie Mackey; Mayor Jean S. Barnard; a Mill Valley veterinarian, and a representative of the chamber of commerce.

RICHARDSON HIGHLANDS — A new name for a new development proposed by a Washington, D.C., developer for 36 acres along Donahue Street and Guy Circle in Marin City. The developers envision 284 garden apartments and 160 condominiums clustered around a pool, social hall and combination basketball/volleyball/paddleball court. The plan will be considered, along with four others, by the redevelopment agency on Oct. 10.

Performing Arts Sets Repertory

The Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts has announced its first full repertory season under the executive direction of James P. Funk.

"Oedipus Rex," conceived as a primitive fertility rite, will open Oct. 5, followed by Jean Cocteau's "The Infernal Machine," a comedy based on the Oedipus legend.

An original rock musical will debut Nov. 17.

In January, "Moonchildren," a whimsical look at the youth culture, and two plays by Israel Horowitz, "Acrobats," and "Line" will play in repertory with a chilling old mystery, "The Ghost Train."

Nightspot Use Draws Approval

Mill Valley's city council went over the application of the Sweetwater cocktail lounge with a fine-tooth comb last night, then unanimously approved the proposed nightspot on Throckmorton Avenue.

The lounge's application for a conditional use permit had been granted by the planning commission but was appealed to the council by a group of residents who believed the lounge would create too much noise or alter the character of Mill Valley.

The Sweetwater lounge, which will replace The Office at 153 Throckmorton Avenue, will present live entertainment along with its wine, beer, liquor and snacks.

Fred Martin, president of a group of local residents which has invested in the pub, said he had been assured that he didn't need a variance to the city's parking requirement.

He said that since Sweetwater's business represents a continuation of the use of the premises, he expected his lounge would continue as a nonconforming status.

After a moment of confusion, City Atty. Leland H. Jordan agreed that the new business constituted a continued use of the building and did not require any new variance.

After a few questions, the council unanimously quashed the appeal of the planning commission's original approval.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

APPRECIATION — Awarded a certificate of appreciation to Doris Bassett, who served on the city's architectural advisory committee for more than five years.

HOUSING AUTHORITY — Heard a report from the executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority, Wallace K. Sheppard, on the past year's activity. Sheppard praised Mill Valley as one of the most progressive cities in the housing field in Marin.

SCOTT VALLEY — Approved plans for an underground pipeline which will carry water from Scott Valley to Richardson Bay, presented by Charles Murphy from Flood Control District 3.

TOPICS — Decided to send a letter to Sacramento indicating Mill Valley intends to meet all deadlines to qualify for TOPICS street funds. The council also scheduled an Oct. 3 public hearing on the Miller Avenue master plan, phase one, and instructed staff to prepare a thorough study of all unresolved questions on the plan by Oct. 16.

Favorite Plan For Marin City Emerges

A real estate consultant has recommended that the Marin County Redevelopment Agency accept the offer of a Washington, D.C., developer to build garden apartments and condominiums in Marin City, labeling the firm's proposal as "precisely the development contemplated by the redevelopment plan."

The consultant, Douglas C. Myers, made his recommendation after reviewing proposals from five developers to build a variety of residential units on 36 acres of open land in Marin City.

Originally, Myers did not intend to single out any of the five proposals in his report to the redevelopment agency. But he reconsidered after reading the firm's offer to buy the land for more than $1.1 million and build 284 garden apartments and 160 condominiums on the property.

The homes will be market-rate units, rather than low-cost housing. Despite protests from some residents, the agency has set itself against additional low-cost housing in Marin City.

Myers recommended the agency accept the offer from Mid-Cities Developers, Inc., saying it proposed the highest price for the land, outstanding architecture and the most thorough affirmative action plan to help the area's minority residents.

Myers also reviewed, but was less impressed by, proposals from Subsidized Housing, Inc., of Beverly Hills; Inland Steel Corp. of Chicago; Barry Slatt Mortgage Co. of San Francisco and Larwin Corp. of Los Angeles.

The Mid-Cities proposal met every criteria established by the redevelopment agency for the contemplated development, Myers said. Its plan to provide opportunities in employment, investment and training for local residents was particularly thorough, he said.

In a 24-page statement of its affirmative action program, Mid-Cities promised (1) to hire local residents at almost every stage of construction and maintenance of the new development, (2) to encourage community participation in planning, construction and maintenance phases through the project area committee, (3) to pursue construction of nearby shopping areas and recreation areas to enhance the livability of Marin City, and (4) to assist local residents in establishing minority businesses.

All five proposals will be reviewed by the redevelopment agency on Oct. 10.

According to agency executive director Wallace K. Sheppard — who also was impressed with the Mid-Cities proposal — the agency will probably select the developer at its meeting that night.

Immigrant Held In Driving Case

After they arrested a San Rafael man on suspicion of drunken driving Saturday night it was discovered he was an illegal immigrant, reported Larkspur police yesterday.

Pedro Perez Perez, 38, of Apt. #1, 35 Valencia Street, San Rafael, was stopped after his car swerved violently at speeds up to 40 miles per hour on Magnolia Avenue, said police, and records disclosed he was an unregistered alien.

He was booked into Marin county jail on suspicion of drunken driving and held for U.S. Department of Immigration authorities for deportation, according to police.

Vintage Car's Radiator Taken

The entire radiator was stolen from a 1952 M.G.T.D. car parked outside the home of Nora Eileen Pedelaborde of 52 Piedmont Road, Larkspur, last Tuesday night, Larkspur police reported yesterday.

The vintage car is being restored by Mrs. Pedelaborde's husband, said police, and the radiator was intact the day before.

Sausalito Council Split Over Terminal

Fraser and Heynneman pushed unsuccessfully for approval of the plan on condition that the underground parking lot be elimiated, the city be given use of the North Sausalito parking lot for weekend tourists, the district share half the development and operation and maintenance costs of the park plaza at the downtown terminal, vehicle access to the North Sausalito lot be only via Gate 5 Road, and the district subsidize shuttle bus service between the lot and downtown.

The discussion, however, rarely touched on the five conditions. Instead it bogged down in Mrs. Sweeny's repeated pleas for "all kinds of study that we need to do" to plan the waterfront before deciding what to do about the ferry terminal. (The city has been studying the waterfront for decades, and had had numerous "master plans" drawn and adopted to guide such decisions along the waterfront.)

Mrs. Sweeny also asked for study of the effects of ferry wake on the shoreline and of the longer travel time on patronage if a North Sausalito terminal were built. (The bridge district's naval architect completed these publicized studies two years ago.)

Heynneman, commenting he was disturbed "that we still are not ready to decide," argued that under the bridge district's plan "much of our downtown area can be enhanced."

Fraser cautioned that if the district drops plans for its terminal because of city indecision, it will be five to 10 years "before we have another chance. We have nothing now; we have nothing to lose now except an ugly, unaesthetic mess."

Mrs. Sweeny, however, said the district "could ill afford to give us up," citing the profitable tourist traffic its ferry carries to Sausalito on weekends and holidays.

Strong opposition to the plan also came from Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt, who said only half of the ferry commuters come from Sausalito. When the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's station opens near the Ferry Building in San Francisco, he said, ferries will bring far greater hordes of tourists to Sausalito.

The president of the Sausalito Citizens Council, Alan Conner, warned that the plan "puts a very severe burden on downtown Sausalito." He said he was an enthusiastic ferryboat commuter, "but I love Sausalito a little bit more than the ferryboat."

Carl W. Spring, corresponding secretary of the citizens council, objected that the plan would "turn downtown into a bus terminal for the benefit of upcounty commuters." (The district will build a terminal in Larkspur for Central Marin ferry commuters.)

He denounced district officials as "long promisers and short deliverers," saying they were trying to "make a sucker out of Sausalito."

H. Thomas Rogers, chairman of the Sausalito Recreation Commission, suggested the existing service be continued without addition of a new terminal. "Let's say to them, 'leave the service as it is, or go away.' "

Mrs. Sweeny objected that "that kind of finality isn't necessary."

The other sharp criticism of the evening was aimed by Fraser at Supervisor Michael Wornum. He said Wornum had been "a miserable failure in the past year representing us on the bridge board," adding Wornum should have been present last night.

BUGS

fluent in Spanish and "has contacts with many people outside this country."

Bittman said Hunt had lost his job and so had his wife when a reporter called the Spanish embassy where she was employed about the case.

Peter L. Marulis, attorney for Liddy, made the same plea in a lengthy recitation of his career, most of it with the FBI. He noted that Liddy was the author of a movie, "Stay Alert and Stay Alive," which is still used by the FBI and police in training.

He said Liddy was appointed in 1969 as special assistant to the secretary of the treasury and worked on task forces on organized crime, drug abuse, and explosives control before being named counsel to the finance committee of the Committee to Re-elect the President. He also worked on the White House staff the attorney said.

Sirrica gave each side 15 days to file motions and 10 more days to file responses. He denied defense lawyers' request for more time, indicating the case probably would be tried promptly.

A George Washington University law professor has asked the court to appoint an impartial, unbiased prosecutor in the case.

John Banzhaf III criticized both the Democrats and the Republicans when he filed a 28-page application Monday. He said the Democrats should have filed the aplication themselves but "would rather have the issue than the special prosecutor."

At the White House this morning, President Nixon conferred with Republican congressional leaders and they said afterward that they did not believe the alleged bugging would be an issue in the presidential campaign as far as voters were concerned.

"The indictments are on the record and they clear the White House and any other of the responsible people on the Committee to Re-elect the President," Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott said.

Banzhaf also criticized the Justice Department, which has been handling the investigation, for demonstrating "the evil of the conflict of interest." He pointed out that Nixon's campaign manager, Clark MacGregor, last Friday announced that the Justice Department would publish a further report about the investigation.

"An announcement by a spokesman for those being investigated as to what the investigator will do strikingly demonstrates the dangers of the conflict of interest this application seeks to correct," Banzhaf said.

The law professor said former Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien has called repeatedly for appointment of a special investigator but has "refused to take the one step which might possibly lead to the appointment."

"It appears to me that Mr. O'Brien is contented in taking one approach in public and another in private," Banzhaf said.

U.S. District Judge Charles Richey has said he will rule by Wednesday on a motion by defendants to dismiss O'Brien's $1 million damage suit. He also will rule on a motion to add to the list of defendants former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, Nixon's chief fund raiser, and Hugh Sloan, a former official of the Committee to Re-elect the President.

They contended the defendants demonstrated the merits of the case by failing to challenge some of the claims made in the suit.

"This is one of the most hotly contested cases in the federal courts and it is inconceivable that anyone would conclude that the plaintiffs would concede any motion to dismiss," the Democratic attorneys wrote.

day asking that the center be restrained from using the school. The suit charged that the unauthorized use made it impossible for the district to use the building itself, or go ahead with plans to lease it to the Marin City Community Services District for use by various community groups in Marin City. The district also stated that continued use by the learning center might result in cancellation of fire insurance for the building.

After Judge Wilson ruled yesterday, Royce McLemore, learning center director, said the group would not resist the court order to leave and planned to move its materials and equipment out today. (The center occupied the vacant building about a month ago, cleaned it repaired it and readied it for classes which began last week with about 80 students in attendance.)

This morning the parents began moving desks and materials from the building as a deputy sheriff stood by to see that the evacuation was completed.

But the center people moved back into Manzanita School once the deputy left, and Mrs. McLemore said today she and other staff members are prepared to fight any move to physically eject them.

"The Sausalito School District is trying to do everything possible to stop the Marin City Learning Center from educating our children in our own community," Mrs. McLemore said. "But we're staying," she added. "We dont' have any other place to hold our classes."

Guilty Plea In Property Case

James Michael Booth, 29, of Woodacre pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of concealing stolen property and a second count of burglary was dismissed.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner accepted the plea, but set sentencing for Oct. 30 in the court of Judge Joseph G. Wilson, who negotiated the plea. Booth pleaded guilty on condition his violation be declared a misdemeanor when he is sentenced.

Booth was arrested May 24 by sheriff's deputies after William F. Wright of Linares Road, Forest Knolls, told them he had seen a rug stolen from his home in a pickup truck which he followed to Booth's residence.

BART Has Its First Failure

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Bay Area Rapid Transit District's new rail system had its first train failure Monday, causing a delay of 20 minutes.

Marin Center's Annual Meeting

One-Car Wreck Hurts Driver

Sharon Ann Clark, 38, of 299 San Carlos Way, Novato, suffered minor injuries in a single-car accident on Simmons Lane, north of Marion Avenue, last night and reportedly was trapped in her car.

Novato police said she was driving north when her car hit two wooden post barricades along a ditch at 11:25 p.m. Fire Chief Jack W. Kidder reported that firemen were called to "help free her from the vehicle."

Mrs. Clark was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut lip, bruised knee and a sprain.

Former Fireman Admits To Arson

A former volunteer fireman charged with setting fire to his former home in Bolinas Saturday was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday, then released without bail.

Judge Robert A. Smallman ordered Charles K. Post, 28, now of Sausalito, to return Oct. 2 for plea.

Post was arrested in Petaluma after an 80-mile-an-hour chase and admitted setting fire to the nineteenth century victorian building at 19 Brighton Avenue, according to Petaluma police and Marin sheriff's investigators.

He said he went to the $58,000 home at 4:30 a.m., threw gas on the house and lit it to prevent his ex-wife from getting a second mortgage, sheriff's officers reported.

Post was a Bolinas volunteer fireman until two years ago, but more recently worked for his brother at a Sausalito restaurant.

Innocent Plea In Credit Case

A 21-year-old Mill Valley resident who allegedly had stolen license plates and bought a tire with an invalid credit card pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of concealing stolen property and the credit card violation.

A preliminary hearing for Daniel John Pasquale on the two felony counts was set for Oct. 3.

Sheriff's deputies arrested him in Strawberry Wednesday after he tried to buy a tire from the Texaco service station on Frontage Road. Pasquale fled when the station attendant started phoning for verification of the credit card, deputies said.

ent contractors over whom no franchise control is established.

But the state claims that financial agreements in the nature of fees and overrides among distributors advancing through the ranks of the company bring the makreting plan under franchise investment regulations.

Goldstein said making the company subject to such regulations would require substantial expense and necessitate a "whole new administrative structure."

Carlyle R. Brakensiek, counsel for the state Department of Corporations, said Furst's ruling would have no effect on the other pyramid companies in Patrick's empire unless the department of corporations moved similarly against them.

The state attorney general's office, meantime, also has brought legal action against Sta-Power, as well as Alexander Taylor Inc., clothing firm in the Patrick conglomerate.

Elderly Respond To Aid Campaign

San Rafael Considering Law On Burglar Alarms

The San Rafael City Council last night continued consideration of an ordinance aimed at regulating fire and burglar alarm systems in the city after alarm company representatives balked at proposed penalty payments for false alarms.

The ordinance would require alarm companies to obtain a license from the police department to conduct business in San Rafael. It also sets installation and quality control standards as well as penalty fees for faulty systems.

The ordinance has been requested by Police Chief Joseph J. Brusatori in the wake of 2,500 false alarms last year which consumed 88 man-days.

Alarm company representatives balked at provisions of the proposed ordinance which allows the chief to levy a $20 per hour penalty payment on an occupant or permit holder who does not appear at the scene within 30 minutes after an alarm has been tripped.

Brusatori said that several weeks ago an alarm had buzzed for two days before the fire department finally ripped it out. Alarm representatives argued they needed more time to get to the scene of an active alarm.

The ordinance would also levy a $25 fee for every false alarm over three that occur in any month.

"What constitutes a false alarm, and who picks up the tab — the company or the occupant?" asked one alarm company representative.

Another representative claimed the ordinance would put small alarm firms out of business and suggested that a company be paid a flat fee by the city if an alarm resulted in the capture of an intruder.

Jerry Hallett, representing American Sentry Systems of San Rafael, said that the ordinance should include provisions for fining the phone company. Hallett, backed by other representatives, said phone exchanges and careless technicians were responsible for "more than 50 per cent of all false alarms."

"I'll look into this and take care of the phone company part of it in the morning," declared Councilman Harry A. Barbier, a phone company public affairs official.

Barbier had earlier argued that careless storeowners who tripped alarms when opening or closing shop were responsible for the false alarm problem. The council agreed with Barbier that some sort of ordinance was needed to combat false alarms that "take men off the beat and put them where they don't belong."

The council asked City Atty. Fred E. Robbins to revise the ordinance with an eye toward designating responsibility for false alarms. The matter will again be considered on Oct. 30.

San Rafael Council Doubles Bedroom Tax

The San Rafael City Council last night more than doubled the city's "bedroom tax" levied for construction of new dwelling units.

The council, with John A. Miskimen dissenting, voted 3-1 to hike the tax from $30 to $75 per bedroom and from $60 to $75 per mobile home unit. Mayor C. Paul Bettini was absent.

"I don't think this council should add to the inflationary cost of new construction," Miskimen said, calling the measure a "nice easy tax that gets lost in the shuffle."

Councilman Fred E. Jensen said the levy was "the fairest tax we've ever had."

All bedroom tax funds are used for public recreational facilities, according to Parks and Recreation Director Andrew J. Snyder, who urged the hike last night.

Snyder said the bedroom tax so far had netted only $40,604 and "this isn't enough to acquire parkland when it becomes available."

The tax insures that new residents pay their fair share of the cost of recreational services, Snyder said.

The San Rafael City Council also:

McCARTHY CO. — Put over to Oct. 30 consideration of an appeal by the Terra Linda Homeowners Association and others of planning commission approval of a townhouse and apartment complex off San Pablo Avenue proposed by McCarthy Co. of Northern California. The council Oct. 30 will also hear a rezoning requested by the firm, which was not ready to discuss it last night.

GENERAL PLAN — Approved a $79,100 contract with the planning firm of Duncan and Jones for work on the city's general plan. The contract provides for five general meetings and three public hearings on the general plan, which is expected to be completed by fiscal 1973-74.

PERSONNEL — Hired Linsey Trimble for work in the parks and recreation department at a monthly salary of $692.

WARRANTS — Adopted the warrants after "careful review," according to finance committeeman John A. Miskimen.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned in memory of Louise A. Boyd to Sept. 25 at 8 p.m. for a meeting on redevelopment.

Hub Commission Votes To Freeze Open Space

The snowballing drive to freeze Marin's open space pending land use study gained more momentum last night when the San Anselmo Planning Commission added its weight.

The commission unanimously sent to the city council its plan for strict temporary bans on building, subdividing and rezoning, but not before the complaint of at least one property owner was heard.

Philip S. Bundschu of The Alameda, who said he has 58 acres in and adjoining San Anselmo for sale, claimed the proposed four-month emergency ordinance would be inverse condemnation of his land.

"Those that can afford to take this to court will and if I had the resources, I would too," he said. "I want to develop my property, but I can't if you have this moratorium. Am I to be penalized because I bought my land 17 years ago and have paid taxes on it all these years?"

Commission Chairman Duane C. Ragan told him times have changed making the city general plan and zoning rules out of date.

"I know times change, but my taxes don't change," Bundschu retorted.

His was the only obstacle to the proposed ban which had been hatched at previous sessions. The commission passed it with little comment and Bundschu was the only spectator in the audience of 20 who spoke.

As finally recommended, the measure, which could be extended up to two years, covers all undeveloped parcels and all commercial lots, developed already or not.

"Any land use which would in any way permanently change the conformity of the land (such as by grading, excavation, fill, pilings, construction, or the commitment of the use of the land beyond a period of one year) or rezoning shall require a use permit," the proposed emergency ordinance says.

A use permit would be granted only if the commission should find "substantial probability" that the use would be consistent with proposed zoning and general plan revisions.

The proposal is modeled after that of San Rafael, but unlike San Rafael's or those of other Marin cities, the proposed ban covers all undeveloped sites, not just the larger ones.

Bundschu called the phenomena of moratoriums which has already reached the majority of Marin cities the "kind of thinking that 'I moved here first and I want to look at your land so you can't use it.'"

The San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

ORGANIC RESTAURANT — Approved an application by Beverly Patrick for a use permit to sell beer and wine and provide unamplified live entertainment in a new restaurant called The Enchanted Garden scheduled to open at 726 San Anselmo Avenue on Oct. 15.

DELICATESSEN — Referred back to the applicant, Patricia C. Barbera, an application for a beer and wine use permit for a restaurant to be called The Plank Delicatessen in part of a large building at 21 Mariposa Avenue and directed her to try to find some off-street parking spaces.

TREES — Referred back to William B. Wiley his request for a frontyard setback variance to build a home and carport at 60 Crest Road suggesting he redesign the structure to save the tree screen along the road.

Shriver Charged On Solicitation

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI)— Joseph H. Blatchford, director of ACTION has charged that Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver used unauthorized names of former Peace Corps and VISTA volunteers for political solicitation.

Blatchford, who said he was in the area campaigning on behalf of the Committee to Reelect the President, also alleged Monday the lists may have been stolen or illegally taken from ACTION headquarters in Washington, C.C.

"Soliciting former volunteers for political or commercial purposes is a direct violation of a policy Shriver himself established when he was head of the Peace Corps," Blatchford said.

More information about the exact dates and times representatives will be available can be obtained from the school nearest a youngster's home.

The Marin Council Boy Scouts has announced that a home donated to them to be sold as a fund raiser has netted $10,000 for the Scouts.

The house in Marinwood was constructed by Novato builder Rube Kaehler and sold to a San Francisco couple for $49,500 by realtor William Timmer.

Navy Sued Over Dumping Order

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—The Navy was sued Monday for failing to comply with a court order to stop dumping 380,000 gallons of partially treated waste water daily into San Francisco Bay.

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board asked Alameda County Superior Court for a permanent injunction against dumping from the Alameda Naval Air Station and civil penalties of $6,000 per day for further violations.

The board said it issued an order Oct. 1, 1971, to eliminate waste dumped in the bay after only minor treatment to remove oil and sludge.

Forums Slated On Politics

A series of political forums for Central Marin women, organized by Larkspur City Councilman Joan Sestak, will start tomorrow.

The first, at noon in Mrs. Sestak's home at 359 Wilson Way, will feature Democratic congressional Candidate Roger Boas discussion on "planning for Marin's future."

The second forum, a debate between Fourth Supervisorial District candidates Michael R. Peevey and Gary T. Giacomini, will be at noon on Oct. 4 in the Straw Hat Pizza Palace, Larkspur.

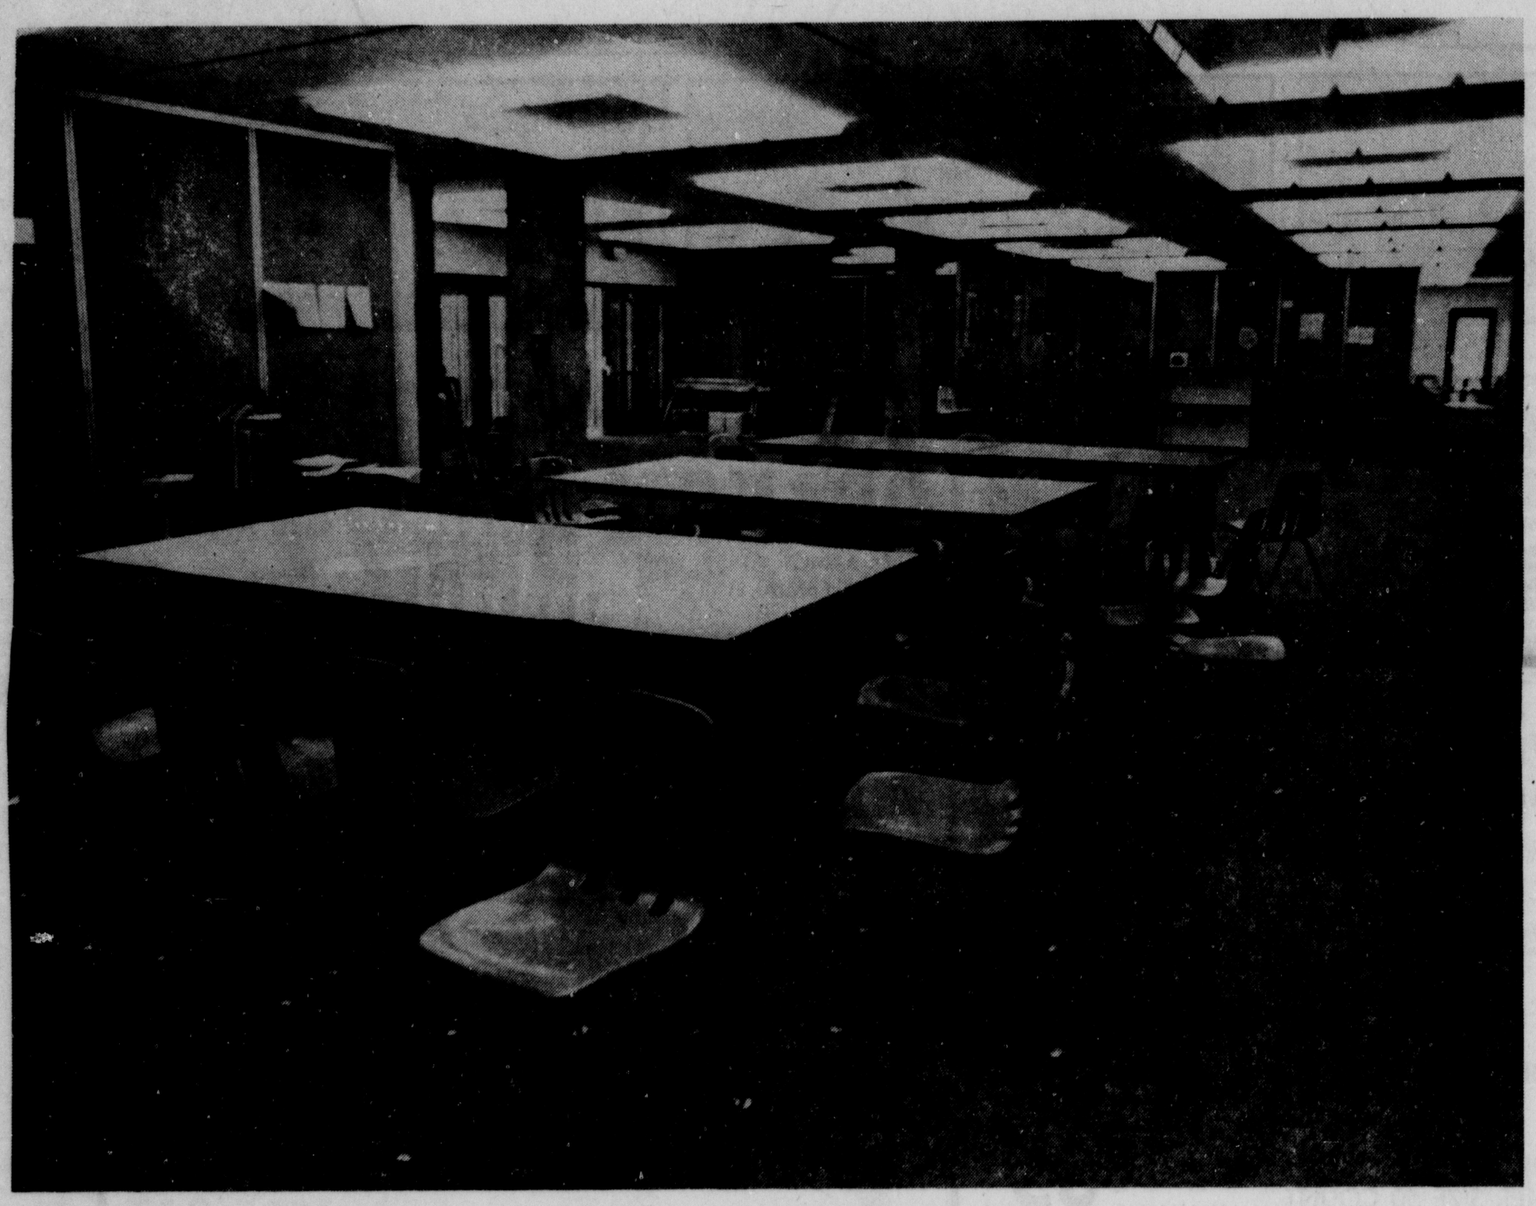
OUTDOOR PLAY — Physical education classes at Casa Grande will remain outdoors until the gymnaisum in the foreground is completed. As at more established schools, students tend to remain on campus after school for a quick game of basketball. Players (from left) are Mark Polk, Frank Aikens and George Donate, all 15-year-old sophomores.

NEW CAMPUS — The administrative center of the new Casa-Grande Junior-Senior High School in Petaluma is the focal point of a $2.8 million facility that also includes a gymnasium, three classroom buildings and a recreation center on 18 acres. The newly-opened school is located on Casa Grande Road and Ely Boulevard South.



AIRY CLASSROOMS

Movable partitions form individual classrooms at the Casa Grande school. Each of the three classroom buildings has 12-class sections, housing students in grades seven through ten. Eventually a separate building will be constructed for junior high classes and the school expanded through to the twelfth grade.

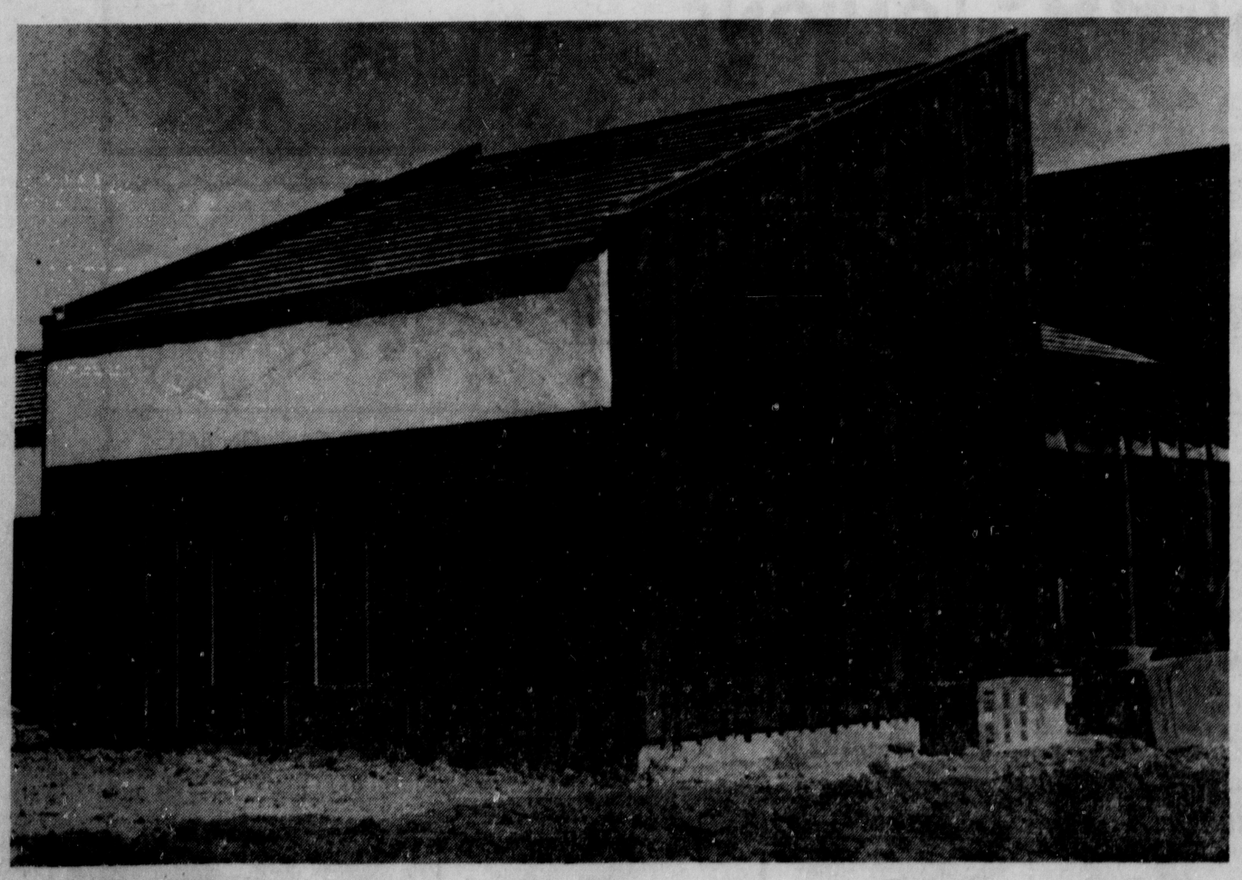
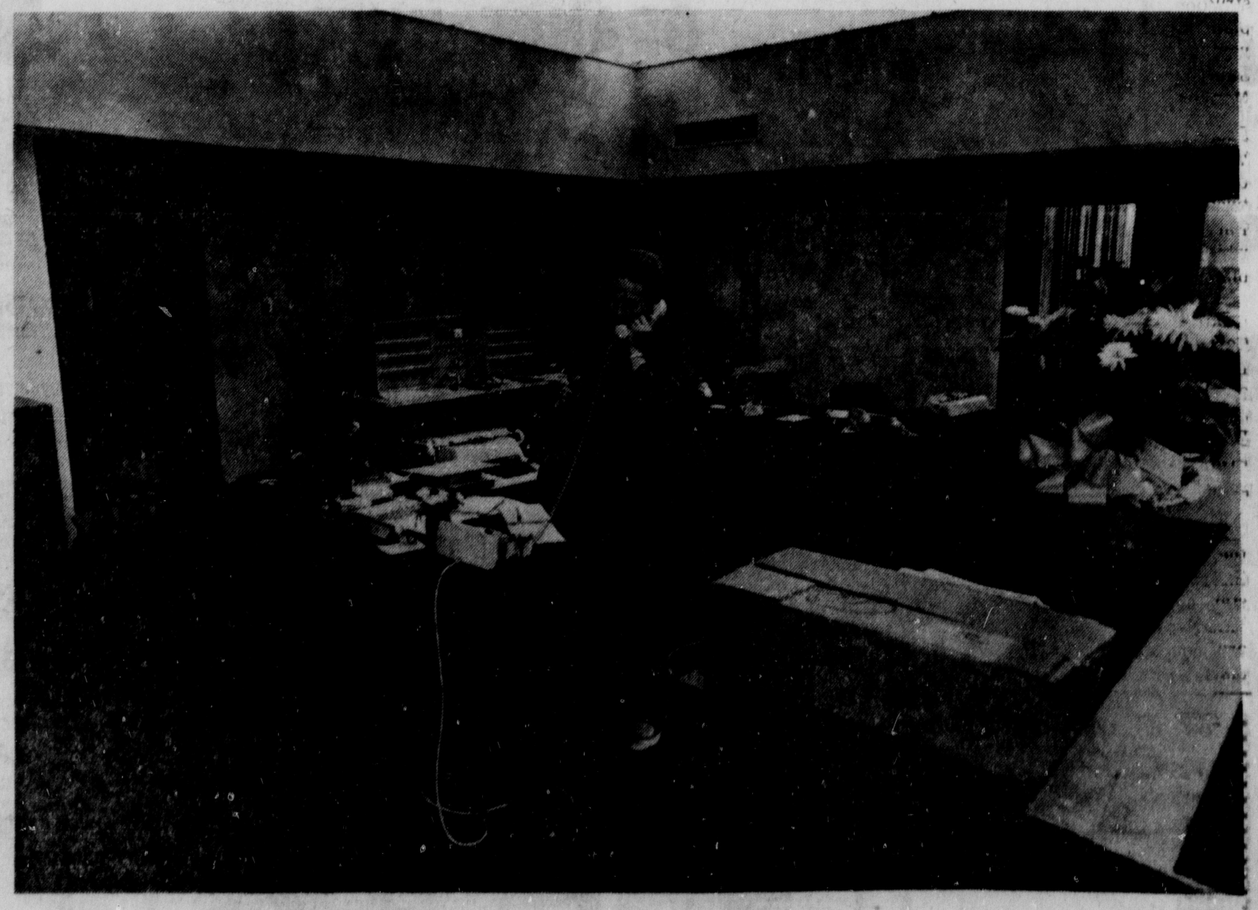
OUTDOOR LOCKERS — Open Air lockers protected in a kiosk-style area are sprinkled throughout the Casa Grande High School campus. Beamed building entrances cast shadowy designs in the afternoon sun.



RUGGED EXTERIOR — Rough-hewn redwood gives a rugged exterior to buildings at Casa Grande. Interior work on this multi-purpose room is continuing. The building section will also double as a cafeteria to serve 300 students at a time. Meantime, students eat bag lunches on an adjoining patio.



MAIN OFFICE — Secretary Virginia Dechene handled a barrage of telephone calls — a part of opening week confusion at the Casa Grande school. Scene is the administrative center of the facility, which is in Petaluma schools system.

Reno Youth Sent To Jail For Robbery

A 19-year-old youth who admitted using drugs since he was 14 was ordered yesterday to serve six months in jail for robbing a Novato grocery clerk by saying he had a gun in his pocket.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed James Clifford Bennett of Reno on probation for five years and gave him credit for time in jail since his arrest May 16.

The district attorney recommended state prison despite a plea negotiation in the case.

Bennett admitted in July that he robbed the clerk at the Short Stop market at Rowland and South Novato boulevards of $127, then bound and gagged him in the bathroom of the store.

He was arrested minutes later in a field behind the store, but had no gun.

He told his probation officer that since the age of 14 he has taken more than 200 LSD trips and used morphine, methamphetamine and heroin.

Garment Theft In Strawberry Nets Probation

A Millbrae woman who tried to exchange a garment she had stolen the previous day from a Strawberry shop was ordered yesterday to spend four months in jail.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court suspended sentencing of Caroline Jean McIlroy, 30, and instead placed her on probation for five years on condition she serve the jail time.

"I think she'll appreciate this after a year or so — the fact that she's been stopped short of state prison," the judge said.

Mrs. McIlroy was arrested March 12 after she set off the shoplifting alarm both entering and leaving the Little Daisy Dress Shop in the Town and Country Shopping Center.

Sheriff's deputies said she entered the store to exchange a $10 blouse taken the day before and left with an additional $45 in clothing that she hadn't paid for.

She had two previous theft convictions and was charged with attempted burglary and concealing stolen property.

Astronaut Assails Marin 'Mind' Firm

Combined AP and UPI

Astronaut Edgar D. Mitchell has accused Mind Dynamics, Inc. of San Rafael of being oriented toward "sensationalism, faddism and ego games," but says he was criticizing the self-improvement firm "as a friend."

Mitchell, who conducted experiments in extrasensory perception while circling the Moon in January 1971, was an invited, paid speaker at a gathering of 1,500 Mind Dynamics students in San Francisco on Sunday.

Midway through his speech, he began to criticize his sponsors:

"I've seen the ads and frankly they turn me off," he said. "It depresses me that they're oriented toward sensationalism, faddism and ego games.

"I've never seen anything in them about helping people grow in wisdom, compassion or humility. There is no short road to instant enlightenment," Mitchell continued, "and a three-day course in Mind Dynamics is certainly not going to give it to you."

The Mind Dynamics firm offers courses in which students of all ages are told they can greatly improve their mental powers and their material positions through use of alpha brain waves and other mental training.

Head of the firm is English-born Alexander Everett, former private school headmaster, race car driver and restauranteur. A major stockholder is William Penn Patrick, owner of Holiday Magic and a number of other sales-oriented firms based in San Rafael.

After returning to Houston, Tex., astronaut Mitchell explained yesterday to United Press International that "I was not going after Mind Dynamics any harder than I was going after the organizations that are saying things that cannot be substantiated by scientific data . . . I am trying to help police" the mind expansion industry "before there are cries of fraud and charlatanism."

Mitchell on Sunday attacked a Mind Dynamics ad using his name as "unscrupulous and dishonest."

Robert White, senior vice president for Mind Dynamics, later explained that the ad was a reprint of a news story, in which the reporter, not the firm, made the association.

White said the firm was surprised and shocked at Mitchell's criticism. "If he disagreed with us, he should have come and told us and not accepted a fee to tell us from a platform."

The Mind Dynamics spokesman said, "Our type of training does turn people on . . . we don't advertise instant sex. We do advertise that Mind Dynamics can work on weight, smoking, driving."

He insisted that Mind Dynamics can back its self-improvement claims and "people don't expect more than what we offer them."

Mitchell said that after he retires from the astronaut program Oct. 1 he will form his own corporation to promote scientific research in parapsychology. He has been involved with a number of mind science groups since his moon trip.

Ryan Testifies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After listening to some of the military's top officers, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said Monday he was puzzled no one higher than Gen. John D. Lavelle knew of illegal air strikes in Vietnam.

Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force Chief of Saff, tld the Senate Armed Services Committee he had "no knowledge or basis for belief there was any such action by anyone else" other than Lavelle, according to Stennis.

Marinwood To Discuss Open Space

The Marinwood Community Services District board last night set 8 p.m. Oct. 12 for public discussion of a $600,000 bond election to finance open space acquisition.

Passage of the bond — which will be voted on Jan. 23 — would allow the district to acquire about 350 acres of open space, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager.

The measure would cost the owner of a $30,000 home about $30 a year, she said.

Though no priority acquisition list has yet been established, a priority committee is currently contacting homeowners and developing a list of open space parcels that may be acquired, according to board member Frank Solomon Jr. He said the board has also authorized an appraisal and title search of some undeveloped parcels in the district.

The open space action comes on the heels of a district poll which asserted that 89 per cent of 824 residents queried favored open space acquisition.

The Marinwood Community Services District board also:

OPEN SPACE — Endorsed the county's open space preservation program.

EASEMENT — Asked the county to deed to the district an easement on pedestrian walkways near the picnic area adjacent to Miller Creek School, rather than purchase walkways leading directly to schoolgrounds.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 12.

Ten per cent of all homes in the United States will be heated electrically by the end of 1972, Frank H. Roby, president of Sola Basic Industries, told electric heating representatives at a convention.

Three Petaluma Thefts Reported

Three Petaluma businesses reported weekend thefts to police yesterday.

Robert Pope of the Sorensen Funeral Home, 969 Petaluma Boulevard North, said a large bronze statue valued at $400 was stolen.

Petaluma Ready Mix, Lakeville and Jefferson Streets, reported a television camera and zoom lens valued at $565 was stolen.

Young America Homes reported that building materials valued at $400 were stolen from the construction yard on San Rafael Drive and that windows were broken in 15 homes under construction there for a loss of $400.

Agency Official Is Suspended

Keith E. Kelly, deputy director of the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency, has been suspended from his duties pending a hearing before both agency boards.

Kelly, 45, was suspended Friday by executive director Wallace K. Shepherd who said the two men found it "difficult to work together." He gave no other reason.

Kelly, who has worked for the agencies since February 1971, said he would appeal the suspension to the housing authority and redevelopment agency boards, which are responsible for the hiring and firing of top administrators.

State's Population Growth Rate Down

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A state official told a legislative hearing Monday that immigration into California has gone "dramatically down" and birth rates have declined "drastically as well" in the state.

Norman Stern of the state Department of Water Resources was testifying before the Assembly Committee on Environmental Quality chaired by March K. Fong, D-Oakland.

In the 1950s, Stern said, his agency projected California's population at 54 million persons. He added a couple of years ago the projection was revised downward to 44 million by the year 2020.

But the figure has again been decreased, he said.

Mrs. Fong said the figure should be reduced to 25 million —five million more persons than live in California now.

The lawmaker said the state "should emphasize the quality of life rather than the quantity of life."

Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, said the whole question of population policy came down to "whether there should be government control of the reproductive nature of his society."

But Assemblyman Robert G. Wood, R-Monterey, asked whether government "has the right to tell people they can't live" in an area that is overpopulated.

City Planner Sherman Griselle said, "Individual property rights are protected by the Constitution and the courts, but the state has the right to plan for the population it foresees."

Rohnert Park Is Advised To Buy Ranch Acreage

The Rohnert Park City Council was advised last night to buy a 187-acre ranch as a regional park site.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the city recreation commission unanimously recommended that the John Rapoza Ranch east of Sonoma State College in the foothills of the Sonoma Mountains be purchased for such a park.

Commissioners said they toured the land by jeep and found it has great possibilities. The council said it would also like to tour the ranch and set the jaunt for Sunday at 1 p.m.

Recreation director James Pekkain said state funds might be available to help the city buy the ranch which is listed on the market at $1,500 per acre for a total cost of $280,500. Pekkain said little initial development work would be needed since it could be used immediately as a wilderness area with hiking, bicycle and horse paths.

The council also granted a contract extension to Oct. 15 for Argonaut Constructors of Santa Rosa to complete widening work on Snyder Lane.

The council adjourned to Sunday at 1 p.m. to tour the ranch and set next Monday at 7:30 p.m. for a joint meeting at city hall with the planning commission on a sign ordinance.

Candidate Will Speak At Forum

San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas — Democratic candidate for the Sixth Congressional District seat — will discuss "Planning for Marin's Future" as the first of a series of community forums sponsored by Joan Sestak, Larkspur City Councilwoman.

The program will start at noon tomorrowat Mrs. Sestak's home at 359 Wilson Way.

At noon on Oct. 4 in her home, Mrs. Sestak has scheduled a debate between Michael Peevey and Gary Giacomini, candidates for supervisor from the Fourth District.

State Resources Board Loses To Sierra Club

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The State Resources Board's agreement not to oppose construction of a nuclear power plant in Mendocino County is void and not enforceable, a Superior Court judge ruled Monday.

Judge R. A. Brown ruled in favor of the Sierra Club which challenged the agreement between the state agency and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., which plans an $831 million plant near Point Arena.

Both the State Public Utilities Commission and the Atomic Energy Commission must give approval before construction on the plant can begin and Judge Brown's order does not prevent PG&E from seeking such approval.

David Pesonen, attorney for the conservationist club, said the ruling means that certain state agencies which had been "muzzled" by the agreement are now free to oppose the plant.

In filing its suit, the club asserted the state agency "illegally delegated state regulatory powers to PG&E even though PG&E is the object of such regulation and has a vested financial interest in the outcome."

The club also noted the agency entered the agreement without holding necessary public hearings.

Judge Brown's ruling was in the form of a consent decree to which PG&E agreed.

The Sierra Club is objecting to the plant on the grounds that it would be inappropriate in the scenic area near Point Arena. It also questioned the proposed plant's nearness to the San Andreas earthquake fault.

'New Voter' Lesson For Older Citizens

The second issue of the New Voter, edited by Peter C. Meyer, Marin County elections officer, contains a story with a message for old voters as well as new.

Entitled "The Red Tape Makers," it relates that in researching some local issues for the New Voter, four researchers called the Civic Center all at once, on different subjects — but none of them knew just whom to call. It continues:

"THEY KEPT telephone operators, secretaries, administrators and assistants tied up for 20 minutes; calls were transferred, the same stories were repeated three or four times, memos and notes were written, referrals made, new addresses and telephone numbers recorded . . .

"Unfortunately, this was standard procedure at the Civic Center — they were used to it. And what a waste of time it was! We admit our mistakes; we didn't know where to call.

"Take, for example, the missing light in the local public park. We wanted a new one installed. Your choice of jurisdictions ranges from county public works, to city, to community services, to park district, to lighting district, to county or city park department. When the proper jurisdiction was found, they said they contracted with the county for park maintenance services and the county said they did perform maintenance but not on the lights. That was a new department and there the man was out for coffee.

"Somehow local government is a mystery to us because we don't keep informed or participate more often. And instead of making one quick informed call, we create that bureaucratic demon of the run-around. It's our government and our red tape too."

BLAMING GOVERNMENT — whether federal, state, county, city or district — for a "runaround" is common practice. And government bureaucracy sometimes seems most expert at avoiding responsibility by using the "runaround." But, as the New Voter piece points out, citizens create or exacerbate this by not knowing where to call or whom to ask. They don't know because they don't keep track.

The chore of keeping track is difficult, especially in California with its large assortment of special districts and its numerous layers of government. But it's a chore incumbent upon the citizen if he wants to get maximum returns for his tax dollars. He can't get action if he doesn't know where to ask.

The tremendous confusion which causes departments at Civic Center and city halls to be constantly answering inquiries that should go to other departments or other jurisdictions is created by an uninformed citizenry.

The uninformed citizenry has mostly itself to blame. But no one — until Peter Meyer came along with the New Voter — has made much of an effort to provide the basic information.

IF MEYER'S program works out as he intends, the New Voter generation will have better ideas of where to take problems. But the old voters could use some education along this line, too.

And if they got it, they might realize that the multiplicity of jurisdictions is largely unnecessary, and that many of the special districts could be abolished with a saving in taxes, no reduction in services, and a lot less of the "runaround."

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Life Within The Womb And Issue Of Abortion

By RUS WALTON

Whoo-eee! Did I walk into a thicket of thorns!

The other week I did a column on abortions. I wrote that abortion is the taking of life and therefore — even though the state or the medical profession or the individual may condone it — it is murder.

Well, since then the mailman cometh! Frequently.

Most of the letters have been thoughtful. Courteous but firm. And in disagreement with my position. There have been several recurring arguments which deserve comment. I cite one letter as typical. It is a well-reasoned, well-mannered communication.

FIRST, THE WRITER contends that the life which sparks when first the egg and sperm unite (to form the zygote which becomes the embryo and then the fetus) is not human life. It is, he writes, but animal life that does not become human until it is born. Thus, abortion cannot be considered murder.

He is, I believe, in error.

Animals beget animals. Human beings beget human beings. The life of that individual organism, which is created to develop in the mother's womb, is indeed a separate and unique human life.

PERHAPS THE BEST way to put it is to quote Dr. Thomas Johnson, professor of biology and embryology at the University of Virginia:

"Is it possible that by some magic, at the time of birth, this alleged potential being is somehow, within a matter of minutes, transformed into an actual human being?

"To rational individuals, the answer is incontrovertible. Both the unborn child and the newly born child is an actual human being and at the time of birth the child is merely moving from one required environment (aquatic) to a new required environment (gaseous) so that it can continue to develop into the succeeding stages of life."

Those who favor abortion may find it convenient to regard the intrauterine being as not human. It may ease the conscience, but it does not erase the murder.

THE READER goes on to quote Exodus 21:22-23 in support of his contenion that the fetus is not a human life. That scripture says in essence that if a man strike a woman so that she has a miscarriage, the culprit shall pay the woman's husband damages. Why, asks the reader, if a life was taken was not a life required ("a life for a life")?

There is a vast and cardinal difference between accidental death (miscarriage) and premeditated murder (abortion). That is made crystal clear in Deuteronomy 19: 4-6. "Whoso killeth his neighbor ignorantly, whom he hated not . . . he shall live . . . there is no sentence of death for him." Exodus 21:22 also makes that point.

If we go back to the beginning, the solution is self-control and morality, virtues which are fast losing ground in this old (or "new") world. The truth is that abortions are usually the "easy" way out for indiscretion or appetite. And, the easier the escape, the more frequent the indiscretion.

LET ME QUOTE Dr. Johnson once more:

". . . in the dark cavity (of the womb) our of sight, older humans find it possible to pretend these younger humans are not living or are not human.

"If the growth of the child were to be observed by the mother, the issue of abortion would most likely never have become a matter of world-wide concern. For what psychologically healthy mother, seeing the unborn child within herself, would choose to destroy it?"

Or, as the nurse gasped after the doctors had aborted a perfectly developed 24-week fetus and deposited it in a surgical bucket, "Oh, God! What have we done?"

"Are you saying that I and the Gallup poll are hogwash?"

"Quick, Henry! Inside you'll find a little timing device."

Community College Challenges Emerging

I want to compliment you on your excellent editorial on Friday about the College of Marin. As a candidate for the Marin Community College District Board of Trustees I agree that the challenge of the college's increasing enrollment and its corollary issues are just beginning to be felt. This very challenge is one of the very reasons I am a candidate for the college board.

Let Councilmen Be Gourmet Guides

I think that the councilmen and city managers, etc., should wear a small badge showing their name and rank so that we could see what is good to order for lunch or dinner, because it must be good to cost so much.

Of course that is only peanuts compared to other things, but we might as well start with peanuts and a drink or two.

Airport Arguments Found Unconvincing

There has been considerable discussion recently about joint use of Hamilton Air Force Base. Most of the conversation on both sides has been made by relatively few people. Generally, the citizens of Marin could care less about an airport one way or another.

Who is it then that is doing all the talking? On the pro side; the airport commission, who are commissioners of nothing and of course want to be commissioners of something; the owners of large tracts of land in the area of the base, who would profit handsomely by the South San Francisco, San Bruno type of industrial development which would come about; a few misguided citizens that shrug their shoulders and say, "You can't stop progress," and of course the airlines.

On the con side are the people who recognize what we have in Marin. Natural beauty, reasonable quiet, pollution free air, and tolerable traffic.

The proponents of joint use have yet to show any advantages to the citizenry of Marin. Instead, their arguments are that the bad effects won't be too bad. Not too much additional noise, dirt, air pollution and traffic. Even on those negative arguments they are on very shaky ground. Their arguments are based on theories, and not proven scientific facts. On the positive side they say, "convenience". Convenient to how many? Perhaps to one tenth of one percent of the total Marin County population. . . .

Let's wake up the citizens of Marin, and stop the kind of "progress" that has resulted in polluting all of our waterways in this country, and in making most of our air in urban areas unfit to breath.

Food Stamp Expose Dishonest, Irresponsible

It is reporter Marlene Freedman, by her own account in the Sept. 15 I-J, who flunked the food stamp test. And the Independent-Journal flunks as a responsible newspaper, if it sends a reporter to perjure herself in the county offices in order to prove that persons can gain temporary advantage if their word means nothing and they are willing to face the consequences of perjury. I hope that none of the higher-ups in the I-J put reporter Freedman up to this caper, for is not conspiracy to commit a misdeamanor a felony?

Reporter Freedman had her little laugh, and now she faces possible prosecution. . .One question remains: What was the point of this hypocritical "expose"? Everything from driver's licenses to passports to superior court testimony rests largely on the sworn statements of presumably honest citizens. The welfare department is no different. Our country would crumble if the sworn words no longer had value. Publicity stunts like reporter Freedman's don't give very good example for upholding basic American values such as honesty and integrity.

RICHARD J. BOYLAN

Further 'Expose' Ideas Suggested

In regards to Marlene Freedman's article (Sept. 15), "Stamp Program Is Tested," front page no less, I was amazed at the fantastic promotion of "journalizing." I believe I once heard a reporter say, "When there is no story, make one." I feel that this is what has happened here. The I-J made a story . . .

What Marlene actually did was to, tongue-in-cheek, give the police department all the evidence they need to arrest her for fraud . . .

When one is in dire need of food, there isn't time for a period of investigation, a pregnant mother, a starving child, a broken father, might be induced to commit their own fraudulant crime. Or the mother might be forced to sell something which she has cherished since birth. Why? All because of one "made story."

This could result in quite an injustice done to ones in need of food. With our country, of which I love very much, providing billions for foreign friends, enemies, traitors, what have you, why can't we here in Marin County feed a few needy people in our own midst, on the home shore, without some news hunting hound forcing a story, if this is a story? . . .

Welfare frauds are being investigated now. In fact there is rather a large drive on to weed out these unlawful recipients of food stamps. When they are apprehended they are usually given some kind of jail sentence, at least in the San Bernardino area which has recently made the news in that area.

What will the "I-J" look for next in the line of "forced" news? Let me suggest a few ideas that should fit into your satirical exposes; Serial 2: assume the role of a police lieutenant, call up some 83-year-old little old lady, ask her to meet you at her bank. When at the bank, or take her valuables back to her home and then steal them. Then you can write an expose on the fallibility of banks and how easy little old ladies are to rob.

Serial 3: buy a rifle and a blank, hide yourself at one of McGovern's rallies and shoot him with blank while he is speaking. Then you will have material on how easy it is to shoot presidential candidates.

Serial 4: you might steal a plane with the same cool, calculating, skillful scheming, planning, and manuvering as you did in your "food stamp caper." If you bring the plane back, don't worry about being prosecuted for you were just gathering material for a "muckraking."

McGovern Gets Some Good News In Rock-Ribbed Maine

AUGUSTA, Maine — When Sen. George McGovern comes to Portland for a brief New England exposure, he will get some much-needed good news from Democratic National Committeewoman Nancy Chandler. Mrs. Chandler, a prime mover in the McGovern campaign in Maine, says that volunteers have been coming in at the rate of 500 a week.

It is the considerable political experience of this pretty, lively young woman, that is unprecedented. Part of her job is to put these volunteers to work manning telephones, ringing doorbells and doing the other donkey chores of a campaign badly in need of momentum.

A month ago it looked hopeless. Now . . well, anyway, there's hope. Three out of four of Marine's delegation in Congress are Democrats and so is Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis.

But this is Sen. Edmund Muskie's home state and the feeling lingers on that he, rather than McGovern, should have been at the head of the ticket. When he was the vice-presidential candidate with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey four years ago, Maine ended up in the Democratic column. This time Muskie declined McGovern's offer to run again for vice president, giving undisclosed personal reasons for his decision.

THAT IMPRESSIVE Republican institution, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, is running for re-election for a fifth term. Her campaigns are traditionally as cozy as a church supper. In her statewide race six years ago she is said to have spent $12,000. As one comment has it, most of that must have gone for the fresh rose that she wears daily as her trademark.

Senator Smith, the only woman in the Senate until the appointment of Mrs. Elaine S. Edwards of Louisiana, is being challenged by William D. Hathaway, who represents Maine's Second District in Congress. His private polls are said to show thus far a depressing prospect. The trouble with running against Margaret, or Maggie as she is known to man, woman and child, is to get a grip for an attack that does not seem ungentlemanly.

That was the dilemma of Robert Monks, who opposed her in the primary. He ran an aggresive campaign attacking her record in Congress or the lack of a record. But loyal Maine folks took care of him with the slogan: "Monks, Millions, Massachusetts," the last a reference to his origins in the neighboring state. He is said to have spent up to $300,000, which came out to $10 a vote in losing by two to one. That was the biggest boost to Maine's economy since the start of the Nixon administration.

While Margaret's age is top secret, the intimation is that when she finishes another six-year term she will be 80 or 81. To talk about her age, even though Monks' private polls showed this was the biggest doubt about her re-election, might in that fine bureaucratic expression be counterproductive. The report here is that Ralph Nader and his raiders are planning to open up prior to the election on her entire career, first in the House and then the Senate.

AS FOR THE lady senator, she shows not the slightest concern, visiting the state more often than customary, which is hardly at all, but otherwise tending to her knitting and maintaining her near-perfect attendance and voting record. If the Republicans should win the Senate, she would be chairman of the armed services committee, in a position to exert powerful influence on defense contracts, which are not abundant in her native state.

To carry Maine, McGovern would have to pass a miracle. With so many miracles on a grander scale to be passed between now and Nov. 7, this one rock-ribbed Republican state must be toward the bottom of the list. In the Republican debacle of 1936 Maine was one of two states that Alf Landon carried, the other being Vermont.

I remember campaigning with him when we came into Maine. At Portland, the speaker's stand was put in left field in a baseball park. That evening a fog rolled in and for most of the people in the grandstand he might as well have been speaking from the moon. Surrounded by eager-beaver amateurs, Landon's campaign suffered from some of the ills plaguing McGovern.

That was when, under a Maine law, the voters here cast their presidential ballots in September and the victor could trumpet, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation." For Landon it turned out rather differently.

Rise Of Quota System Stirs Protest From Jewish Leaders

Two of America's most articulate minorities — black people and Jews — may be heading toward a clash over the use of quotas as a means of preventing discrimination.

The basic concept of a quota system is that each group in the population is entitled to proportionate representation in such matters as the composition of delegations to national conventions, the distribution of jobs, and the makeup of a school's student body.

Thus far, blacks generally have had good experience with quotas. They have found them a concrete and effective way of avoiding tokenism and insuring a fair degree of black participation in the political, economic and educational life of the nation.

BUT MANY JEWS have a longstanding dislike of quotas. They look upon them as a device for enforcing rather than combatting discrimination. This attitude was shaped in-large part by the custom which prevailed at many leading universities prior to World War II of admitting only as many Jewish students as necessary to reflect the Jewish proportion of the overal U.S. population.

Jews constitute a very tiny percentage of the total population (around 3 per cent) but a much larger proportion of those with high scores on I.Q. tests and college admission exams. Thus the quota system operated to deny admission to many Jewish students who would have qualified easily if judged on their individual abilities.

In recent years, most leading schools have been accepting students on the basis of individual merit rather than imposing ethnic, racial or religious quotas. But Jewish leaders see the quota system raising its head again — most conspicuously in the delegate-selection rules enforced at this year's Democratic primary. And they're upset about it.

PHILIP E. HOFFMAN, president of the American Jewish Committee, has written identical letters to President Nixon and Sen. George S. McGovern, telling the two presidential candidates why Jews feel strongly that "the American system, which is an open society, is based on individual rights, not group rights."

"We are opposed to quotas," Hoffman said, "because quotas are the negation of judging a man on his worth alone."

Recalling the long battle of his committee against quotas as a tool of discrimination, Hoffman said, "It would be tragic now to adopt a national policy, whatever the motivation, that would reintroduce the concept of judging a man on the basis of his skin color or the church he attends."

PRESIDENT NIXON in his letter of reply told Hoffman, "I share the views of the American Jewish Committee in opposing the concepts of quotas and proportional representation." He said he does not regard them as "appropriate means of achieving equal opportunity."

McGovern, who headed the rules reform committee which set up age, sex and race quotas for the Democratic convention, told Hoffman, "I share the concerns you have expressed and reject the quota system as detrimental to American society." He expressed belief that "it is both necessary and possible to open the doors that have long been shut to minority group members without violating basic principles of non-discrimination and without abandoning the merit system."

Two Planks Apes Olympics To Keep Politics Simon Pure

It was early summer when Cyrus T. Cyrus, mayor of Two Planks, Neb., out watching the corn grow, pondered about restoring some dignity to the art of politics.

"Politics is known as a dirty game and I'd like to change that," he said to the farmer who served part-time as town clerk.

"Say, sports are known as clean, especially amateur sports. Maybe we ought to work a little more sportsmanship into our meetings," the mayor said.

"Great idea," the clerk said. "We'll be as Simon pure as the Olympics."

WHEN THE NEXT town meeting opened there was a scuffle at the doorway because a delegation of Iowans was trying to enter.

"If those Iowans are allowed to speak at this meeting, we're walking out," said a sizable group of border residents who were opposed to Iowa's policy on moonshine.

Mayor Cyrus and other council members went into a back room and emerged about 45 minutes later with a decision. The Iowans were banned.

No sooner had the council chambers filled than the local newspaper reporter filed an official complaint that the reporter from the "big city" newspaper wasn't using a regulation pencil.

"He has to use the same pencil that every other reporter uses or he'll have an advantage and will be taking notes faster," the local reporter complained.

Councilmen at first said the "big city" reporter could use the pencil he was accustomed to, but later reversed that decision just before the pledge to the flag.

DURING THE PLEDGE, the town custodian spotted two farmers shaking the dust out of their hats instead of standing with hand on heart.

The farmers were summarily banned from the hearing, leaving the Farm Bureau short two of its best debaters during the fight over rural roads.

Another disturbance erupted about 10 minutes after discussion started on a new railroad crossing, when two railroad attorneys arrived.

"Gentlemen, you have missed the start of the discussion and under our rules you cannot participate," the mayor said.

"Your honor, we apologize for our tardiness, but we were informed by the president of the railroad, the crossing matter was to be on the agenda at 9 p.m., and it's only 8:15 now so we thought we had ample time."

"That's most unfortunate," the mayor replied. "But, as you see, the attorneys for the other side were here on time, and we can't make an exception to our rules."

THEN THE FIERCEST battle of the night erupted between the businessmen and the Two Planks Homeowners Association over the concession rights to the hot dog stand at the Fourth of July picnic.

With speakers on the verge of blows, Mayor Cyrus put a limit on debate. "We're cutting this off at 10," he said.

When the town clock struck 10, the mayor called for a vote and the businessmen won by a 3-2 vote.

A spokesman for the homeowners argued that the town clock was three minutes fast and that in reality, the mayor had cut off debate at 9:57 p.m.

The town clerk ruled that indeed the town clock was fast and the mayor opened the debate for three more minutes.

The council voted again and this time the homeowners won the concession by a 3-2 vote. The disgruntled businessmen stalked out and refused to take the popcorn concession.

After the meeting, the mayor, proud of his new system, asked a bystander, "How did it go?"

"It seemed like politics as usual to me," he answered.

Dixie Trustees Seek Volunteers

Volunteers to study the effect of Proposition 14, the Watson tax revision initiative, are sought by the Dixie School District Board of Trustees.

The Citizens' Finance Advisory Group will study the effect of the proposition, if passed, on school taxes, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell. Those interested on serving on the study group should contact the district office, he said.

The first meeting of the group has tentatively been set for 8 p.m., Oct. 2 in the board room of the administration building.

ART BUCHWALD

Gotta Have Totalitarian Trade To Keep Free Enterprise Alive

WASHINGTON — It is one of the ironies of the world we live in that the Communist countries may yet bail us out of our trade deficit mess.

Billings, Montana, an economist with the Department of Commerce, told me at lunch the other day that the capitalist system now depends on how much goods the Soviet Union and Red China buy from us. And the Communist system depends on how much goods then can sell to us.

You would think both sides would hold out so the respective systems would fail. But that isn't how it's working.

Billings told me, "The Russians need us, and we need the Russians."

"BUT HOW CAN YOU do business with Commie S.O.B.s who are trying to impose their totalitarian methods on the freedom-loving countries of the world?" I asked.

"What's that got to do with the price of wheat?" Billings demanded.

"I'm not talking about the price of wheat. Everyone knows that the Soivet Union has promised to bury us."

"No country that makes a grain deal with the United States can be all bad," Billings said. "Of course we have ideological differences with the Communist bloc, but they can be overlooked providing the Soviets contribute to our gross national product. Great Britain isn't buying our wheat. And the United States needs bread."

"Bread?"

"MONEY. It is obvious that we can no longer depend on the freedom-loving countries of this world to buy the things that the United States manufactures so it can be the strongest country in the world. Therefore, our only choice is to find customers among the enslaved peoples of the globe who have been deprived by their system of the good things in life."

"That makes sense," I admitted.

"Who do you think saved the Boeing Aircraft Co. this year?"

"I know it wasn't the Mexicans," I said.

"It was the Red Chinese. They have just ordered $150 million worth of Boeing jet planes. The economy of the entire northwest part of the United States has been rejuvenated because of this order."

"But these planes will carry passengers around the world who don't think the way we do," I protested.

"That is not our concern. Denmark thinks the way we do, but when is the last time they bought a Boeing 707?"

"I hear the Red Chinese also gave us an order for wheat."

"Exactly. And Canada, our closest neighbor and friend, won't even buy a box of Post Toasties from us."

"IT SURE IS a crazy world," I said, "when you have to count on your enemies to keep your economy going."

"We don't consider anyone who buys wheat or planes from us an enemy. They may have their faults, but we like to think of them not as adversaries but as customers.

"Once you take a Soviet or a Red Chinese buyer to lunch, you find out they're really very nice people," Billings said.

"Say, a thought just occurred to me," I said. "I wonder what would happen if, at the next Paris peace talks meeting, the North Vietnamese offered to make a grain deal with us. Would we still consider them ruthless, aggressive, international gangsters?"

Billings replied, "It would all depend on the financial terms of the deal."

Burglaries By Force Increase

There have been almost twice as many forced entry burglaries in Corte Madera so far this year as at the same date last year.

In the August report of the Corte Madera police department, chief David L. McIntosh lists 27 break-ins of Corte Madera homes by the end of August. Last year the total at this time was 14.

Adding another 12 no-force burglaries of homes for the year brings the town's burglary total to 39, compared to 29 at the end of August 1971.

But while burglars have increased their activities the town's police have increased their traffic surveillance.

Patrolmen had already issued 853 parking tickets by the end of August, more than doubling the total of 386 handed out by the end of August 1971. They wrote 110 moving vehicle citations, compared to 47 at the same date in 1971; and issued 336 citations for violations of road and driving laws, against 222 last year.

By the end of last month Corte Madera police had collected $18,042.41 in fines and forfeitures, well up on last year's comparative total of $10,516.84.

Immunization Survey Planned By Census Teams

Survey teams from the Bureau of the Census will be visiting selected Marin households this week to determine how many family members have been immunized against communicable diseases.

The survey is part of an annual national sampling used as a basis for planning national disease prevention programs. Information is asked about immunization against measles, influenza, smallpox, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

All door-to-door interviewers will present an official red, white and blue Bureau of the Census identification card, according to a spokesman at the Bureau's regional office in Seattle.

A total of 44,000 families will be surveyed nationally, including 1,150 in the Bay Area.

'Turn-Around' General Plan Due Perusal

By JEFF GREER

A countywide general plan that could turn around the patterns of Marin's growth and might force closer city-county planning coordination, will be presented to the City-County Planning Council on Thursday.

The county planning department staff will guide the council in a "walk-through" of the 120-page document with its related graphs and tables, at 8 p.m. in the planning commission chambers at the Marin County Civic Center.

The session will not be a formal public hearing — two of those will come later before the council on Oct. 5 and Oct. 19, according to Sol Silver, chief of advance planning for the county department.

The new draft of the general plan makes no major departures from the preliminary countywide plan that has been discussed by county and city officials and citizens for the past year. It contains many more specific figures on proposals to limit population, acquire open space, and provide economic diversity, than the preliminary plan, and spells out some major policy changes implied in the preliminary plan.

Probably the most controversial facet of the plan is its proposal to strengthen the city-county council's power over planning for the county and all cities and sub-areas within the county. The agency would be a watchdog to assure that the county or the cities not operate at cross-purposes to each other or the general plan in approving future development.

The new general plan draft contains the results of four years of study by Marin planners, consultants and committees on problems of transportation, open space, housing, expansion of urban services, geologic hazards and other issues whose eventual solutions will determine how Marin appears in the year 1990.

After its "walkthrough" introduction to the plan Thursday, the city-county planning panel will hold a special workshop at 8 p.m. Sept. 30 on the controversies among the proposals drafted by the county planning staff or suggested by citizens, cities and other sources.

Silver said Friday that the two formal city-county council hearings in October will be followed in the next two months by hearings before the county planning commission and supervisors and in all the cities. He said he hoped that the final draft of the countywide plan could be ready for adoption by all the public agencies involved early in 1973.

Like the preliminary plan, the new countywide general plan divides Marin into three north-south "corridors." Most urban development would be restricted to the eastern corridor along Highway 101, and the central and western corridors would be held to low density, mostly agricultural and recreational development.

The new draft's "turn-around" features center on:

1. Vastly expanding the amount of public lands retained as open space in the eastern, urbanized corridor. Only 2.5 per cent of the corridor's acreage now is in public open space; the plan calls for public open space ownership of 41 per cent of the corridor's land, by the year 1990. Sixty-three per cent of the corridor's land now is undeveloped, according to the general plan's charts. Acquiring 30,000 acres for open space would cost an estimated $49 million.

2. An attempt to switch Marin's breadwinners from a commuting life to working nearer home, with provisions for the necessary nonresidential economic development of Marin's eastern corridor.

3. Holding the county's predicted population growth rate to about 3,800 persons per year, contrasted with the 7,700 persons expectable if no population growth curbs are put on the cities and the unincorporated areas.

4. Through establishment of a "housing mix" required by state law, and other economic factors, the plan seeks to guarantee that Marin in 1990 will have class diversity.

Unrestricted free market development would give the county a population of 364,000 persons by 1990, with 53 per cent of the families in the high-income (over $14,000 a year) bracket, 40 per cent in the middle income bracket and only 7 per cent earning less than $8,000 a year, in 1970 dollars.

The countywide plan calls for Marin to be home in 1990 for only 286,000 persons, with 35 per cent high income, 45 per cent middle income and 20 per cent low income — almost exactly the mix in 1970.

5. Limiting private transport facilities to a maximum eight-lane freeway status for Highway 101 without a second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge; only two instead of three proposed ferryboat terminals, and no commercial use of Hamilton Air Force Base unless studies convince planners that it will avoid adverse impact on the environment. Mass transit would be encouraged.

The plan proposes departures from traditional government including revenue sharing between cities and the county, and banking land for future public agency use. He would limit utilities and other public services in presently undeveloped areas outside the eastern corridor and would establish a very different pattern of land use than is predicted under the free market concept.

The plan explans that once adopted, its provisions will become specific, official policy statements rather than the flexible guidelines that formerly were the rule in California planning efforts. This is a result of new state laws, which also will require the countywide plan be followed up by frequent review and enactment of five-year "action plans" to achieve the policies adopted.

"The functions of the City-County Planning Council should be expanded so that it can take on responsibility for countywide plan implementation," the draft reads. "It is clear that new organizational methods of coordination and review are essential if the goals of the countywide plan are to be achieved. Relying upon the 12 jurisdictions (11 cites and the county) acting independently will not do the job."

The draft suggests that "the 12-member jurisdictions would retain local autonomy, but subject to the overall guidance of CCPC. . .they would delegate some of their policy-making to CCPC as well as some of the responsibility for carrying out this policy."

The city-county planning council would have a countywide review agency to "review and act on public or private proposals of countywide or areawide importance," to set planning targets for the entire county and sub-area on housing, employment growth and open space acquisition for five-year periods, and to prepare an "action plan" every two years, proposing ways to achieve the planning targets.

In its preface, the general plan draft warns that it "expresses concerns of the people of Marin at a time when the environment is threatened," when living costs are driving moderate-income families away, and "when local government units, acting alone, are too fragmented to deal effectively with the resulting wide range of issues."

Diabetes: It Could Happen To You

By FRANK FARRARA

Marin County has about 6,000 diabetics under doctors' care and probably that many others walking around who don't know they have diabetes.

Susan Bellach, a lively 25-year-old San Rafael housewife, tossed out those figures the other day as she told of far-reaching plans to spread information about the disoder.

She is acting chairman-elect of the Marin County Diabetes Association, with headquarters in the Church in Ignacio.

"All of the county is just smothered with diabetes," although it has not received the attention given to heart disease, cancer and other illnesses, Mrs. Bellach said.

"Diabetes has been overlooked," said Sandra Glazunova of Greenbrae, founder and chairman of the association. "People in a wide range of ages are suffering and every age bracket has difficult problems."

Mrs. Bellach, a diabetic since she was 15, said through the association "all of us together can help each other." Particularly, she said, the experienced diabetics can aid the young.

The association seeks to create widespread interest in diabetes and to foster detection in order that people who have it and don't know it may start treatment, Mrs. Bellach said.

A major problem is "trying to reach the young diabetics who deny themselves the right to live a full life and are belligerent about it," she said.

Mother of a young son and active in sports, Mrs. Bellach hoped to convince youths they can "go back-packing or scuba diving and live a healthy long life."

Pessimism, rebelliousness and anger "are just as serious as lack of insulin" for a diabetic, she said. "There has to be perfect control of mind and body."

Medication, either insulin shots or drugs taken orally, food and exercise "have to go hand in hand," Mrs. Glazunova said.

Young people rebel when told "you cannot do this and you cannot do that" and "some refuse to go to school for a while," she said.

"There is a great deal of emotional trauma" and emotional support from the family is needed, said Mrs. Glazunova, whose husband and son are diabetic.

The association, with about 500 members, is operating on the principle that diabetics can learn from each other, Mrs. Bellach said. "Rather than sit and listen to doctors at meetings, diabetics can reach out to other diabetics."

"The idea is to set up day by day living and enjoy life and don't make an invalid out of yourself," she said.

Diabetes is hereditary, can strike at any age and cause serious complications if not treated, Mrs. Bellach said.

The usual signs of diabetes are excessive thirst, frequent urination, constant hunger, loss of weight, itching, tendency to tire easily, changes in vision and slow healing of cuts and scratches.

Persons most likely to have diabetes are relatives of diabetics, people more than 40 years of age and the overweight, she said.

As a precaution, Mrs. Bellach urged that residents get a diabetic checkup from a doctor or "go to a pharmacy and they will give you a diabetic detection test kit at no cost."

She hoped that diabetics, relatives of diabetics, nondiabetics and members of the medical profession could "get together and rap about diabetes."

The association will begin a series of educational meetings at its headquarters at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 28. Three diabetics and Margery Metzger, chief dietician at Marin General Hospital, will lead the discussion.

The group also is preparing a campaign to raise funds and enlist volunteer participation with the theme, "It Could Happen to You," Mrs. Bellach said.

Reading material at the association office ranges from comic books for children carrying information about diabetes to diabetic cookbooks.

"We want to show you can eat luscious things," Mrs. Bellach said. Long-range hopes are for an educational program, counseling, crisis services and attempts to meet the social and economic problems of diabetics.

Mrs. Bellach, who recalled "heartache in my family because of diabetes," said she at first experienced depression, but overcame it and hopes that she can serve as an example to some of the young people who have become discouraged.

"We have to reach the young ones. They are our future."

WOMEN WITH A CAUSE — Sandra Glazunova (left) and Susan Bellach, officers of the Marin County Diabetes Association, tackle the increasing chores at the association office in Ignacio. The association has embarked on a campaign to encourage increased public awareness of the disease, and to help diabetics deal with emotional problems.

Single Police Department On Agenda

The Marin County Council of Mayors and Councilmen will discuss establishment of a single countywide police department when it meets at 6:45 p.m. Sept. 27 in Caleruega Hall, Dominican College in San Rafael.

The longstanding proposal for the formation of one department to serve all municipalities and unincorporated communities in Marin was renewed by the Marin County Grand Jury in its final report for 1971-72.

According to San Anselmo Mayor Warren R. Perry, the group will form a committee to give the grand jury proposal closer scrutiny.

Also to be considered are recommendations by the Association of Bay Area Governments to consolidate solid waste disposal, and plans for the participation of Marin communities in the 1976 National Bicentennial.

Stull Bill Session

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board will hold a special meeting at 3:15 p.m. tomorrow at the Bolinas School to meet with teachers and staff members about the Stull Bill, curriculum matters and other issues.

Two Injured As Car Crashes Into House

Two persons suffered minor injuries Sunday night when a car crashed through a fence and into the rear of a Novato home after a two-car collision.

The car, driven by Karen Ann Goerndt, 17, of 7060 Redwood Highway, Novato, smashed a hole about five feet long and three feet high in the home of Lawrence A. Williams at 95 Sierra Vista.

Police had no estimate of the damage, but the fence was smashed, the exterior wall damaged and kitchen appliances moved about by the crash.

Police said the Goerndt car collided with a car driven by parks and recreation commissioner Geoffrey J. Bywater, 18, of 11 Brassie Court, Novato, at Novato Boulevard and Sierra Vista at 9:21 p.m.

The Goerndt car, which reportedly was trying to pass on the left of Bywater's car, then swerved into the Williams home, officers said.

Miss Goerndt, who suffered cuts of her nose and right ear, and her passenger, Lynn A. MacPherson, 17, of 8 Equestrian Court, Novato, who suffered bruises and scrapes of her right elbow, were treated at Novato General Hospital. Mrs. Williams was examined at the hospital and sent home.

Teacher, Parent Meetings Slated

Annual "Meet the Teacher" nights have been announced for schools in the Dixie School District, said Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

The meetings, all to start at 7:30 p.m., enable parents to become acquainted with teachers and to ask about the educational plans for the coming school year.

District schools which have set meeting dates are Lucas Valley School, Thursday; Vallecito and Miller Creek Junior High Schools, Sept. 26; Santa Margarita School, Oct. 3, and Mary E. Silveira School, Oct. 5.

GROOMING REGISTERED Morgan horse "Red Rogue," ranger Lynn Strong is preparing him for weekend patrol of the national seashore's trails. Ranger Lynn Strong rides horse patrol at Point Reyes National Seashore to help hikers in trouble, tell visitors about their park and do low-key law enforcement.

Lynn believes that she is the only woman on horse patrol for the National Park Service protection division.

Trained in first aid, she helps blistered and overloaded hikers on the trails and can radio, via a walkie-talkie strapped to her back, a ranger in a jeep to drive them out.

Stopping her Morgan horse en route during her four to five hour beat, Lynn chats with hikers and campers about the park's ecology and regulations, directs lost hikers, searches for missing children and radios the station to locate legal campsites for visitors.

Rangers patrolled in jeeps before the Morgan horse breeding farm opened at the park two years ago. Now three or four rangers are on horse patrol.

"PUBLIC RELATIONS are so much better when you are not coating hikers with dust. You are so approachable on horseback, people want to stop and talk. Naturally, they want to pet your horse," she said.

People really like seeing her on mounted patrol, according to Lynn. A woman waited ahead of her on the trail to say, "You work for the park? Fantastic!"

Hikers coming in from the trail report things to the district ranger, who then can radio Lynn. He may dispatch her to check on a reported fire or catch a runaway livery horse and find its fallen rider.

Lynn enjoys her work because "I love people. In the park service we give people services and protection." She has had no bad experiences.

"I have met some really wild hips. Here I came riding in as the authority. We rapped for a while. They ended up liking the park service more after having talked," she said.

She had to argue vehemently with one man about keeping his dog on a leash, but finally prevailed by quoting the statute verbatim. Dogs are now prohibited because visitors failed to leash them, she said.

Lynn rides horse patrol on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays when most of the 1,300,000 annual visitors use the park.

On weekdays she works in the visitors center — radio dispatching, keeping law enforcement records and filling out accident reports, accepting phone reservations and paying accounts. She is also clerk for a San Francisco magistrate concerning the park's citations.

"WE PATROL the scenic southern half of the park, one day riding Bear Valley and Sky trails, the next patrolling Glen and Coast trails and another day going to Lake Ranch. 'We' are the horse and I," said the expert horsewoman.

Most rangers, who have college and ranger training, previously had no experience with horses. Sometimes Lynn rides in pairs with them, since their young horses are in training.

"While we are training a horse we are also teaching a man to ride," said horse handler John Strong, Lynn's fathar. A former San Francisco lithographer, he came to the park a year after Lynn to work at the Morgan horse breeding farm. John, Lynn and other rangers give talks and riding demonstrations to groups of as many as 300 children about the farm which breeds and trains mounts for rangers in other national parks.

Five horses will soon be shipped to Haleakala National Park on Maui and Hawaii Volcanos National Park on Hawaii. Some have already gone to Sequoia National Park and Navajo National Monument in Arizona. Others will be shipped to Yosemite National Park to replace those destroyed in a recent barn fire.

Five are ridden on horse patrol. Each works only three days a week because people who meet the rangers want to pet the horse. If he were ridden more, he would become nervous, she said.

LYNN BEGAN riding at 4, and her father was president of Tamalpais Trail Riders for several years and the family participated in its activities while she was growing up.

The Strongs kept their horses near Fort Cronkite on one of several ranches leased by Boyd Stewart of Olema.

"We did cattle roundups on his ranches. I've been on roundups in hailstorms. I've given thousands of veterinarian shots and have done lots of branding," said Lynn.

"Once I helped take 120 loose horses 80 miles in the Sierra. Three of us kids were supposed to stay ahead of the herd with the lead mare. We took those horses through towns, through people's backyards and past their cars. We lost three.

"At a fork in the road we took the wrong turn and the lead mare took the right one. What a race to catch up! We jumped everything in our path," she said.

She got her first horse at 14, and got "Muscles" when she was 17. The Morgan's pictures hang in her brightly decorated cottage, which was the servants' quarters for the summer home on the original 8,000-acre Kelham ranch.

She shows Muscles English, Wstern and sidesaddle at Morgan Horse Club shows. With three other rangers Lynn rode as color guard at Golden West National Morgan Horse Show in Monterey this summer, where they "busted out" their mounts, galloping with flags flying.

"I used to come down from University of California at Davis just to be with my horse. I thought I wanted to be a veterinarian but it would have taken too long," she said.

WHEN SHE was graduated in anthropology two years ago she heard of a temporary job with the national park service. She became a clerk-typist, "earning practically nothing." She was used as a matron in law enforcement situatins. She dispatched 14 hours a day during the recent bay oil spill.

Next she was designated park technician, which is a low-grade ranger. She helped out at the horse farm, and when they became shorthanded on the horse patrol because the men were going to ranger school, Lynn kidded them that she wanted to ride.

"They knew I could. They let me. It worked out well; the public seemed to like it," said ranger Lynn.

Her only problem was clothes. She could have ridden in a blouse and jeans but people would not have known what she was. So without asking, she bought a man's park service uniform.

"It took me a couple of hours to cut it down to fit. When I appeared in the men's uniform the rangers seemed a little bit shocked," she said.

"I enjoy my rangers. They are great guys. They help me a lot, kid me a lot and keep me in my place," she said.

Because of the park's isolation, all Lynn's friends are park service personnel.

Most rangers are married; they couldn't stand the isolation otherwise. It takes a special type of woman to marry a ranger. She has to be tolerant when he is called out just as they are ready to sit down to dinner, Lynn said.

"I want to stay with the park service. Once you get used to it it would be hard to work any place else. It's a life, not a job," she said.

IN SECOND SEASON

Youth In Arts Series Starts

The second season of Youth in Arts, a series of performances for Marin school children, will begin Oct. 11 with a ballet concert by the Marin Civic Ballet Association.

The success of last year's performances has made it possible to offer Marin County students an enlarged program of cultural enrichment for the coming school year, according to Mrs. Robert P. Rimes of San Rafael.

Last year 26,799 kindergarten through eighth grade students saw the performances, sponsored by the Junior Theater of Marin, Marin Civic Ballet Association, Marin Symphony Association and the Marin Museum Association.

All performances will be held at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Youth in Arts is a non-profit venture operated by a board of directors composed of representatives of each of the sponsoring organizations. The program is run by volunteers from the Junior Theater, who serve as ushers at the performances.

So successful was last year's pilot program that a $10,000 grant was given Youth in Arts by the San Francisco Foundation. The money will provide seats for disadvantaged students. A minimum donation of 35 cents per seat is requested to defray expenses for other students, but since all reservations are made through Marin County schools in some cases the costs are absorbed by Parent-Teacher Associations.

Youth in Arts has an office in the new Marin Civic Ballet Association Building and has hired a parttime coordinator, Mrs. Helen Crotty.

The calendar also includes Oct. 26, Marin Shakespeare Festival's "The Wizard of Oz;" Nov. 6, Music for Minors "Carnival of Animals;" Nov. 21, San Rafael High School Jazz Ensemble's "What is Jazz?"; Dec. 6, American Conservatory Theater Young Conservatory's "Mr. Scrooge;" Jan. 11, Marin Youth Orchestra's "Twentieth Century Music;" Feb. 6, Western Opera Theater's "La Cenerentola;" Feb. 15, Music for Minors "Babar the Elephant," Feb. 21, Theater Flamenco's "Spanish Music;" Feb. 27, Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts' "Gretchen and the Goblin;" March 13, Prince Charles Junior Bagpipe Bank, "Bagpipe Concert;" March 20, Masque Unite, Junior Theater of Marin's "Wicked Witch of Endor;" March 27, Mike Conway of West Marin School "Art Spectacular;" April 5, Terra Linda High School drama and music departments' "Fiddler on the Roof;" April 10, California State University, San Francisco Theater Arts Department's "Story Theater;" and May 11 Pacific Regional Ballet Association's "Pacific Ballet Festival."

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Mother, Daughter Feel Better When Jealous Father Leaves

RAP:

Ever since I can remember, my mother has taken me along shopping, to women's parties and other things she goes to without my father. I wondered why Dad would ask me questions like "Did you stay there the whole time?" etc., and then when I was about 13 I realized it was because he was so awfully jealous of Mom that he made her take me along as a "spy." Later, I asked her why she put up with it and she said it was the only way she could get out of the house.

Well, from then on I didn't go with Mom, except to showers where I was specifically invited. She'd drop me off at a friend's and pick me up later, then brief me on the way home so I'd know what to tell Dad. She did the same for me when I started dating, because he raised Cain about boyfriends and wanted me "chaperoned."

It wasn't right, lying like that, but if you knew my Dad, you'd understand it was the only way. He would go into such a mad fit, he wouldn't speak for days, and "get even" in crazy ways like breaking something Mom loved or tearing up one of her favorite dresses. Once he even gave away our dog, after Mom danced twice with the husband of a friend.

Mom kept all this from me as long as she could, but after she poured it all out, we tried to help each other.

Well, we got careless, and Dad found out. I was really with my boyfriend the night he "dropped in" to see Mom (and me) at a women's party. It was a wild scene, when we all got home, with him accusing us of terrible acts, and us finally telling him exactly how much we resented his jealousy and distrust.

So then he left, and it's been a week and he hasn't been back. Helen and Sue, I feel guilty saying it, but this has been the most peaceful week of my life, and I think Mom feels happier too.

This morning he called and said if we'd apologize and promise to straighten up, he'd come home. He doesn't even see he drove us into deceit. Neither of us has done anything we're ashamed of. He's given us a month to come crawling. Please what would you two say? — FINALLY FREE AT 17

FINALLY FREE:

If we felt as relieved as you and your mother apparently do, we'd say, "Don't come back, sir, unless you can leave this pathological jealousy behind or at least in the hands of a therapist."

You erred when you began sneaking to avoid scenes. Possibly it's too late now for a change, but unless your father makes a try, and you two will help, this family may be better off separated. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I'm a 16-year-old girl and have a great guy. We both agree we're not ready for sex — we want good clean fun — but my parents obviously think differently.

If I'm dressing and Jim arrives, Mom sends him into my bedroom (or tries to). If we're at a swim party, Dad nudges Jim, mentions my 36-23-36 figure and smirks "You could sure have fun with that, huh?" This makes Jim feel dirty, so he says, "I'm not that kind," and Dad says, "I just don't understand you kids!"

Or when Jim comes over to play cards, Dad says to Mom, "Come on Irene, let's go to bed so the kids can get on with their hanky-panky."

Honest, we don't want to. What's so uncool (to my father) about wanting to stay a virgin? — NICOLE

DEAR NICOLE:

You've gotta be kidding! But just in case you aren't jivin' us, here's a word to your folks: "Trot back to your own generation and stop playing the hip parents. This stuff makes no points with kids!" — SUE

DEAR NICOLE:

Sudden thought: Maybe your Dad is kidding — like with reverse psychology that will keep your "No's clean," because you don't buy his embarrassing "Yes's." (Improbable, but then some fathers aren't too bright.)

. . .Or maybe your parents pride themselves on being terribly modern, when in reality they're just terribly unaware. — HELEN

Modular Furniture Has A Renaissance

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

The growing need for furniture flexibility has inspired a renaissance in sectional or modular furniture. It seems foolish to say renaissance when the idea of modularity is such a recent one. But actually the firsttime around, this concept seemed a bit too boxy and clinical for most homeowners.

The new breed of sectionals fits more gracefully into the plans of the family that likes a country look or a free, eclectic mix. And they're as great for the 20th-Century gypsy as for the stay-puts.

I've frequently voiced a dislike for dead-end seating arrangements. You know, the kind that completely locks a person in on three sides. But Ido think the U-shaped and closed grouping is a great solution for a center-of-the-room location.

SOME AMATEUR furniture arrangers (that includes most of us) find it hard to get their furnishings away from the wall. Major and minor pieces still cling to the perimeter of the room, securely nudged up against a protective wall. Are we afraid to be free and exposed out in the middle of a space? Actually we'd probably use natural light sources better, if we started thinking more realistically.

For example, the sofa that settles against a long windowless wall never gets an even distribution of light. Consequently the person sitting on it must use the left or right corner of the sofa, somewhere near the lamp table. That puts unusual stress on the upholstery. All the weight and wear then occurs at the two extremities.

The grouping shown today is a nice example of how the U-shaped arrangement works in a medium-size room. The main entrance is o the near side of the library table, so grouping is faced away from the door. Just off the area rug is another loose arrangement of game table and chairs. The only true wall pieces are the storage brackets made of beautifully finished wood. The solution was created by Duke Piner, AID.

WRAPAROUND, WALKAROUND — The nice thing about this setting by Duke Piner, AID, is how he created two islands of comfort for various activities, yet nothing clings to the walls as in the ordinary room setting. Traffic can flow around the main conversation and play areas.

Pinches And Dashes Are Important

A secret pinch of this and an extra dash of that is the way most cooks finish off their favorite recipe.

If you admire their cooking and ask for the recipe, it's those last little finishing touches that never show up on the recipe card they give you.

You can follow the recipe to a "T" but never can quite duplicate that subtle flavor or aroma.

Famous chefs will often admit to that secret pinch or dash, but you'll never find out what it is.

However, these same chefs will also insist that the secret pinch or dash is the same every time and the accurate measurement of ingredients is the most important step in cooking.

HIS CAMPAIGN IS OVER

Susan Brophy, 19-year-old wife of State Assemblyman Bill Brophy, wiped away tears yesterday in Los Angeles as her husband announced he is discontinuing his campaign for congress. Emotional stress resulting from a fatal accident in which Mrs. Brophy was involved forced Brophy to cut short the campaign, although his name will remain on the ballot.

Board Of Education Meets Over Ruling

Marin County Board of Education members went into a long closed session last night with Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino about a court's ruling that it must pay the attorney's fee and costs for a suit against it.

But board members emerged and said nothing at all about Marin Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick's order that it pay $500 fees and court costs to Sausalito attorney A. Leonard Bjorklund who filed on behalf of Pieter Toal to get the names of candidates for board vacancies released.

Asst. Supt. Robert E. Spain said board members were closeted with Godino "for a very long time but made no statement when they emerged."

The board announced the names of two people recommended for appointment to the county Schools Personnel Commission and set a public hearing on the actual appointments for Oct. 25, at 8 p.m. postponing its Oct. 17 meeting to coincide with the date.

Spain said Juanita Turner of 1470 Pastel Lane, Novato, has been recommended by the classified employees' organizations.

$865,000 Awarded In Airplane Death

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A superior court jury last night awarded $865,000 damages to the family of Los Ranchitos attorney Steven J. Dedina III, who was killed when his light plane crashed into a Peacock Gap hillside April 18, 1970.

Trial required five weeks for the wrongful death suit originally seeking $3 million from Spectrum Air Inc. of Novato, part of the William Penn Patrick corporate empire aircraft mechanic Leroy Rusch of Novato and others.

Attorneys for Dedina's widow, Sandra, 36, of 22 Knoll Way, Los Ranchitos, and four children, charged that faulty and negligent repairs has been made at the Novato aircraft firm to trim tab and elevator controls on Dedina's plane. It crashed three minutes after he took off from the Smith Ranch airstrip, narrowly missing a dozen Peacock Gap homes.

Other defendants including Bellanca Corp., the plane's maker; Holiday Magic Inc. of San Rafael and others, were dismissed from the case in earlier hearings.

Mrs. Dedina's attorneys, Vincent R. Ruocco and James Boccardo of San Jose, reported that they had turned down an offer for a $750,000 settlement before the case went to the eight-man, four-woman jury on Friday.

Oft-Arrested Drug User Gets Probation

Despite pessimism by a probation officer, a Marin Superior Court judge yesterday gave probation to a long-time drug user who sold drugs to an agent two months after his release from prison.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner placed Willard Homer Hammond, 37, of Gate 6, Waldo Point, on probation for five years and ordered him to spend six months in jail.

Deputy probation officer Jesse W. Johnson said Hammond showed "absolutel no interest in our program" but said everything else had been tried on Hammond, who was first arrested for possessing heroin in 1954 and has had seven subsequent drug arrests.

The last arrest was in December 1971 on a warrant charging him with selling 2.8 grams of heroin to an undercover agent for $60 in June 1971.

He pleaded guilty to the felony sale charge in July.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Vernon Smith, claiming Hammond's record is "atrocious," recommended state prison, but Gardiner replied "I'm satisfied he is not really a villain, a person trying to harm society."

The judge noted that even a prison term for possession of heroin failed to change Hammond. "These things aren't doing him any good," the judge said of past sentences.

He said he found a hypodermic kit in her purse and half a lid of marijuana in her luggage.

Miss Campbell was booked into Marin County Jail in lieu of $1,500 on suspicion of possessing marijuana, being in a place where drugs are used and having drug equipment.

Political Polls' Effect Disputed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two educators testified today there is no evidence that polls create a bandwagon effect on voters if a political candidate is found to be significantly more popular than his opponent.

Dr. Charles K. Atkin of Michigan State University and Dr. Harold Mendelsohn of the University of Denver outlined their views for a House subcommittee studying the effect of polls on elections, policymaking and political fund raising.

Subcommittee Chairman Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., has proposed legislation to require disclosure of the sponsor of a poll that is made public, the size of the sample and other information such as whether it was taken by telephone, mail or in personal interviews.

Public opinion pollsters, said Nedzi, should disclose enough information so the public may "evaluate a particular poll, and also to provide those who feel aggrieved by the results a basis for questioning and challenging them."

Mendelsohn, a communications professor and leadoff witness, said there is a "healthy form of skepticism" about polls, partly because of misinterpretations of the poll results by journalists.

"Despite charges that published poll results and election forecasts based on polls act to persuade voters to climb on the bandwagon of projected winners, I have found no empirically sound evidence to substantiate the concern as it relates to significant proporations of the electorate," said Mendelsohn.

He said the complex factors in deciding to vote for a candidate include social background, interest in politics, the issues, records of the candidates, group affiliation and partisanship.

Poll results may have influence on the decisions "of miniscule numbers of voters," according to Mendelsohn, but "their power in the face of the tremendous barrages of bold, unabashed propaganda that candidates customarily unleash in their campaigns appears to faint indeed."

Atkin agreed "there is no evidence of a simplistic 'bandwagon effect' on the electorate," but he said many voters refer to the preference of others in arriving at their final decision.

"The poll may show the candidate's strength as greater or lesser than anticipated," said Atkin, "and this discrepancy yields a 'relativemajority' that may be favorable, unfavorable, or merely in accordance with expectations."

New Novato Plan Nearing Reality

By FRANK FARRARA

Nearly a year in the making, a new Novato area general plan, designed to maintain the city's rural-suburban environment, is approaching public hearings and adoption.

The plan, first to be entirely developed locally, will succeed the 1966 Novato area general plan prepared by the Marin County Planning Department.

Copies of the proposed plan, recommended by city planning staff, have been distributed for public view and comment, and the city planning commission is expected to begin public hearings next month.

Included are policies governing noise, natural hazards, conservation, housing and scenic highways — all elements not covered in past plans.

While the housing committee pushed for a strong policy to provide low and moderate income housing, protesting residents said they didn't want Novato to become the low and moderate income housing center in Marin.

Under the proposed policy, Novato would have as much low and moderate income housing as necessary "to satisfy the needs of those persons who reside or work in Novato."

"Novato's role shall be balanced with other cities of the county to avoid a concentration of low or moderate income housing in any one area of the county," according to the proposed plan.

Regarding land use, the plan "is far more restrictive on land use possibilities than the 1966 plan," the staff reported.

Development thus far has occupied most of the flatland of Novato and Ignacio valleys. The land still vacant "generally" is either hilly, below sea level or in small parcels, the planning staff reported.

Under the plan, land about 200 feet elevation, the Lower Novato Creek flood plain, marshes and lands north of Gnoss Field "generally" wouldn't be put to urban use but would be used for agricultural and light recreation purposes "unless it is found to be in the public interest to change their status."

On the problem of noise from military planes, trucks along Highway 101, general traffic and trains, the plan calls for reducing the impact of such transportation noise.

Noise levels will increase with increased population and, "since trucks are the noisiest vehicles, increased industry and commerce will tend to increase the noise still more," the planning staff reported.

As proposed, noise zones would be established designating acceptable and unacceptable areas for homes.

Near Hamilton Air Force Base, where commercial flights might be added to existing military flights, noise exposure would be a factor in making decisions on land use.

"If it becomes necessary to plan for commercial aircraft use of Hamilton Air Force Base, the city will evaluate noise impact based on a maximum level of use, rather than evaluating noise from the proposed initial uses," the staff said.

In areas where there are geological hazards such as landslides, ground settlement or earthquakes, building would be prohibited or permitted only on analysis of the specific site.

Listed as earthquake areas are 500 feet on either side of Mount Burdell Fault, from the mountain to San Pablo Bay, and the San Antonio Creek watershed.

Designated as landslide areas are the hillsides between Indian Valley and Mount Burdell faults and "on and around the old landslides between Big Rock Ridge and the Indian Valley Fault."

To achieve open space, the plan proposes integration with other systems, state, regional or county, and calls for "every urban development" to contribute to the open space system either by dedication or money, or both.

Under the plan the city would permit agricultural preserves within the city, keeping land in agricultural use with accompanying lower tax rate.

As proposed, the routing of Highway 37 westward to Point Reyes National Seashore would be on the north side of Mount Burdell rather than through Novato Valley, as previously contemplated.

The staff also recommended that the city seek to have the state designate Highway 37 as a scenic highway, both along the present route and along any westerly extension.

Young Dancers Set For Australia Trip

Novato's Scott Fetterly and Karen Keller will fly next Monday night to Australia to represent the western U.S. in world ballroom dancing competition, thanks to the generosity of Marin residents — and particularly William Penn Patrick.

Patrick, president of Holiday Magic, yesterday bought the young couple their round-trip airplane tickets to Australia, thus assuring they will be able to make the trip.

Mrs. Ronald Keller, Karen's mother, reported that other contributions and proceeds of fund-raising events total $801, ample for expenses aside from plane fares. This includes $154.60 contributed by fellow employees and owners of the Independent-Journal, where Scott's father, Ralph Fetterly, is employed as machinist.

Scott and Karen got the chance to go to the competition "down under" by amassing more points in Latin-style ballroom dancing than any other couple in contests sponsored by the U.S. Amateur Ballroom Dancers Association. In Sydney, Australia, they will compete against winning dancers from other nations around the globe during the first week of October.

They will leave from San Francisco International Airport Monday at 9 p.m. by Qantas Airlines.

While receiving, the young dancers proved also that they can give to others. They presented a demonstration at a fund-raising event for the Diabetes Foundation Sunday at the Church in Ignacio, but refused a share of the proceeds offered to help in their trip, insisting it should all go to help research on diabetes.

McGovern Policies Draw Meany String

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—AFL-CIO President George Meany made his strongest attack yet on Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern Monday, calling his economic policies antilabor and his backers unwashed intellectuals and homosexuals.

Speaking to the convention of the United Steelworkers of America, Meany said the Democratic convention that nominated McGovern did not give organized labor its proper voice, and instead:

"We listened to the gay lib people ... We listened to the abortion people, we listened to the people who looked like jacks, acted like jills and had the odor of johns."

Reportedly fighting back against pressures within the labor movement in favor of McGovern, Meany described delegates to the convention as "the so-called intellectual elite," saying 39 per cent of the delegates had postgraduate college experience, and 31 per cent came from families with incomes of more than $25,000 a year.

"But the working people are the backbone of the American economy, and the working people will not be bypassed or shunted aside by the so-called intellectual elite or any other elite."

Meany said that while the economic policies of Nixon and those advocated by McGovern "may differ here and there on details, they agree on controls and compulsion for workers, but they leave the fat-cat coupon-cutters alone."

He said McGovern favors "more guideline on workers' wages but no controls on food."

McGovern Campaign Lags —May Buy Television Time

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern may get off the campaign trail next week in an effort to pep up his lagging campaign for the presidency with a nationwide television talk to the American people.

McGovern's advisers said the Democratic presidential nominee, disturbed by his inability to communicate with the people through the news media, was "seriously considering" dropping off the campaign trail for a few days to return to Washington at midweek and purchase television time for a direct talk to the people.

Down 34 percentage points in the polls, McGovern scheduled appearances in four cities today —Chicago, Milwaukee, Flint, Mich., and Columbus, Ohio—in a continuation of his effort to reach as many "media markets"—areas covered by local television stations and newspapers — as physically possible.

In a statement issued in Chicago today, McGovern—a minister's son-endorsed the support of private and parochial schools with taxpayer funds, a position to which he has been leaning for several weeks.

He said he backed legislation pending in the House to provide income tax credits for parents who send their children to nonpublic schools.

McGovern announced, after several weeks of deliberation, that he backed legislation to provide a tax write-off for parents who send their children to nonpublic schools.

Atlhough the Supreme Court has not yet ruled whether such tax credits would be consistent with the Constitution's church-state separation provisions, McGovern said the direction of the court's opinions indicated they eventually would.

McGovern's statement was a bid for the support of the nation's Catholic voters who have been cool to him. Some big city leaders with large Catholic constituencies have long urged McGovern to take a firm stand for public aid to the Catholic schools—many of them in dire financial straits.

McGovern's top aides feel he hasn't been able to communicate his complex ideas for changing American society through the regular news channels and needs a crack at a nationwide audience to convey his ideas directly.

Government Recalls 2 Million Vitamins

SUN VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration has ordered the recall of 2 million vitamin pills manufactured by Strong Cobb Arner Inc., it was nnounced during the weekend.

The FDA said the pills contain Amorbarbitol, a sedative that can cause a dangerous reaction if taken by heavy drinkers or those with some lung ailments. Last month the government ordered the recall of another large batch of vitamins manufactured by the same firm.

Three Killed As Train Hits Auto

MODESTO (UPI)—Three persons were killed Monday night when a Southern Pacific train struck a car broadside about four miles south of here, the California Highway Patrol said.

A CHP spokesman said three adults believed to be from Southern California were killed instantly when the train struck the car and carried it for almost a mile before coming to a stop.

Authorities worked for about two hours to rescue the victims from the car.

More Cooperation Asked In River Park Development

The Petaluma City Council last night called for better cooperation between the city and Sonoma County in developing Shollenberger River Park.

The council called for a special study by the recreation, music and parks commission to see where negotiations stand on developing the 20-acre park adjacent to the city boat-launch ramp off Lakeville Highway.

The county has appropriated $34,000 for development of four acres of the park and has applied for a $25,000 federal grant. If approved, the funds would provide picnic areas, lay equipment, landscaping on the four acres and fencing of the 20-acre area to protect children from the drainage ditch, Petaluma River and railroad track.

The council said definite arrangements must be made for the remaining 16 acres of the park.

Councilmen said that if the county did not plan to commit further funds, the land should be turned over to the city for development.

Little League baseball and soccer leagues have offered to develop a portion of the park if they can have exclusive rights to the playing fields.

The council said it also was concerned that the county may put a two-year limit for the city to develop the remainder of the park and that funds may not then be available if work also is to continue at Miwok Valley and Lucchesi Parks.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

DEMOLITION — Was told it will cost $1,300 to demolish a substandard city-owned house at 303 Post Street and an estimated $5,000 to make the house livable enough to rent.

BUSES — Directed a letter to William R. Lucius, Sonoma County representative to the Golden Gate Bridge District board, asking that at least one bus be assigned to serve commuters in East Petaluma and that a study be done on possible commuter parking lots.

CITATION — Received a 1971 pedestrian safety citation from American Automobile Association.

BUILDING — Heard that 16 developers have submitted requests for 3,013 living units for 1973-74. The development control board will recommend which may be built under the 500-unit limit for the year.

PROTEST — Asked that a resolution be prepared protesting action by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors to charge all costs of the June water bond election to the county water department. The council said it would result in increased water rates and that the election cost should be borne by all residents.

ADJOURNED — Met in closed session to consider an appointment to the planning commission and adjourned to Monday at 7 p.m. to continue consideration.

McGovern Gets ILWU Support

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union executive committee endorsed Sen. George McGovern Monday but said the Democratic presidential nominee would have to be kept under "constant pressure" if elected.

The independent union, with about 50,000 longshoremen, warehouse, sugar and pineapple workers on the West Coast and in Hawaii, said the pressure on McGovern would be necessary to secure the interests of the working man.

The endorsement of McGovern was foreshadowed by ILWU leader Harry Bridges who earlier referred to the South Dakota senator's record on labor issues.

Major Crime In S.F. Decreases

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—During the first eight months of this year, major crimes decreased by 20 per cent in San Francisco, Police Chief Donald M. Scott reported Monday.

There were 39,376 such crimes in the first eight months of last year compared to 31,410 during the same period this year.

The largest decrease was in burglaries — 9,574 compared with 12,461.

The breakdown, with 1971 figures first: Rapes, 378 and 378; homicides 71 and 56; robberies, 4,570 and 2,942; aggravated assault 2,068 and 1,854; larceny, 10,914 and 8,946; auto theft, 8,914 and 7,660.

BEST IN THE COUNTRY

Marin's Young Racing Champion

By PAT PERRY

After two years' racing quarter midget cars 10-year-old Chris Cook of Larkspur has collected trophies that far outweigh his slender body.

Last month Chris became Senior Rigid Stock Champion of the U.S. and Senior Modified Stock Champion of the U.S. at the Grand National of Quarter Midgeting in Huntsville, Ala., the first child in the sport's history to win both races at a grand national.

Chris, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Cook of 170 Piedmont Court, Larkspur, is in fifth grade at Larkspur-Corte Madera School, but he said that not many of his classmates know he's a U.S. champion "because I haven't told them."

He entered the fast-growing sport by taking training classes at a Hayward track on Saturday mornings, then raced in novice classes before entering senior classes after his ninth birthday.

He races most Sundays from February through November, and this year's championship at Huntsville was his thrid grand national.

His mother, Jennie Cook, explained that the quarter-midgets have a four cycle continental engine like that in a lawnmower with the car's minimum weight at 150 pounds. They have to be pushed to start, and aren't considered dangerous to the child drivers.

"The children must wear seat belts, leather or vinyl jackets and gloves, crash helmets and the cars are fitted with roll bars or cages. The worst I've ever seen are cuts," she said, "although there's quite a bit of bumping in races. I'm more worried about him riding his bike in Larkspur than in his cars on the track."

Chris said the cars travel at around 30 miles an hour, but he's driven as fast as 55 miles an hour in the "A" class.

Chris owns two quarter-midget cars, which are meticulously maintained by his father, plant manager at the Dr. Pepper bottling company in San Francisco.

The qaurter-midgets start with a stock engine of 7.5 horsepower, which is modified up to 13 horsepower. The cars are raced "suspended" or "rigid" — in which case the axle is made rigid with resultant slower speeds.

Homemade cars can cost as little as $150, said Mrs. Cook, but purchased cars like Chris's pair can cost anywhere from $300 to $1,000.

"The engine has to be stock to ithin thousandths of an inch tolerance," explained Mrs. Cook, "and the winners' cars' engines are torn down after each race to make sure."

There were 443 entries at the grand national from 50 states, said Mrs. Cook, and the sport has a reputation of keeping close family ties, since generally fathers maintain their offsprings' cars while mothers work alongside the track and come in for their share of push starts.

And how did Chris become the fastest 10-year-old on wheels in the United States?

"I guess it's because my dad works so hard on the cars," he said modestly.

Toliver Hired For New Post

James T. Toliver Jr., controversial Sausalito educator, has been hired as director of the Oakland Street Academy, a federally funded educational program for youngsters unable to function successfully in public schools.

Last night the Sausalito School District board granted him a leave of absence from teaching duties for the remainder of the 1972-73 school year.

The 37-year-old Toliver, who is teaching fourth grade in Sausalito this year, will begin the new $21,000-a-year job tomorrow.

In is new post he will direct formulation of the academy — now in the planning stages. The program is funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and administered by the Bay Area Urban League which originally proposed the alternative school system.

Toliver said the academy will eventually include three schools with approximately 300 students, many of them dropouts from public schools. "The academy will attempt to direct these students back to academic and vocational pursuits," he said.

Toliver's five-year career in Sausalito schools has been a stormy one.

When Walton was fired in May of 1970, Toliver was named special assistant for the district, then was himself dismissed in May of 1971. At that time the school district board charged him with "unprofessional conduct, disruption of school district activities" and "interfering with the purposes and processes of school discipline."

He appealed the firing in Marin Superior Court and was reinstated — as a teacher — by the school board in February of this year, a week before the case was to go to court.

He taught first grade last year and was assigned to fourth grade for 1972-73. His current salary in the district is $14,000.

Bagley Speech Blasts Prop. 14

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Passage of Proposition 14 on the November ballot "could impair California's business climate for decades," Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said today.

The measure's sharp cuts in local government's property tax revenue probably would force local taxes on gas, water and electricity, thus driving up the cost of manufacturing, he predicted.

Speaking before some 300 unity and shipping line employees at the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. auditorium, Bagley appealed to California businessmen to join labor in opposing the proposition. Utility taxes were local government's only alternative for new tax revenue, he said.

Business also would face a threat from the Legislature, according to Bagley, because the $1.3 billion deficit imposed by the proposition would increase pressure to hike the tax rate on business property. Assessing business property at a rate higher than that for residential property "will slit many business throats," Bagley said.

He also predicted the proposition would encourage more local governments to take over private utilities as a new sources of revenue. "If you want to help socialize the power industry, you should love the Watson Initiative (Proposition 14)," he said.

The proposition, drafted by Los Angeles County Assessor Phillip Watson, would cut property taxes by about 40 per cent and shift the financing of welfare and education to the state.

Supervisor Blasts Stamp Test Story

Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum lashed out today at the Independent-Journal for what he called a "shabby trick" in reporting laxity in the administration of the county's food stamp program.

He charged that the I-J "took advantage of the humanitarian instincts of the (welfare) department" when a reporter — assigned by the city editor to masquerade as an unwed mother — applied for and received $64 ic food stamps.

Wornum's verbal blast came as the board of supervsiors ordered its staff to prepare a report on the number of fraudulent food stamp cases found since the program began and to develop "cost figures" for staffing the welfare department to check every applicant.

(Currently, only a portion of food stamp applicants are investigated by the department on a random sampling basis.)

Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella estimated it would require between 30 and 47 additional investigators to check every food stamp recipient at a cost of about $250,000 more per year.

"There's no question she (I-J reporter Marlene Freedman) would have been caught," Wornum said, adding the story "was not fearless reporting."

As reported last week, Miss Freedman applied for and received food stamps in a period of about 20 minutes and the following day returned them to stunned welfare officials.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, who told the board the masquerade had been referred to the district attorney's office for possibly perjury violations, supported the welfare department's action in giving the stamps.

"The tenor of the welfare law is to give aid immediately and check (the recipient) later," he said.

"I think we should encourage the district attorney to have the guts and go against the paper (I-J)," Wornum said, adding however "I doubt if anything will happen."

Wornum was backed by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste who said Miss Freedman should be prosecuted the same as anyone else who files a false application for food stamps.

Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said he would make no recommendation on prosecution since that was the responsibility of the district attorney.

Sword Attack Woman Is Committed

A crew-cut woman who wounded a fellow employee in a Sausalito shop with a samurai sword has been committed for 90 days to the California Institute for Women at Frontera for study of what sentence she should receive.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court ordered the temporary commitment of Frances Gail Simpson, 29, after she pleaded guilty to a charge of stabbing Norman Williams, 20, a shop steward at Heath Ceramics.

The attack took place Aug. 4, but she was not captured until the next day in Mill Valley.

She originally pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, but psychiatrists found her legally sane although psychotic. Her guilty plea was on the condition her sanity not be questioned.

Agency Addition Called Illegal

A proposal that Corte Madera's Redevelopment Agency composed of the five town councilmen be augmented by two appointed lay members was called illegal last night by Town Atty. Albert Bianchi. (Another Corte Madera council story, page 1.)

The request from the Mariner Cove Improvement Assn., was becked by lone councilman Robert J. Flahive, but mayor Holmes S. Norville and councilman Harold B. Wagstaff said they disliked the idea of mixing elected and appointed representatives on one board.

The association's board of directors made the request last week after deciding that agency action would strongly affect school tax bases. "The Redevelopment Agency's going to have a major impact on the economics and character of the town's future development," said association vice president Philip O. Sasso from the audience. "Fantastic amounts of money are involved, up to $6 million."

"To put this in the hands of a council that may be out in one and a half years is toying with danger."

And he warned Mayor Holmes S. Norville, and Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff and the absent Councilman Edward W. Colthurst that all three of them had been threatened with recall this year.

Town Atty. Albert Bianchi stated that a redevelopment agency could be five or seven appointed members, or the town council, but not a mixture of appointees and councilmen, so the suggestionwas illegal. It would be possible, he said, to have additional non-voting appointed members.

Mayor Norville said that "by the time the next election comes around the decisions relative to the redevelopment will have been made," and Councilman Wagstaff said he disapproved of mixing elected and appointed representatives. "A monolithic group does a better job," he said.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

QUARRY SITE — Set a public hearing on rezoning the Quarry Site to Oct. 16 at 8 p.m., after receiving a $3,000 report from Sedway and Cooke paid for by American Savings and Loan Association, which intends to develop the site. The public hearing will be on rezoning it from R-4 to either R-1, R-1A, R-2 (recommended by Sedway and Cooke), R-3, or S-study district.

ORDINANCES — Adopted ordinances amending the electrical code, establishing a study zone classification, setting overtime and Saturday holidays.

LAGOON — Approved setting up an assessment district to reconstruct the control gates on Lagoon No. 1; total bond issue is estimated at $15,000 with the town paying half.

TENNIS COURTS — Approved plans and specifications for the tennis courts at Granada School, and called for opening bids Sept. 29 at 10 a.m.; the plans subject to added review by the planning commission after commissioners David I. Freed and John W. Gates complained from the audience that they had never seen the whole plan.

SANITARY COMMISSIONER — Appointed Steven L. Saxe of 40 Windward Drive to a vacant seat on the Sanitary Commission; an attorney, Saxe is president of the Hilldwellers Assn.

Students Tell Truth On Lying

The poll was conducted by Dr. Bernard Cosneck and his research assistant, Nancy Lockington. They asked 491 VSC students whether they had ever told a lie, and 490 of them said they had.

Cosneck said the "biggest cause for lying was the fear of punishment for 31.3 per cent of the students. The next most mentioned cause was the wish to avoid hurting someone, 24.3 per cent. And the third largest cause was the desire to avoid a disagreeable situation, 18.3 per cent."

Cash Taken

A thief took two cash bags containing $700 and a pair of $35 binoculars after forcing the rear door of McArthur's Bar, 218 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, sometime yesterday, police reported today.

Teachers Ask Budget Restoration

The Ross School District Teachers Association asked last night that $5,000 lopped earlier from the district's 1972-73 budget be restored for instructors' salaries.

The funds had been declared surplus by Ross School District trustees last month when they adopted a $617,581 spending program. The $5,000 was the difference between the salary of Rena Safford, a kindergarten teacher who retired after 23 years at Ross School, and her replacement.

Supt. Thomas A. Anderson said the board didn't take action on the association's request because the matter wasn't on the agenda. Adding the $5,000 also would involve alteration of the teachers' salary schedule, Anderson said.

The board also took its first look at recommended eacher job descriptions advised under a state law requiring evaluation of instructional performance. After a lengthy discussion between board members and faculty, according to Anderson, the recommendations were left for a year's trial before adoption by the board.

The Ross School District board also:

LEGISLATION — Agreed with the intent to form a legislative committee through the Marin County School Boards Association.

SAFFORD — Postponed renaming the Ross School District Trustee Scholarship Award in honor of Mrs. Safford, pending reevaluation of student qualifications and the purpose of the award.

GIFT — Accepted $1,400 in video tape equipment from the Ross School Parent-Teacher Association, which raised enabling funds through a variety show.

TRANSFER — Denied permission for third grade student Jeffrey Wynne to attend Kentfield schools because of uncertainty over the residential status of his parents.

MEETING — Is due to meet next on Oct. 16.

Television Watcher Shoots It Out

Gordon Daly of Apartment 15, Meadowsweet Motel, Corte Madera, reported to police that he had pulled his .38 caliber pistol from its holster while watching television on Sept. 1.

"And it went off killing his TV set. The only problem is the T.V. is owned by the motel and he's out $120," stated a late written report by Corte Madera police yesterday.

'Nobody Interested' In School Problem

The question of a school site for children of Madera del Presidio town house purchasers is of no concern to the Corte Madera Town Council, councilmen decided last night, and neither is the problem of getting water to the site.

In fact, said Mayor Holmes S. Norville, nobody is interested in assuming the responsibility of designating a school site, "but Mill Valley is stuck with it."

The council considered a letter from Mill Valley School District — described by Town Atty. Albert Bianchi as "a remarkable exercise in generalities" — in which it said it was unlikely to build a school in Corte Madera, and couldn't promise bus service for pupils to its nearest school at Strawberry Point.

Councilman Robert J. Flahive suggested the problem could be solved "if we told the developer he couldn't build until he worked it out," but his point got no support.

Planning Commissioner David I. Freed told the council that conditions in design review applications could include telling prospective purchasers "that their children wouldn't be going to the nice modern school down the road."

His suggestion was much more warmly received, and councilmen voted unanimously to direct the Planning Commission that part of the covenants entailed in the Madera del Presidio development permission "be a statement that the Mill Valley School District is the elementary school diyrict, and the distance to the school be so specified."

Later in the meeting commissioner Freed asked if Corte Madera's emergency building moratorium would affect the building permit scheduled to be issued soon to the high density housing development.

He also questioned the effect if the Marin Municipal Water District should refuse a water hookup to the project.

Mayor Norville said the moratorium specifically excluded Madera del Presidio, "and it's my understanding it is the obligation of the MMWD to provide water."

Councilman Flahive added: "We're going to have a good development — no schools and no water."

Public works director Arthur N. Morrison said that the town won't issue a building permit until the water is guaranteed.

Tennis Club First-Phase Plans Pass

The Novato Planning Commission last night approved precise development plans for the first phase of the Olive Ridge tennis club complex at Olive Avenue and Deer Island Lane.

In the first phase, Attillio Quartaroli, a San Francisco contractor, plans to build 10 tennis courts, a swimming pool and a golf pro shop.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

APARTMENTS — Approved precise development plans by International Concrete Systems Consultants Inc. for a 32-unit apartment project on 2.3 acres on the south side of Rowland Boulevard, midway between Leafwood Drive and South Novato Boulevard.

DIABLO TRIANGLE — Denied a request by International Concrete Systems Consultants Inc. to amend the South Diablo Triangle master plan to permit 83 apartment units on 2.27 acres on the east side of Diablo Avenue, south of Warner Creek.

SIGN ORDINANCE — Continued indefinitely discussion on proposed revision of the city's sign ordinance submitted by the Downtown Merchants Association and the planning staff.

MEETINGS — Scheduled a public hearing on the revised Novato area general plan on Oct. 12 and canceled its regularly scheduled meeting on Oct. 23. The commission's next meeting will be at 8 p.m. Monday at Novato Community House.

Fire Department Proposal On List

A plan to reorganize the Sausalito Fire Department will be presented to the Sausalito City Council at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

The council will also consider a proposal to create a new position, of building inspector-zoning administrator. Building inspector William L. Hynes will retire Oct. 1 after 20 years with the city and City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr is recommending that Hynes duties be combined with zoning administration responsibilities into a new position.

Coffee Speaking Areas Announced

Michael Peevey, a candidate for Marin County supervisor in the fourth district, will speak at coffees this week in Corte Madera, Larkspur and Woodacre.

THE "OLD LADY"

who lived in a shoe had so many children she didn't know what to do until she saw our shoe in San Anselmo. The "Old Lady" remarked: "My, you have five or six or even seven bedrooms, and I can train all my children to be Olympic Champions in the huge heated & filtered swimming pool." — And after they're through, they won't catch cold because there are 2 fireplaces in this shoe. This is not an "Old Boot," by any means, and doesn't need a new heel or sole. If this shoe sounds good, then try it on.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

St. Vitus' Dance Usually Strikes Females Of Pre-Pubertal Age

Rheumatic fever is a generalized disease that involves the joints, skin, heart, lungs, and other organs. But brain involvement (Sydenham's chorea or St. Vitus' dance) is one of the most dramatic manifestations. For reasons unknown, most of the victims are pre-pubertal girls. Sydenham's should not be confused with Huntington's chorea, which is an hereditary disorder that develops in mid-life.

The onset of St. Vitus' dance is vague. Parents may notice that the child is becoming nervous and irritable. The tyke grimaces and spills her milk and food. Jerky, purposeless involuntary movements of the face, arms and legs are the most striking features. The youngster tends to spread out and extend the fingers when holding the arms out and turns the palms outward when the arms are held above the head.

EFFORT AND excitement increase the jerkiness, which is more noticeable also when the child tries to eat, dress, or pick up an object. Illegible handwriting, slurred speech, and stumbling are frequent. These children cry without provocation and are a pitiful sight because of their helplessness. Muscle weakness is evidenced by testing the hand grip. Now and then the muscles quiver or twitch.

CHOREA IS BEST treated by keeping the child in bed with padded side boards to prevent injury when thrashing about. Self-injury and tongue biting may occur due to the violent, uncontrollable movements. The room should be quiet and dim because noise and bright lights aggrevate the symptoms. Sedatives and tranquilizers are helpful. Cortisone is also used. Artificial fever treatments may be needed to bring severe cases under control. But these measures seldom are necessary because the disease usually subsides spontaneously after a few weeks or months.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

OPERATION DIDN'T HELP

O.D. writes: A person who was operated on feels worse than he did before the surgery. The doctor says there is nothing wrong. Please advise.

REPLY

People do not imagine symptoms such as pain or nausea. Distress exists, but it may be of nervous orgin rather than from a diseased organ. The psyche often complicates traumatic experiences such as a major operation, and sometimes recovery is prolonged for months. The surgeon who recognizes this trait may refuse to operate, knowing that whatever he does will not lead to a cure.

THOUGHTLESS HUSBAND

A reader writes: What advice do you have for a man who is married to a woman with spastic bowel? He insists it's a lot of bunk so that two years of treatment has done no good.

REPLY

My advise is directed toward the wife. She should stop complaining to her husband about her spastic bowel and make the necessary adjustments to avoid or minimize tension, fatigue and anxiety.

RAYS FOR SINUSES

REPLY

It was a recognized form of treatment some decades ago, but is not effective when the sinuses need to be drained.

Our beauty is tall ... dark ... with an hour-glass figure. She flashes a brilliant smile (when happy). But beware of those angry, lightening eyes. Also her powerful voice.

She sang in glee club, church choir, weddings ... was heard singing by Marian Anderson's former accompanist who advised her to study professionally. Result! She became a great Metropolitan Opera star, who thrilled millions with her rich, pure, vibrant mezzo-soprano. Now 53, she lives near Atlanta, Georgia, directing Southern Regional Opera. WINNING BRIDGE

True Bridge Saying—Save Something For A Rainy Day

When I was one-and-twenty my mother said to me: "Put something away for a rainy day." But I was one-and-twenty; no use to talk to me. And now I'm two-and-twenty (to say the least) — and oh, 'tis true 'tis true. (What's more, I have a bridge hand to prove it.)

DREW TRUMPS

South won the first trick with the king of clubs and drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king.

Declarer next cashed the top spades and ruffed a spade with the ten. Now he could lead the low heart to dummy's nine to lead a fourth spade.

When South then led a diamond, hoping to reach dummy for the good spade, West stepped up with the ace of diamonds and led the nine of clubs. East took the rest of the tricks with clubs, and South was down two.

SHOULD NOT RUFF

If South had been mature enough, he would have put awayhis last trump for a rainy day. That is, he would discard the five of clubs instead of ruffing the fourth round of spades.

If East then returned a diamond, the best defense, West would take the ace of diamonds and lead the nine of clubs. South would ruff with his carefully preserved last trump and reach dummy with the king of diamonds to cash the last spade as his tenth trick.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - A K 7 5 2
♥ - 9 7 5
♦ - K 10
♣ - Q 6 3.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You have 12 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You can afford to exercise your option because you have good high-card structure (2½ Quick Tricks) and a good five-card major suit.

Remodeling Session Is Delayed

A public hearing set for tonight at 8 o'clock in Fairfax on a proposal to build a new firehouse and remodel the police department has been canceled, City Administrator Robert E. Crowe has announced.

He said the hearing — which has not yet been rescheduled -- was postponed because final cost estimates of the project have not been prepared.

Crowe said the city council and the planning commission would meet in closed session at 7 o'clock tonight in the Fairfax Women's Club to discuss a suit filed against the city by Denkmann and Co. The company says the city has illegally delayed approving a tentative map for the hotly debated Cannon Village and Tennis Club.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson has ordered Hugh O. Winn, chairman of the Fairfax Planning Commission, to either approve the map or show cause Sept. 27 why he shouldn't have to.

The developer filed the tentative map July 17, but no action has yet been taken by the commission. The city municipal code says action must be taken within 30 days or the tentative map "shall be deemed approved."

Air Race Pilot Killed In Crash

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — The low-flying sports biplane "Miss Q" smashed into the ground at 150 miles per hour Sunday in the final day of competition at the Reno National Air races.

Killed was H.E. "Tommy" Thomas, 50, Sacramento, Calif., whose plane fell 100 feet to the ground. It was the first fatal accident in the nine-year history of the races, which features World War II style aircraft.

The dead pilot was owner of Thomas Aircraft Sales, based at Sacramento Executive Airport. He had entered "Miss Q" under the sponsorship of the Quaker State Oil Co., of Pennsylvania, according to Jim Wood, air race chairman.

Memorial Building's A Year Old

This month will mark the first anniversary of the Marin Veteran's Memorial Building.

It was opened a year ago Sept. 26 with a gala celebration. Since then, 200,000 people have trouped through the $4 million building's auditorium, exhibit hall and grounds.

The circular building on the shores of the Civic Center lagoon has become not only an integral part of the Marin County landscape, but an integral part of the county's cultural life as well.

In the first nine months since the building opened, 129 performances were staged there.

There were 14 pop music events; four one-man comedy shows; four rock concerts; 12 films; 10 lectures and miscellaneous talks; 25 plays and dance performances, and 34 concerts, symphonies, and musicals.

The grounds and exhibit areas of the building were used for 26 fairs, auctions, antique shows, and conventions.

According to Leon G. Kalimos, executive director of the building, the most popular event in the building's short history was a series of four performances by the San Francisco Symphony with Seiji Ozawa conducting. Some 7,500 people attended them.

Next in order of patronage came the Marin Open House concert, 2,500; the Duke Ellington concert, 2,088, a Harry James concert, 1,700, and two performances by Lawrence Welk, 1,859.

The 13 programs of the Youth in Arts program, some with two performances, drew 26,799 school children and their teachers.

(Attendance figures for other events sponsored by other amateur or non-rofit groups were not available since ticket sales weren't handled by the building's box office.)

The festive opening night affair which last year launched the building attracted 1,773 people, each of whom paid $15 apiece for tickets.

Workmen in hard hats were still putting the final touches to the building as the opening night crowd arrived in its finery. The crowd drank 960 bottles of California champagne and listened to Maestro Sandor Salgo conduct the Marin Symphony Orchestra in Darius Milhaud's "Suite in G."

MARIN SHOWCASE — The Marin Veterans Memorial Building is bathed in a festive glow of lights whenever a nighttime program is being staged. Since the theater and hall opened one year ago next Tuesday, the building has housed classic concerts, rock performances, plays, film festivals, a dog show, county fair displays and other cultural events.

Opening night was acknowledged a success despite the $9,000 deficit the county ran up paying for the bash.

The building's second major event, a benefit rock concert for Marin Open House didn't fare half as well.

It was promoted by Sausalito pharmacist Fred G. Mayer over the objections of Kalimos who told the Marin County Supervisors, "hard rock has a philosophy of turning people on, which results in a physical reaction such as jumping on seats and dancing in the aisles."

The ensuing damage ($2,000 worth) to carpeting and seats resulted in a $16,000 lawsuit which the supervisors filed in May against Marin Open House and the concert promoter.

Since then, the building has had an uneventful history except for minor accidents and squabbles such as a $1,000 flash fire in December caused by workmen spraying lacquer which ignited, and a demand by Musicians Union Local No. 6 that 16 musicians be employed at all building events.

In its first nine months, the memorial building took in $49,000, and it is expected that $60,000 will be taken in this fiscal year, according to Michael Mitchell, the county auditor-controller.

Highlights of the coming season include appearances by the San Francisco Symphony, the Vienna Boys Choir, performances of "Tom Paine" and "Applause," Christmas season staging of the "Nutcracker" ballet by the Marin Civic Ballet, and mime Marcel Marceau.

According to Kalimos, the building's exhibit hall is perfectly suited for handling gatherings of three and four hundred people. So far, four conventions have been booked for the season: the American Contract Bridge League's Marin Unit; the District 513 Conference of Rotary International; the Championship All-Breed Cat Show, and the Western Regional Ballet Conference.

The building will still run up a $170,000 deficit. The supervisors appropriated $231,556 for 1972-73 to operate the building and to make needed improvements.

Salaries for the staff of four will account for $66,195; supplies, maintenance, insurance, utilities, and other services will cost $118,101, and $47,260 has been earmarked for fixed asset improvements including a catwalk above the stage, new lighting, sound and kitchen equipment.

What's ahead for the building?

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidant, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Ross Sewer Survey Is Ordered

The Ross Valley Sanitary District board last night told district engineers to go ahead with surveying Sylvan Lane in Ross so that its new sewer trunk line — stalled by Ross's legal dilemmas over the Corte Madera Creek flood control project — can be installed underground.

Board president Eugene A. Ostaggi said the sewer extension had been projected to travel within the concrete-lined creek channel.

Because lawsuits in Ross have delayed the channel project for at least a year, the sanitary district must run the 30-inch-wide pressure line underground through Ross.

Ostaggi said engineers will survey Sylvan Lane before beginning condemnation proceedings to acquire easements for $lv41$or Frederick S. Allen predicted it the line.

Board members didn't discuss the cost of additional rights of way, Ostaggi said, although at the Sept. 14 meeting of the Ross Town Council, Mayor Frederick . Allen predicted it would cost district taxpayers' an extra $300,000.

The sewer trunk line is a replacement for the 1920s-era sewage lines presently serving Ross Valley. The sanitary district is responsibile for the entire Corte Madera Creek drainage basin, from Fairfax to the bay.

Acupuncture Is Now Accepted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Acupuncture is now classed as an accepted technique of medical practice by the Missouri Medical Association.

The association adopted a resolution Monday that John Hailey, executive secretary of the Missouri Board of Healing Arts, said was intended to prevent laymen from practicing the ancient Chinese technique of acupuncture.

"Any doctor who wants to practice this in Missouri would have to be licensed through this board," Hailey said. "The license permits doctors to practice any form of medicine, such as surgery, general practice or any other types."

5 Permit Pleas Win, 1 Loses In Belvedere

Use permits for alterations and additions to homes under the city's moratorium on building were the main items to come before the Belvedere Planning Commission last night.

According to secretary William H. Rafter, the commission recommended granting use permits to: Carl Baker for 31 West Shore Road, Stuart R. Pollak at 13 Oak Avenue, Thomas E. Solinsky at 9 Laurel Avenue and M. C. Powell at 9 West Shore Road. It recommended denial for an addition to the front but approved an addition to the rear of a house for Joseph E. Sheeks at 166 Bella Vista Avenue.

All items will come before the Belvedere City Council on Oct. 2, he said.

The commission also approved splitting two lots into three on Point Belvedere for Hamilton Vose III.

The commission reviewed and commented on plans for 60 townhoufe units on Red Hill Circle submitted by the Tiburon Planning Commission, but took no action. The Belvedere commission believed the density was too high and the desiga too massive, Rafter said.

Attack Suspect Pleads Guilty

A 22-year-old Novato man charged with raping a date has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to statutory rape.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner set sentencing of Steven Hickman for Oct. 24.

Hickman was bound over to superior court on charges of rape, statutory rape and oral copulation, but the district attorney decided to file only the one charge because of evidence problems.

Hickman then agreed to plead guilty provided he is sentenced to 10 days in jail, placed on probation. The judge also agreed to reduce the count to a misdemeanor after six months of good behavior.

Hickman was arrested after his date for a wedding party in San Francisco July 29 told Novato police he drove her to his home, then beat and raped her, according to police.

Sen. Moss Wants Cigar Ads Off TV

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Television advertisements for small cigars will be off the air next year if Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, has his way.

The ads, he said Monday, were an attempt to thwart the ban on cigarette commercials under federal legislation.

Some College Loans Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. Office of Education official conceded today that government-guaranteed loans to some college students have been delayed as long as one month because of red tape.

"But we are getting evidence that the schools are aware of delays and are making arrangements to take care of these students," said David C. Bayer of the agency's division of insured loans. "The log jam has been pretty much been broken."

Bayer released figures showing that the amount of loans under the guaranteed student loan program was $240 million lower this year than it was last year because of new higher education legislation and increased paper work for everybody involved in the loan process from the government to the student.

Mrs. Chisholm Cites 'Power Of Ballot'

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., says that cynical Northern blacks could learn a lesson about voting from their Southern brothers who have learned the power of the ballot box.

Speaking to about 300 persons Monday at the Jersey City Job Corps Center for Women, Mrs. Chisholm said a multitude of changes in the South were brought about by blacks who have begun to vote. "You cannot bring changes in society unless you exercise the right to vote," she said. "If you don't vote you get what you deserve."

Redevelop Area Worth Is Clarified

Marin County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel said today he was misunderstood in an Independent-Journal article yesterday which asserted he claimed San Rafael's redevelopment area represented almost half of the city's total $160 million assessed valuation.

Actually, the area proposed for redevelopment represents about 31 per cent, or $50 million of the city's assessed valuation, Broemmel said.

Redevelopment Agency Executive Director William J. Bielser, however, said the area proposed for redevelopment represents about 20 per cent, or $33 million of the city's assessed valuation.

Broemmel said all property in old San Rafael — and not just the city's redevelopment area, as reported yesterday — represented almost half of San Rafael's assessed valuation.

Virtually all the commercial property in old San Rafael south of Puerto Suello Hill — excluding the Miracle Mile commercial district — is proposed for redevelopment, Bielser said.

Judge Suggests Vietnam Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—U.S. District Judge William T. Sweigert suggested Monday the U.S. Supreme Court make "a final statement" on whether American involvement in the Vietnam war is constitutional.

The high court should resolve the issue for the American people "who have been torn with controversy over the Vietnam war and who could again in the future be faced with a similar presidential war involvement," Sweigert said.

Sweigert made the comments in dismissing a suit filed last year by Alden B. Campen, San Jose, Calif., and others who challenged the legality of the conflict because Congress had not passed a declaration of war.

The dismissal was based on a 9th U.S. Circuit of Appeals ruling in a previous case that citizens have no standing to challenge the constitutionality of the war.

Covered-Up Pot Arrest Revealed

A Sausalito man faces narcotics charges in both Marin and San Bernardino county courts after being arrested in Larkspur on Sept. 7.

John Freeman Finley, 25, of 109 Marion Drive, Sausalito, was arrested 12 days ago, on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia, according to Larkspur police who suppressed the arrest report until yesterday.

After his arrest it was learned that there was a $10,000 warrant outstanding against him by San Bernardino County authorities for failing to appear on a conspiracy to transport marijuana charge.

According to Larkspur police, they were called to a house at 23 Onyx Avenue at 12:32 p.m. on Sept. 7 by its owner, Sheldon Penrose Donig of 340 Laurel Avenue, San Anselmo, who reported a possible dead body from a narcotics overdose.

Finley is alleged to have been found naked on a living room couch with marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia in the house.

Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire set Finley's bail at $5,000, Larkspur police said.

Until the Independent-Journal learned of Finley's imminent court appearance all details of his arrest had been concealed by Larkspur police on orders by Capt. Charles J. Mattos.

No reason for the secrecy could be ascertained. Larkspur's police chief Howard H. Clark is on vacation, and Mattos who for some time yesterday ordered the arrest report withheld remained unavailable for comment.

Larkspur's police dispatcher-clerk, Sandie Simpson, said the report was not released because Finley was already wanted by San Bernardino authorities, and it was not necessary to make reports on warrant arrests.

Subgroup To Meet

A public meeting of the Citizens Advisory Committee on the Preparation of the General Plan, Housing Element and Open Space subcommittee will be held at 8 p.m. next Monday in the council chambers of the San Anselmo City Hall.

First Meeting Of Marin's 49er Fans

The talk was of bump and run, double coverage, pass patterns, and fighting tobacco stains on the Candlestick Park AstroTurf.

Doing the talking was Dick Witcher, wide receiver in his seventh year with the 49ers, and doing the listening were about 50 members of the Marin Chapter, 49er Goal Rushers, at the booster group's first luncheon meeting of the 1972 football season.

Pass receivers do not like artificial grass because of the burns received when diving for catches. Witcher is no exception. "Myself, I would rather play on grass," he said. Among the reasons artificial grass comes into Dick's disfavor is the possibility of infections.

"There's always that chance because scrapes take so long to heal and with baseball players there are always tobacco stains."

HE'S RIGHT. When you see those baseball players with a huge wad of chewing tobacco in their cheek, they have to spit somewhere. Instead of fertilizing the dirt it just sits on top of the artificial grass. Fortunately the turf periodically is cleaned with vacuum cleaners.

"It's not too bad at Candlestick, but some of the fields around the league are filthy," said Witcher.

ABOUT THE BUMP and run — a tactic used by defensive backs to slow the receiver down by bumping him near the line of scrimmage before he can start his pattern downfield —Witcher said fans will be seeing less of this because the "rules have caught up with it."

A change in the rule says a defensive back can't touch the potential receiver once he is parallel with him. In the past, the defender bumped and shoved the receiver as he ran alongside him, before the pass was thrown. "More teams are getting away from using it (bump and run)," said the 6-foot-3, 204-pound graduate of UCLA.

Witcher defended quarterback Steve Spurrier who has drawn some criticism for a shot put type pass he threw one yard to Witcher in the end zone in the final quarter of Sunday's game against the San Diego Chargers, a game the Niners won, 34-3. The pass was intercepted by cornerback Joe Beauchamp.

"HE HAD TO THROW the pass the way he did," said Witcher, "because there was a defensive man between us. The guy (Beauchamp) who intercepted it came from behind, out of nowhere."

One of the boosters asked if 49er head coach Dick Nolan is hollering at his players when he's seen on the sidelines shaking his finger emphatically at someone.

"Dick Nolan's criticism is done in a way that you don't feel it is really criticism. I've never seen him yell at anybody on the field in front of the players," said Witcher.

WITCHER WOULD be the first to agree that it's hard to get fired up over a team like the Buffalo Bills, the 49ers' next foes, but the whole 49er team realizes it's an outfit just like this, one that won only one game all last year, that would love to knock off a league contender.

Witcher did say that four games on the 49er schedule appear to be the key ones. He listed the games with Dallas (Nov. 23), Minnesota (Dec. 16) and Los Angeles (Oct. 8 and Dec. 4) as the make or break contests.

They all sound tougher than Buffalo.

Redskins Victorious On The 'Anniversary'

He celebrated at the expense of the Minnesota Vikings.

Exactly two years earlier, Malinchak, a seven-year veteran from Indiana, was cut from the Detroit Lions' roster, and almost out of football. It is difficult to latch onto another job when cut one day into the regular season, which it was two years ago.

But Malinchak found a job with Washington, and was around Monday night to celebrate—by blocking a punt 2 1-2 minutes into the game and running it for a touchdown, and by recovering a fourth quarter fumble to set up the winning score in a 24-21 Redskin upset victory.

The two plays, and a host of other Minnesota miscues, spoiled the regular season debut of quarterback Fran TarKenton, who completed 18-of-31 passes for 233 yards and two touchdowns.

Other Minnesota errors included a third quarter fumble on the Washington 20-yard line by Oscar Reed with the Vikings leading 14-10, and a blocked 41-yard Fred Cox field goal attempt by Washington's Ted Vactor at the close of the first half.

"If ever there was a team victory, tonight was it," exulted Washington Coach George Allen, who now has piloted a winner in the season opener in each of his seven years in the league.

Allen said the "turning point had to be Malinchak's recovery of the fumble on the 20."

"I don't know what happened on that play," said Clint Jones, who fumbled the kickoff runback. "Somebody hit me from behind. Whoever it was made a pretty good play."

Malinchak, rejoicing over receiving his first game ball as a pro, still was bitter about his late 1970 demise from Detroit. He would only say, "That kind of thing is unheard of."

This year, he had another close call. He was cut by Washington two weeks ago, but was reactivated last Tuesday after the final roster cut.

"I had faith I'd be activated for use on the special teams," He said. "We emphasize special teams a lot. From looking at films, we determined during the week that we could block the Vikings' kicks.

"We saw their ends weren't blocking strong. On the block punt, I was brushed lightly by No. 43 (Nate Wright), but he took off down field to cover the kick and I had a clean shot."

Malinchak's effort, which even Grant complimented, gave the Redskins the impetus and the Vikings never completely recovered—although they took

GIANT RETIRED — San Francisco base runner Dave Kingman was out at third base last night in Cincinnati after sliding into the tag applied by the Reds' Denis Menke. Bench Blows Stop Giants

He produced one run with a 350-feet homer in the fourth inning and drove in another in the sixth with a 20-foot bunt Monday night.

"Both hits felt good," Bench said after the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Giants 2-0.

"On the bunt, I didn't have a signal on it, but I've tried it before and the other times the ball has just gone foul on me," Bench said. "I knew the element of surprise was there and all I was trying to do was keep the ball away from the pitcher."

The bunt came with two outs and Joe Morgan on third base. Jim Hart was playing about 20 feet behind third on the Astroturf at Riverfront Stadium.

Hart attempted to field the ball bare-handed, but couldn't come up with it.

Jim McGlothlin, with relief from Clay Carroll in the ninth, made the two runs stand up, although he had to work out of jams in various innings.

"I had pretty good stuff, but I was erratic at the start and was falling behind to the hitters," said the Reseda, Calif., right-hander who yielded eight hits, but walked only one man.

GO-AHEAD TOUCHDOWN

Washington Redskin running back Larry Brown (43) scampered across the goal line for a fourth quarter touchdown against the Minnesota Vikings in Bloomington last night. Brown's short bolt put the Redskins ahead to stay in this National Football League opener for both clubs. Washington won, 24-21. (UPI Telephoto)

White Sox Visit A's In Key Series

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Chicago White Sox need a sweep, which means that the Oakland Athletics will settle for a split in their final two-game series, which opens tonight at the Coliseum.

It will be Tom Bradley (14-14) for the Chisox and John Odom (14-5) for Oakland in tonight's battle, which sees Chicago entering the arena five games back of the A's.

In head-and-head competition between the two pennant hopefuls, Oakland has taken seven wins and Chicago six even though superstar Dick Allen has ripped A's pitching at a .341 clip with four homers and 11 rbi's.

The A's have got second baseman Dick Green back on the roster after he had been on the disabled list almost the whole season. That gives manager Dick Williams five to juggle at second.

Both Chicago and Oakland were idle Monday.

FOR RAIDERS

Second-Guessing Of Quarterback Role

OAKLAND (UPI) — Coach John Madden said today it is easy to second guess the fact that Daryle Lamonica should have started Sunday's Oakland Raider game at Pittsburgh.

"Why didn't people ask before the game?" he said. "They knew all week I was starting Ken Stabler."

The southpaw Stabler failed to move the team and then gave way to George Blanda, who celebrated his 45th birthday by tossing a touchdown pass but then bogged down.

Lamonica came on in the fading moments of the third quarter and rallied the Raiders, who ended up on the short end of a 34-28 score to the improved Steelers.

No one is talking as to who will start Sunday at Green Bay, but nobody would be surprised if it's Lamonica.

This might not only be because of Lamonica's three touchdown passes against the Steelers. Lamonica is considered better against a team with a poor pass rush, since he likes to throw long, and also seems to prefer grass over artificial turf.

Sunday's battle with the Packers will be on grass and Green Bay is not noted for its pass charge.

Coach Madden insisted that the whole team flopped last Sunday.

"When a team doesn't perform well, you can't blame individuals. When you lose, no one looks good. We lacked consistency. We've got to become more consistent."

Many Raider fans were willing to suggest the Raiders seek that consistency with a new starting quarterback.

Meanwhile, the Raiders had some good news today. X-rays on tight end Ray Chester's ribs showed they were bruised but not broken.

Susan Brown In Pacific Coast Net Upset Win

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI)— Oakland teenager Susan Brown upset Judy Alvarez of Florida Sunday for the day's lone shocker in the Golden Gate Pacific Coast tennis championships. Meanwhile, Alice Valentine, a Tiburon Tennis Club summer teacher, bowed to Kris Corcoran, 5-7, 7-6, 6-3.

Miss Brown, only 14, bested her rival 6-3, 6-3, to advance in the star-packed tourney which was reduced to 32 finalists.

Top-seeded Billy Jean King, Margaret Smith Court of Australia and the other leading seeded players play later in the week.

Kate Latham of Palo Alto, Calif., beat Finland's Briggita Lindstrom, 6-2, 6-1, Monday in the final day of qualifying.

ANKLE HEALING

49er Starting Nod To Vic Washington

(Combined AP & UPI)

REDWOOD CITY — Vic Washington is expected to return to his first-string halfback post for the San Francisco 49ers Sunday, but fullback Ken Willard will be used only part time.

Both have been bothered by ankle injuries although Willard saw fourth-quarter action in last Sunday's 34-3 romp over San Diego.

Washington was held out of the San Diego game, but coach Dick Nolan tentatively listed him Monday as a starter against Buffalo. However, Nolan said Willard has been away from contact too long to start yet so will see only limited action against the Bills.

Larry Schreiber thus will start at fullback Sunday.

Three players injured Sunday are expected back this week but the prognosis is more doubtful for defensive back Ralph McGill, who had a back injury. Others injured were defensive tackle Bob Hoskins, a hamstring pull; offensive lineman Cas Banaszek, who aggravated an old groin muscle pull; and defensive back Jimmy Johnson, who reinjured an elbow.

The One-Handed Catching Method

CINCINNATI — Johnny Bench is the greatest catcher the Reds have had since Ernie Lombardi. Bench can do it all with bat and glove. He was the National League's Rookie of the Year in 1968, Most Valuable Player two seasons later when he hit 45 homers and drove in 148 runs.

This year he already has passed the 100 runs batted in mark and is challenging Nate Colbert and Willie Stargell for the 1972 home run title. Last night, he drove in both runs as the Reds blanked Jim Barr and the Giants, 2-0.

But, as great as he is, Bench's confident one-handed receiving didn't set a new catching style although many of his Riverfront Stadium admirers believe Bench invented the now-accepted classic catching defense of glove only with the meat hand out of harm's way from a foul tip.

"THE FIRST CATCHER I ever saw in a one-handed receiving style was Jake Early," said Charlie Fox. "That was long before the hinged mitt used by today's catchers. Early used to take all the stuffing out of his mitt so he could catch one-handed.

"At the same time Early was catching for the Washington Senators, Hoyt Wilhelm was having a fabulous year with hif knuckler at Minneapolis, then the triple A farm club of the Giants. Wilhelm was brought up by the Giants in 1952. And we made a deal for Early. We figured that anyone who could catch one-handed wouldn't have any trouble catching Wilhelm's knuckler."

Fox, a traditionalist two-handed catcher before his minor league managing days which led to his present job of managing the Giants, never had any built-in prejudices against one-handed receiving.

BUT HERMAN FRANKS did when he managed the Giants from 1965-68. Randy Hundley, a $115,000 bonus baby of the Giants in 1960, was brought up by the Giants in 1965 after five years of minor league schooling.

When Franks saw Hundley's one-handed receiving style, Franks ordered the rookie catcher to use two hands. Hundley refused. Hundley told the manager he wasn't about to have his meat hand turned into a mess of broken fingers and dislocated knuckles that were the trademarks of old-time catching traditionalists.

So it was no surprise that Hundley was traded at the end of the 1965 season to the Cubs for whom Hundley became an iron man behind the plate catching 149 games in 1966, 152 in 1967, 160 in 1968 and 151 in 1969. Successive knee operations in 1970-71 limited Hundley's action to a total of 82 games in those two years. This year Hundley returned to full-time duty with a plastic protective wrapping that covers his right leg from hip to ankle. But Hundley never missed a game because of any foul tip injury to his right hand.

"HUNDLEY ACTUALLY set the modern style of one-handed receiving," said Fox. "Virtually all of today's catchers are one-handed receivers because they can get the job done with the new hinged mitts. It would be impossible to catch one-handed with the old mitts, impossible, that is, unless you took the stuffing out of them like Early did.

"The only negative point in one-handed receiving is on a pitch that nips the outside corner. If that pitch is caught with two hands it's a strike. If caught one-handed with a glove reach across the body, the umpires are inclined to call it a ball because of the reaching catch."

PONTYPOOL, Wales (UPI)—The Bay Area Touring Side is now 2-2 on its European rugby tour with five games against Welsh and English teams still on its schedule.

The Bay Area team lost 13-9 Monday night to Pontypool with a couple of narrowly missed scores turning the tide. Brooks Leads Oriole Victory

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Brooks Robinson is the kind of guy who gets three hits, scores two runs, drives in another and still gives somebody else credit for winning the game.

That's just what the veteran Baltimore Orioles' third baseman did Monday night after his sparkling performance at the plate led his club to a vital 5-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox that tightened up the tangled American League Eastern divsion pennant race.

Despite his heroics at the plate, Robinson felt the difference was the spectacular catch by centerfielder Paul Blair in the second inning. With the bases loaded and one out, Doug Griffin hit a shot up the alley in left center that looked like it might go for a three-run double.

After Blair made the catch on Griffin's drive, losing pitcher Lynn McGlothen lined out to Blair and the inning was over with Boston leading 1-0 instead of 3-0. The Orioles then started their comeback.

Naturally, that guy Robinson was in the middle of it. He doubled in the fourth and scored the tying run on Dave Johnson's triple.

In the sixth inning with the score still tied 1-1, Terry Crowley walked and Robinson singled him to third. Johnny Oates doubled in Crowley to knock out McGlothen and winning pitcher Pat Dobson singled in Robinson to give the Orioles a 3-1 margin.

Brooks' run-scoring single then capped a two-run rally in the seventh after Blair doubled and Boog Powell and Don Baylor both singled.

In the three National League games, New York blanked Pittsburgh 1-0, Cincinnati beat San Francisco 2-0 and Los Angeles edged San Diego 3-2 in 10 innings.

New York stalled the Pittsburgh's drive for the NL East crown as Duffy Dyer singled in Rusty Saub for the only run of the game in the ninth inning.

Willie Crawford walked with two outs and the bases loaded in the 10th inning to force in the deciding run as Los Angeles downed San Diego.

Improved Look For San Marin

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Fifth in a series on Marin County Athletics League football prospects.)

When San Marin High School football coach Bob Martin said, "We will be improved" last week, he made one of the bigger understatements since Napoleon said, "We'll win a few this year" in 1797.

After obliterating Harry Ells of Richmond in a scrimmage ten days ago, San Marin opened its non-league season Friday night by annihilating Healdsburg, 30-0. It was the most lopsided varsity victory in the school's history.

San Marin has quite a bit of improving to do, since it went 1-8 last year, 1-5 in the Marin County Athletic League. But the potential is there, especially in the backfield.

Flashy left-handed senior Hoza Wright is the team's quarterback. An outstanding all-round athlete, Wright was all-league last year as a defensive back, but will spare those duties this season.

San Marin will strive for a 50-50 balance of running and passing, using the I formation on offense. Wright can run in addition to throwing, and senior Fred Doar will be "the outstanding fullback in the league," in Martin's words.

Steve Baldocchi alternates between tailback and tight end, especially since an injury will keep Steve Goins out another week. Tim Lessley and Dave Azevedo are other good backs.

Receiving was a strong point in the demolition of Healdsburg. Greg Pater and Terry Kom alternate at split and Mark Tornai and Craig Leaf at tight end. Greg Sherwood, another tight end, will be eligible to play this week.

In the line, guard Matt Sherill, who was injured much of last season, and tackle Steve Fowler provide the experience. They, Wright, Doar, Baldocchi and Sherwood are the six players who started last year. All told, San Marin has 10 returning lettermen on the skimpy, 25-man roster at the three-year school.

"At least five or six players will go both ways," said Martin. "We'll try a lot of different players at several positions in the practice games."

The secondary in particular will be inexperienced, but it has held up so far, even without Wright. Fowler plays middle guard on defense and is an "anchor man," in Martin's words.

San Marin will play Sonoma High Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Novato High's field, site of all Mustang home games. The league season opens Sept. 30 against Drake.

Sept. 15	at Healdsburg	30-0
Sept. 23	Sonoma	1:30 p.m.

Nastase played a relaxed game, battering Gorman at times with his serves. He was never in danger in the last set, mounting a 40-love lead in the final game with his serve before Gorman scored.

In the doubles final, Australians Ross Case and Geoff Masters defeated the French teams of Jean Chanfreau and Wanaro N'Godrella 4-6, 7-6, 6-4.

Ducks Unlimited Dinner In Fairfax

By AL GIDDINGS

The Marin County Chapter of Ducks Unlimitea will be having its annual "Drakes Only" dinner next Tuesday. The conservation-aimed event will be held at the Deer Park Villa in Fairfax. Cocktails will be at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30.

Also featured will be door prizes, including a Harley Davidson motorcycle, donated by Kevin Dearth of San Rafael. Also on the list of prizes is an all-expense paid trip to the Holiday Hotel in Reno.

There will also be an auction, a drawing for prizes and a film on Ducks.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD to miss this event if you are a duck hunter and conservationist. Monies derived from this event are used for wetlands projects, and duck conservation. There is a limited seating capacity. Tickets can be obtained at Jim's Sport Shop in Novato and the Western Sport Shop in San Rafael.

JUST ABOUT ALL of Marin's finest duck hunters will be there including my old friend, Tom Mack, and, of course, Johnny Eberhart, who absolutely refused to give me any "inside dope" on anyone for this column.

He says: "As it is, they are going to get me this year at the party — whatever that means! Walt Freitas, the president of this chapter, will be there to answer any technical questions you might have regarding ducks. Al Anderson is hosting the event.

INCIDENTALLY I JUST received a brochure from Jim De La Montagna of Black Point, entitled The San Pablo Bay National Wildlife Refuge. Parts read: "The refuge located between the Petaluma River outlet and the city of Vallejo, is an 11,790 acre expanse of open water and tidelands. It is part of the winter home of 40,000 canvas back ducks, more than half the canvas back population of the Pacific Flyway — along with great numbers of loons, grebes, cormorants and terns. Preserving the area's delicate balance and perpetuatiing a self sustaining estuarine environment is the main purpose of the refuge and entails objectives.

1. PROVIDING A valuable wildlife area for public enjoyment including hunting and fishing.

2. Preserving habitat for sizeable populations of birds, animals and fish.

3. Providing areas for marine marsh and upland wildlife, and ecological studies and interpretation.

4. Maintaining the open space, open water, the marsh and tidal mudflats which is an essential to human welfare as it is to wildlife.

Let's talk about ducks. Last year, the statewide bag was 3,401,300 compared with 3,513,000 in 1970. In 1971, 204,000 hunters were reported to 223,100 in 1970. The average seasonal bag for 1971 was 16.7 birds per hunter. Though 1971 hunter survey respondents reported a slight increase in the duck bag, compared with 1970 (15.7), it did not indicate a significant change. With almost 3.5 million ducks in the bag, the 71 season was successful.

STATE OPERATED public shooting areas were productive with an increase in the bag of 18 per cent compared with the 1970 results. Private and commercial gun club hunters bagged about 43 per cent of the ducks bagged statewide in 1971, which is a significant drop below the 49 per cent in 1970. The decrease in the bag was accompanied by a 25 per cent drop in the hunter use on these areas compared to 1970.

THE GOOSE BAG was 373,900 in 1971 as compared with 377,700 in 1970. The average seasonal bag was 4.3 geese per hunter.

The waterfowl picture looks good generally, except for some problems with canvasbacks and possibly redheads. With the season closed statewide on cans this year, let's hope this problem will be cleared up.

Redwood Harriers Favored

There is a rumor that Redwood High School has the inside track to the Marin County Athletic League cross-country championship because coach Doug Basham is the only person who understands the new schedule.

Basham denies it. He admits, however, that he deserves to be favored because, "we have the best team we've ever had."

Those are horrifying words to the other MCAL coaches, since last year's team was about as good an aggregation as anybody cared to face. The Giants went undefeated at 6-0 and won the crown.

This year's team will consist of last year's team — older, stronger and (presumably) wiser. The top two runners, Jan-Eric Moller and Mike Killeen, return. Pete Sweeney, Ned Overend and Bryan Tracy also will be back. Don Elsener and Dave Brainerd will be contending for spots on the seven-man team, along with a top sophomore, Pete Demarais. The only graduate was number three man Mike Sweeney.

Considering this, it looks like a long year for the league's other six coaches, four of whom are new. Warren Fairbanks takes over for Gerry Kobil at Drake, Hugh Broiles for Dan Losee at Terra Linda, Bob Smith for Bob Patterson at Novato and Dave Dwight for Bill Ranney at San Rafael.

In addition to the coaches, the schedule will be new. Three teams will compete simultaneously, but the meet will be scored as if it were three dual meets. For example, tomorrow's opener at Redwood, with San Rafael and Novato visiting, will be scored as if it were Redwood vs. San Rafael, San Rafael vs. Novato, and Novato vs. Redwood.

This enables each team to meet each other team twice during the seven-meet league season. It also produces larger fields in each race, making for better competition.

This type of schedule is currently in use in the Alameda County Athletic League (ACAL) and elsewhere. Basham brought it to Marin, and one of his math students, Scott Setrakian, worked out the specifics last spring.

The league season opens tomorrow at 4 p.m. and will run through Nov. 1, to be followed by post-season meets. In addition to the meet at Redwood, Terra Linda and Drake will be at Tamalpais. San Marin draws a bye. Marin Catholic does not participate.

Tamalpais coach Krieg Vezie predicts he will have "a good team," but concedes it will be difficult to top Redwood. Junior Tony Hyun ("a little mountain goat," in Vezie's words) and seniors Bill Busby and Kian McCarthy will spearhead the team, Joey Biancalana having decided not to come out due to other academic commitments.

San Marin, which battled Redwood for the track and field title last spring, has only seven students out for cross-country. One of them, however, is star runner Gary Lathrop, whose neck-and-neck battles with Moller and Killeen are famous. Also bolstering coach Jim VanDerBeets' team is Dan Turek.

Novato "has good experience" in Smith's eyes, with five seniors on the 10-man team. Drake is just the opposite, with nine freshmen among the 14 runners.

Query To Perry On Spitball Use

CLEVELAND (UPI) — "You understand, Reverend," said alleged spitball pitcher Gaylord Perry. "I'd like to answer that but it would spoil the whole idea."

With some guile the Cleveland Indians righthander Monday sidestepped the point-blank question of George R. Plagenz, ordained clergyman, former sports writer and presently religion editor of the Cleveland Press: "Do you or don't you throw a spitball?"

Perry didn't admit, it, nor did he deny it.

"I'd like to answer that but it would spoil the whole idea," Perry said. "You understand, Reverend.

"The whole idea is to keep the opposing batters guessing 'does Perry throw a spitter or doesn't he.' If they don't know they won't be able to dig in at the plate. You can't knock 21 victories."

Spitz Follows Partly In Weismuller Wake

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Mark Spitz, Olympic swimming champion who is contemplating a show business career, will work through the same agency which got Johnny Weismuller, also an Olympic swim star, his first "Tarzan" role in 1932.

But Spitz "definitely does not want to become another Tarzan," Spitz' new agent said in an interview Monday.

"We'll be handling all negotiations for him in all areas of the business—motion pictures, TV shows, commercial product endorsements," said Norman Brokaw of the William Morris Agency of Beverly Hills, one of the largest theatrical agencies in the world.

Brokaw said a "ballpark" estimate of Spitz' earning capacity in show business is $5 million. "But when you have a thoroughbred like Spitz it can go far in excess of that," he said.

Besides Weismuller, other personalities handled by the William Morris agency, Brokaw said, include Gregory Peck, Sophia Loren, Bill Cosby, Danny Thomas and Jack Lemmon.

Garth Scallon, Spitz' attorney in Sacramento, echoed Brokaw's comments about Spitz not wanting to follow the footsteps of barrel-chested Weismuller in show business. "He (Spitz) doesn't ever intend to play the part of an illiterate man," Scallon said, referring to the Tarzan role.

Forbes-Robinson In Sports Car Race Win

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Elliot Forbes-Robinson of Lacrescenta, Calif. won the Sports Car Club of America's professional formula Supervee series sports car race here Sunday while Bill Scott of McKean, Va., all but sewed up the series driving championship.

Scott led Harry Ingle of Charlette, N.C., by only five points in the standings going into the seventh event of the nine-race series. He picked up 15 points for finishing second behind Forbes-Robinson while Ingle managed only a six-place finish and six points.

Fewer Workers, But More Cars

By JAMES WARGO
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

DETROIT, MICH. — A little-noted aspect of the 1973-model cars being unveiled is that while the auto industry expects to sell them in record numbers, there will be no commensurate increase in the number of workers employed to build them.

In some plants, as a matter of fact, fewer employees will be engaged in the assembly of more cars.

This runs counter to the initial predictions made when wage and price controls were begun in August, 1971. When President Nixon announced the wage-price freeze and successfully urged repeal of the 7 percent excise tax on cars, he spoke of two quick benefits: "Lower prices will mean that more people will be able to afford new cars, and every additional 100,000 cars sold means 25,000 new jobs."

A year later a presidential economic adviser admitted the calculation was hastily formulated and totally in error. The fact is that while automotive sales are soaring, the industry, in what it feels is required strategy, is working hard to keep new employment at a minimum, and, where possible, to reduce it.

As newsmen are being told repeatedly when they attend the introduction of 1973 models, retail sales of passenger cars and trucks in the model year just ending were the highest in the history of the auto industry —a total of 13.2 million vehicles. This exceeds the previous peak of 1969 by 13 per cent. And sales of 13.5 to 14 million units are predicted for the year just starting.

Although the program of wage and price controls may have been a major factor in this surge of auto sales, it is not serving to increase auto employment.

One reason is that long before Phase 1 was announced, the auto industry had a program of its own to keep a lid on the soaring cost of manufacturing cars by minimizing the steadily climbing cost of labor.

No such program can be introduced overnight. It is done one step at a time and one plant at a time.

One of the most significant examples was the General Motors Lordstown, Ohio, assembly plant. Automated welding equipment and other technical advances permitted production of the Vega subcompact at the rate of 100 an hour. This is a 40 percent increase in productivity over a normal plant, but it was achieved without any substantial increase in the hourly work force.

The techniques mastered at Lordstown appear this year in another GM division. Those Fisher Body plants producing the totally redesigned intermediate GM model for 1973 are equipped with the same automatic welding machines, and they make full use of something called modular construction that was developed at the Vega plant.

This involves building various areas of the body in sections, much like prefabricated houses and invariably with many fewer parts.

The inner and outer roof panel has greatly simplified construction and contains 75 percent fewer prts.

Seats on the new intermediate, instead of being two pieces welded on the assembly line, now come as one piece from a metal-fabricating plant. The compartment pan, once a number of small pieces welded on the line, now shows up at the plant as a single piece.

Fisher Body executives will not give the exact number of assembly workers needed on the new intermediate line. They admit it is fewer than on last year's line, but point out that some of the difference is absorbed by a larger work force needed in the plants making components.

Other car companies are attempting to keep the lid on employment but haven't been able to make use of automation to the same extent as GM. Employement, therefore, is slightly increasing.

The result is exceptional ride and handling with interior quietness and comfort. The Riviera also has a new stylish short vinyl top treatment and an all-new deck and larger taillamps to create a new rear design. Buicks and Opels will be available at Don Collins Buick in San Rafael on Sept. 21.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Stock For Youthful Investor

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am 13 years old and interested in investing $500 in stocks. Later I hope to add more to this. I would like a stock to hold about 5 years and would appreciate your suggestions. — M.S.

A. Johnson Products (ASE), a comparatively young company, seems to be an appropriate choice for a youthful investor. Shares of this black-run company were first offered publicly in December, 1969, although the company was founded in 1954. A complete line of hair-care products designed for use by blacks, as well as a new line of cosmetics, are manufactured by Johnson.

Sales have moved ahead steadily since the mid-Sixties and earnings, until fiscal 1971, kept pace. Increased marketing and manufacturing costs, plus administrative expenses cut earnings to 90 cents a share from $1.00 in fiscal 1970. However, for the first nine months of fiscal 1972 (ended Aug.), earnings were ahead 43 per cent and sales were up 18 per cent. Full-year profit should approximate $1.25 a share. Future potential is enhanced by the anticipated introduction of more cosmetic lines, possible entry into African markets and expanded plant capacity.

Q. As a retired Sears, Roebuck (NYSE) employee, I have accumulated several hundred shares of Sears stock at an average cost of $25 a share. I am liable for capital gains tax of about $40 per share if I sell now. Eventually I will have to switch these shares for greater income. Should I sell half this year and half next year to spread the tax liability? — L.B.

A. Certainly, spreading your tax liability over two or more years is a sensible approach to your problem. However, I would strongly recommend that you consult a tax specialist prior to taking any action. With all the facts concerning your exact financial situation before him, a tax man could then give you expert guidance on the extent of the tax liability you would incur by seilling either part or all of your shares.

Prices Go Slightly Higher

NEW YORK (UPI)--Encouraged somewhat by favorable economic news, investors pushed stock prices slightly higher during the first two hours today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Advances outnumbered declines, 643 to 464, among the 1,532 issues crossing the tape. Two-hour turnover amounted to more than 5,380,000 shares.

Trading increased from Monday's slow pace when many investors were absent because of the Yom Kippur holy day. Aanlysts said investors were encouraged by the Federal Reserve Board's report that industrial production picked up sharply in August.

However, they noted much caution remains. Investors have been concerned about inflation and rieing interest rates.

American Medical International was the most active issue, off 7-8 at 42 3-4 on 204,100 shares, including a block of 199,900 shares at 42 1-2, off 1 1-8.

Prices were slightly higher also on the American Stock Exchange. Champion Home Builders was the most active AMEX issue, up 1-2 at 17 1-4 on 47,900 shares.

BUSINESS ROUNDUP

The Season For Bank Promotions

LOUIS STEINBERG
Office Manager

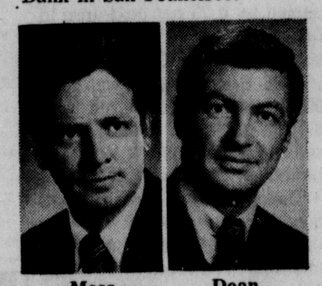
This seems to be the season for bank promotions.

Louis G. Steinberg has been appointed manager of the Point Reyes Station office of Bank of America.

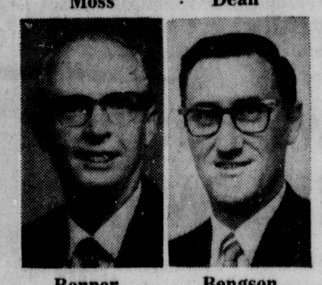
Steinberg succeeds Robert Vilas, who was advanced to personnel administration in the banking chain's San Francisco headquarters. The new manager has been head of the consumer installment lending department of B. of A.'s Henderson Center office in Eureka.

A native of Long Beach, Steinberg joined Bank of America in Sacramento in 1968 following graduation from Sonoma State College. He also worked at the Chico main office before being transferred to Eureka just under two years ago. His wife is the former Julia Novacek of Richmond.

Two Marinites have been promoted by United California Bank in San Francisco.



Moss · Dean



Bonner · Bengson

McKenzie Moss II of Kentfield, a vice president of UCB, has been named manager of the San Francisco main office at 405 Montgomery Street. He had been in the bank's national division.

Moving into the national division is David C. Dean of San Anselmo, an assistant vice president, formerly in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara offices.

Crocker Bank has named Frank F. Bonner of Novato assistant vice president and manager of its Valencia-Mission office in San Francisco. Bonner had been on special assignment.

James J. Bengson has been named assistant vice president of Crocker Bank's San Rafael main office, moving from a similar position at its South San Francisco office.

Two Marinites have been transferred by Wells Fargo Bank.

Richard O. Olsson of Tiburon, formerly assistant manager of Wells Fargo's West Portal office in San Francisco, has been named assistant manager of its Marina office in the same city.

Susan H. Flint of Novato, who has been assistant manager of the Northgate office in San Rafael, has been appointed assistant manager of Wells Fargo's Mill Valley office.

Another of those until-Christmas-only businesses will open Saturday at Interior Fashions, 1022 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur.

It is called the Patchwork, because it will feature handcrafted items, many of them from the "patchwork period" around the turn of the century. Operators are three experienced interior decorators and longtime Marinites, Pat Gustafson and Anita Stone of Greenbrae and Sandy McKenney of Kentfield.

Items on sale will include place mats, table centerpieces, pillows, afghans, etc., along with holiday items in season. Many of them are handcrafted by the owners themselves.

The shop will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, and will have an open house observance on its initial opening Saturday.

Former Astronaut Is Named To Post

DENVER — Rocky Mountain Airways (OTC) announced Monday Walter M. Schirra Jr. was appointed to the board of directors of Rocky Mountain Airways to fill one of two vacancies.

Schirra, best known as the command pilot of the Apollo VII space project, is president of Regency Investors Inc., Denver, a major financial complex leasing industrial equipment to enterprises throughout the world.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Middle East violence spread today to London where a booby-trapped envelope exploded in the Israeli Embassy, killing one embassy official and wounding another. In the Middle East itself relations between Lebanon and the guerrillas living in the southern part of the country were reported reaching a crucial stage.

In Cairo, the mass circulation newspaper Al Akhbar today urged Arabs to adopt a tough new policy of striking at American interests in the Arab world because of "American-Israeli collusion" in recent attacks by Tel Aviv troops into Lebanon.

An embassy spokesman in London said Dr. Ami Shachori, the embassy's agricultural attache, was killed when a bulky envelope exploded as he was opening it. Shachori was pronounced dead on arrival at St. George's Hospital. Another embassy staff member, Theodore Kaddar, named as Shachori's successor, was injured in the blast.

Political sources in Beirut said Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad arrived today for talks with Lebanon's Prime Minister Saeb Salam aimed at patching up "explosive" differences between Lebanese authorities and the Pa However, Salam denied tonight there was any "crisis." He said. "We are determined to keep our relations with our Palestinian brothers in the sphere of mutual understanding."

The Middle East News Agency (MENA) in a report from Cairo said relations between the Lebanese and the guerrillas are passing through a delicate stage but are not expected to lead to confrontation.

MENA said the Palestinian resistance has rejected demands submitted to it by the Lebanese Army, but did not mention what the demands were. The agency said Salam explained during a meeting Sunday night with Al Fatah leader Yasser Arafat and other Palestinian officials that the Army instructions were simply implementations of agreements the two sides made in 1969 and not an "ultimatum" as claimed by guerrilla radios. The agency said the meeting was successful.

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The Sausalito City Council last night split sharply over what to do about the Golden Gate Bridge District's plan for a $1.7 million downtown ferry terminal.

The plan was sent to the city officials by the district almost five months ago for their reaction.

Mayor Robin Sweeny said the bridge district was pushing for council action on the plan by November so construction can begin early next year. The council, however, after more than two hours of debate, instead ordered a third "study session" on the plan at 8 p.m. on Oct. 2.

Councilmen Stephen A. Fraser and Evert H. Heynneman pushed hard for endorsement of the plan with tough conditions, but Mrs. Sweeny and Councilman Earl F. Dunphy insisted more information was needed from the city's staff on alternatives to the plan. Councilman Sally Stanford was absent.

City Mgr. Albert R. St. Cyr said the three choices were to ask the district to keep the present service instead of building a terminal to accommodate the new boats to be added to the service in mid-1974, approve the district's plan, or insist that the district build its terminal in North Sausalito and keep the downtown ferry pier as a whistle stop.

The strongest criticism of the proposed downtown terminal came from the Sausalito Citizens Council. No one in the audience of nine persosn defended the plan. No one was present from the bridge district.

Considerable discussion was devotej to everyone's assumption that the district's plan called for elimination of Parking Lot No. 1, which last fiscal year plunked some $160,000 in fees into city coffers.

The parking lot, however, would be eliminated only if replaced with a $2.1 million underground lot for 305 cars. Rare unanimity came over the underground lot; all agreed they did not like the idea. All new parking should be built in North Sausalito, the councilmen said.

In that case, according to the district plan, parking in Lot No. 1 would be cut from 180 to 110 cars, but not eliminated.

The plan also calls for a new parking lot for 320 cars in North Sausalito south of the Big G Supermarket as part of a $1.9 million North Sausalito ferry terminal. The district's consultant for the terminals, Roland B. Mays of Sausalito, has suggested that only the parking lot of the North Sausalito terminal be built now, Mrs. Sweeny said.

(Mays and bridge officials detailed the plan before the council on Saturday.)

The downtown terminal would be on the same side of the sandspit as the old ferry Berkeley and the Sausalito Yacht Club, both of which

7 Plead Innocent In Bugging

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Two former White House aides and five other men indicted in the break-in of Democratic national headquarters pleaded innocent today to the charges.

The former White House aides are G. Gordon Liddy, 42, who also was formerly financial counsel for the Committee to Re-elect the President, and Howard E. Hunt, 54, who likewise was formerly connected with the re-election committee.

Lawyers for Liddy and Hunt asked a federal judge, at their arraignment, to release both men on their own recognizance, but the government objected.

Chief Judge John J. Sirrica recessed the hearing until later in the day so that all seven men accused in the incident could be interviewed by bail officials.

The other five men indicted last Friday by a federal grand jury in the alleged bugging of the Democratic offices were arrested in the headquarters by police early on the morning of June 17.

All seven men were indicted on charges of conspiring to steal documents and to bug the Democratic offices.

The defendants along with Liddy and Hunt are: Bernard L. Barker, a Miami real estate man; James W. McCord, Jr., a former security chief for the Nixon re-election committee; Eugenio R. Martinez, an employe of Barker; Crank A. Sturgis, an associate of Barker's, and Virgilio R. Gonzalez, a Miami locksmith.

Sirrica, in a brief order, announced that he would strictly enforce U.S. District Court rules involving a widely publicized or sensational case.

They require that the court may issue special orders governing extrajudicial statements by anyone involved in the case and seating in the courtroom of reporters, plus anything else the court deems appropriate.

Liddy, Hunt and the five others all pleaded "not guilty" when the charges were formally read against them.

The prosecutor attorney, Earl Silbert, did not ask for any change in bond of up to $50,000 set previously for the five other men.

Hunt was first to arrive at the courtroom and said aloud to an attorney, "I've never even been in a traffic court before."

"I've never appeared in court before," Hunt repeated to a girl sitting beside him. Hunt was represented by William O. Bittman, who in the 1950s was the chief government prosecutor against former teamsters' President James R. Hoffa. Bittman now is in private practice.

Bittman told the court: "Even in the Bobby Baker case, which was almost as notorious as this, he was released on his own recognizance with no restrictions." This was a reference to Robert G. Baker, former secretary to Senate Democrats, who was the object of an influence-selling inquiry. The government asked that Hunt and Liddy each be held on $10,000 bond and be required to make personal appearances to bond officers twice a week and to telephone them daily.

Silbert said Hunt had traveled to New York and California under an assumed name when the FBI tried to question him in the case. He said Hunt moved about extensively during 21 years with the CIA, was

Russia To Equip Iraq With Arms

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union will strengthen Iraq's defense capacity, a joint communique said Tuesday.

The communique issued at the end of a six day official visit by Iraqi President Ahmen Hassan al-Bakr, said the two countries "agreed upon concrete measures to further strengthen the defensive capacity of the Iraqi Republic with the aim of enhancing combat readiness of its armed forces."

By JAY GOODWIN

Despite appeals by Supervisor Michael Wornum, the Mill Valley City Council last night remained opposed to future use of Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way for rapid transit use. (Other Mill Valley City Council storeis, page 3.)

In a companion measure, the council agreed to send a letter to the federal government stating its opposition.

The council was asked by Wornum — who also serves as a Golden Gate Bridge District director — to endorse or remain neutral toward an application by the bridge district for federal funds to buy the right-of-way.

Under a new federal grant program, the federal government can lend about $1 million to the bridge district to purchase the right-of-way. Wornum added that if within 10 years the district decides to make use of the 40-foot-wide strip of land for rapid transit, the federal government probably would grant the bridge district money to pay off the origina loan.

If, on the other hand, the bridge district decides against using the right-of-way, the bridge district could sell it and pay back the federal government's $1 million loan with the proceeds.

According to Wornum, the right-of-way — which runs through East Mill Valley past the new Mill Valley Middle School — may revert to its previous owners if the bridge district doesn't acquire it soon. He said the right-of-way should be preserved to keep open bridge district options for future transit planning.

Wornum described a somewhat contradictory role he plays while trying to shepherd through the federal loan application.

He said he was trying to convince the Mill Valley City Council that he didn't expect the right-of-way ever to be used for mass transit, while in dealing with the federal government he takes the opposite position, stressing the likelihood that the right-of-way would be utilized.

If the bridge district bought the right-of-way, Wornum said, he envisioned a bicycle, pedestrian or horse path in the near future.

He did not believe buses running up and down the right-of-way would be "traumatic" for children at the middle school.

Councilman Robert E. Capron concluded that, on balance, the possible damage to East Mill Valley that a rapid transit system could cause outweighed the short-range benefits of a bike path.

He stressed he wasn't opposed to rapid transit in Marin County, but believed the right-of-way was in the wrong place for such a plan.

Mayor Jean S. Barnard said firmly and without reservation that she favored mass transit anywhere in Marin County and would do nothing to stand in its way.

"I'm four-square for mass transit and it's time we realized we cannot always say 'put it somewhere else'." she said.

Boessenecker opposed rapid transit because of its effect on the growth of the county.

"I think the worst thing you could do is put rail rapid transit in here" he said. "If that goes in, the population growth will blow your mind out."

Burton asked why the council knew so little about reversionary rights that affect the future of the right-of-way. He asked that the council be supplied with accurate information of the status of the property involved.

After a representative from the Mill Valley School District board and planning commissioner Ivan S. Poutiatine expressed opposition to the use of the right-of-way for transit, the council voted 4-1 against such use.

Mrs. Barnard dissented, then grimaced as the council passed another resolution instructing the city manager to forward the council's opposition to the appropriate federal agency.

Corte Madera Housing Plan Junked

Corte Madera's housing element — called by resident Byron White "the most bitterly disputed item before any town council in a long time" — was rejected last night by the Corte Madera Town Council. (Other Corte Madera council stories, page17.)

Developed by a citizens committee over more than a year's time and subject to several public hearings, the controversial housing element for inclusion in the town's general plan was approved by the Corte Madera Planning Commission in March this year.

The most disputed item, recommendation of 0 per cent low and moderate income housing, drew standing-room-only crowds for public hearings, but the whole matter had lain in abeyance since then.

Mayor Holmes S. Norville and Councilmen Harold B. Wagstaff and Robert J. Flahive voted to reject the housing element in its present form and sent it to the town's planning consultants, Sedway and Cooke, to use as reference in their general plan overhaul.

Councilman Herber C. Leney dissented, saying the report should not be denied and that it should include some of the citizen input which will result from the Town Meeting scheduled Sept. 30 at Redwood High School.

Several audience members voiced concern that the housicg element would be buried in the consultants' general plan recommendations.

Robert Holmes of 118 Westward Drive, representing East Corte Madera Hilldwellers Association, said: "In the last five or six months it's been a very hot item: I don't think the public will take very well to the idea it's suddenly going to be closed off from them."

White told the council, "You promised we could take it apart," and Philip O. Sasso, vice president of Mariner Cove Improvement Association said he was concerned it would "get lost in the maze of the general plan."

Wagstaff said there was no reason the housing element couldn't be worked on in the meantime; the council had the power to appoint a new housing element committee and to hear the input from the Town Meeting.

"It's obvious it needs to be revised and rehashed," commented Flahive, making the successful motion that the report in its present form be rejected and referred to the planning consultants.

"Had the people known it was to be closed down," complained Leney, dissenting, "they would have been here in equal numbers, and I'd like to commend the people who worked on the housing element."

Manzanita Site Still Is Occupied

The Marin City Learning Center continued to occupy the Manzanita School in Marin City today in defiance of a court order that the private school vacate the building, owned by the Sausalito School District.

The parents, who started the alternative school last year because they were dissatisfied with the education their children were receiving in Sausalito schools, said today they intend to remain in the school and fight further moves to evict them.

Sausalito school officials, meanwhile, have not decided what action they will take now to force the learning center out of the school which the district closed last September when it decided to locate all its students in two Sausalito schools.

Richard V. Godino, attorney for the district, said he may initiate contempt of court proceedings against the learning center today. But he added there is no immediate plan to have the center people forcibly evicted or arrested "although there's no guarantee it won't come to that eventually.

"It's certainly not the intent of the school district to get into that kind of hassle. We don't want to stop the learning center students from continuing their education, but we have to find some way to empty the building."

Yesterday Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson granted the district a temporary restraining order preventing the parents from using Manzanita and set Oct. 3 as the date for a hearing for the learning center to show cause why the order should not become permanent.

The district filed suit yester-

Patrick's Sta-Power Company Hit By Registration Ruling

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A San Rafael-based company belonging to millionaire William Penn Patrick's empire has been told it cannot sell new gas oil distributorships unless it registers with the state.

The ruling, issued last week against Sta-Power Industries by hearing officer Harold Furst, means that prospective distributors for the firm must be provided with financial information on job risks and advantages.

Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., attorney for Sta-Power, told the Independent-Journal today the company would take the issue to a superior court in either San Francisco or Marin.

Furst's ruling, issued after four days of hearings here, is effective Oct. 6. Goldstein said a court stay would be sought.

Like four other firms in the Patrick conglomerate of some 60 companies, Sta-Power, a five-year-old operation, offers distributorships under the so-called pyramid marketing plan. In return for an investment sum, recruits are entitled to product inventory and given the right to go out and bring others into the program.

Sta-Power was ordered by the state Department of Corporations last year to refrain from sale of further distributorships unless the company registered the transactions with the state. The department of corporations claimed the agreements were subject to the state's newly enacted franchise investment law.

Sta-Power asked for a hearing on the issue, resulting in Furst's decision last week.

Goldstein said Sta-Power doesn't look upon registration as impairing its operations, but it does assert that agreements with distributors aren't franchises. Its distributors, the company argues, are independ-

The dead man was not identified.

Firemen said a group apparently broke into the Star Distributing Co. through a rear door, and then smashed through a panel wall separating its offices from those of the Nixon campaign group.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Election Date Set

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Willy Brandt has ended months of speculation by naming Nov. 19 for West Germany's first premature parliamentary election.

Technically President Gustav Heinemann still has the responsibility for naming the election date. But political sources expected him to follow the chancellor's recommendation.

For several weeks the Bonn press had been speculating on Dec. 3 as the most likely date. This was on the basis of delays required by the constitution from the date the chancellor engineers his own defeat in a confidence vote.

But Brandt told the news conference he will announce the confidence vote Wednesday, during the first session of the Bundestag, parliament's lower house, following a summer recess that started in mid-June.

Rescue Plane Found

GRAND LAKE, Colo. (UPI) — A hunter searching for game in the Colorado Rockies stumbled across the wreckage of a Civil Air Patrol plane which vanished more than 13 years ago on a search and rescue mission over the mountains, officials said Monday.

The body of the pilot, Fred J. Lavine, was found nearby.

The discovery ended a mystery that began July 24, 1959, when the CAP pilot took off with fellow searchers to hunt for a missing plane. He was never heard from again.

Missiles Withdrawn

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has withdrawn from Egypt not only its own advanced secret weapons but also most of the Surface-to-Air SAM3 anti-aircraft missiles installed against American-made Israeli Phantom jets, diplomatic sources said today.

The disclosure came as Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Hassan Zayyat, here on an official visit, was seeking British arms, including Rapier Surface-to-air missiles, to make up for the loss of at least some of the Soviet weaponry.

Social Security Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., introduced a bill today to increase the amount of money a Social Security pensioner could make without losing any benefits.

Besides raising from $1,680 to $3,000 the maximum that could be earned from outside sources, Mansfield said the bill would also "reduce the amount by which a person would be penalized" for earning more than that.

Guerrilla Warning

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Ulster's urban guerrillas warned British troops today to evacuate Belfast's biggest hospital by midnight or be shot on sight. The army said it would stay put, and was ready.

A statement from the Second Belfast Battalion of the extremist Provisional Wing of the illegal Irish Republican Army (IRA) set the 1,200-bed Royal Victoria Hospital, Belfast's largest, as the target for tonight.

A spokesman for the hospital staff, which treats both civilian and military casualties of the violence which has taken 567 lives in three years, said the hospital's job was medical, not political, and would go on.

Teachers Strike

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Teachers in the District of Columbia, angry over personnel cuts and a pay raise bill stalled in Congress, went on strike today in defiance of a court order.

All but five of the schools serving 140,000 students in the nation's capital were being picketed, a spokesman for the D.C. Teachers union, a chapter of the American Federation of Teachers, said.

Products Recalled

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Nu Vita, a food manufacturer and distributor here said Monday it is voluntarily recalling on a nationwide basis some of its products that may carry harmful bacteria.

A spokesman of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in Seattle said that an analysis of the products, mainly elbow macaroni and spaghetti packed in cellophane, is being made to determine if there is salmonella bacteria in them. Salmonella can cause food poisoning, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and cramps.

Asians To Britain

LONDON (UPI) — British resettlement officials today tackled a job they have been rehearsing for weeks — finding homes and work for 50,000 Asians, many of them penniless, flying daily into Britain after expulsion from Uganda.

Communities, individuals and schools began coming forward with offers to take care of the arrivals. The first planeload, 193 Asians airlifted from their East African homeland, arrived at Stansted Airport outside London yesterday.

Confederation Proposed

TOKYO (UPI) — Premier Kim Il-sung of North Korea has proposed a "confederation" of South and North Korea that will keep their political systems intact while they work toward reunification.

Kim made the proposal in an interview with reporters of Japan's Mainichi Daily News Sunday and published today.

Tanzanians Digging In Near Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)— An invasion force from Tanzania dug into positions just inside the Ugandan border today after being driven back by Ugandan infantry, tanks and planes, military officials said.

Dar Es Salaam, the Tanzanian government announced Ugandan warplanes bombed the Tanzanian border area town of Bukoba today for the second successive day. The government announcement said the bombers struck at about 8 a.m. but gave no further details.

(Bukoba, a town of 30,000 on the shore of Lake Victoria, lies about 20 miles south of the border with Uganda.

President Idi Amin said the 1,500-man force included Tanzanian troops and Uganda exiles bent on restoring former President Milton Obote to power. Obote took asylum in neighboring Tanzania last year after Amin toppled him in a military coup.

Uganda Radio quoted Amin as saying Britain and Tanzania wanted to restore Obote to power and halt Amin's expulsion of Uganda Asians.

In Dar Es Salaam, President Julius Nyerere moved about 1,000 Tanzanian troops up to the Ugandan border with strict orders not to provoke incidents or cross into Uganda.

Amin told a meeting of African diplomats Monday evening that 50 Tanzanians had been captured and more than 200 killed. He quoted three captives—one allegedly a cousin of Obote—as saying the guerrillas expected to reinstate Obote and expected British troop support.

FBI's Grapp Facing Yet Another Demotion

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The former chief of the FBI office here, already demoted once in a moustache conflict, faces another demotion, suspension and official censure, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times said it pad learned that Wesley G. Grapp faces the severest punishment possible short of outright dismissl for violating bureau rules by installing wiretaps and bugs in his own offices.

The newspaper said the action against Grapp was ordered by Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray.

Grapp, who has been involved in a running dispute with Gray, was not available for comment.

His whereabouts were not known. He was recently demoted from head of the Los Angeles FBI office to agent in charge of the much smaller El Paso, Tex., office, but has not yet reported for duty there.

Gray sent Grapp a letter Friday in which the acting director said Grapp would be stripped of his rank as a local office chief, at $36,000 a year, and reduced to an ordinary special agent, at a maximum of $24,362 a year, sent to the Minneapolis bureau, and suspended for 30 days of censure, the Times said.

Grapp has 10 days to respond to the letter, and can appeal the punishment.

Grapp, who reportedly was on close terms with the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, clashed with Gray over the relaxation of the bureau's strict dress code. Gray, on a visit to the Los Angeles office, personally told agents they could grow moustaches, wear their hair a bit longer, and wear colored shirts instead of the white ones that were regardedas mandatory under Hoover.

When some of the agents began to grow moustaches, the FBI said, Grapp ordered them to shave, saying he was charge of the office, not Gray.

Grapp was demoted to head of the El Paso office for the manner in which he refused to carry out a policy change order, Gray said.

The latest proposed punishment is for another offense. The FBI said an inspection team sent from Washington discovered that Grapp had equipped the office with electronic devices to record telephone conversations, and discussion in the office, "in violation of FBI policy and regulations."

Spending Limit Necessary For Economy, Says Adviser

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said today efforts to halt inflation and cut unemployment will fail unless Congress adheres to a proposed $250 billion limit on federal spending this fiscal year.

If spending is held down, Herbert Stein told the House Ways and Means Committee, unemployment can be reduced to the neighborhood of 5 per cent by the end of the year. It now is estimated at 5.6 per cent. He said a spending limit also would lead to "progress on the inflation front."

Stein said federal, state and local governments together now spend about $400 billion a year, which he said averages out to $100 per family per week.

"We think this share is very large," Stein said. "We believe it should certainly not increase, certainly not until or unless governments show themselves better able to use our incomes than they have shown to date.

"But the share will increase unless we draw the line and stick to it. The $250 billion spending ceiling would be an important step toward drawing the line."

Democrats generally agree with Nixon that there should be a ceiling on federal spending, but they want the administration to say which programs should be cut to stay within the proposed limit. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Budget Director Caspar Weinberger told the committee Monday the ceiling was necessary to combat inflation.

The administration has asked that the ceiling be included in their request for a $15 billion increase in the temporary $450 billion limit on the national debt. The temporary debt limit will expire Oct. 31 without Congressional action to extend or increase it.

Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., said he had long supported a spending ceiling, but Rep. James Burke, D-Mass., third ranking Democrat on the panel, called the administration proposal "a joke, a hoax and a fraud."

Berkeley Man Guilty Of Car Theft Charge

A Marin jury has convicted Gregory Carl Brown, 20, of Berkeley of two counts of car theft, but cleared him of a charge of grand theft.

Brown was arrested in the midwest in February on a warrant charging him taking a car from Dexter Toyota of San Rafael on the pretext of test driving it and never returning it. When arrested, he was driving a Pontiac, also stolen in Marin.

Sentencing was set for Oct. 27.

Japan Riot Against U.S. Army Stopped

TOKYO (UPI)—Japanese riot police battled hundreds of leftist demonstrators south of Tokyo todayto successfully open a path for 10 U.S. Army armored personnel carriers being taken to a Yokohama pier for shipment.

About 5,000 protesters tried to block the shipment, which they said was bound for the war in Vietnam. U.S. officials did not say where the vehicles were headed.

The police evicted an estimated 1,500 of the demonstrators from in front of the U.S. Army supply depot at Sagamihara and escorted the convoy of heavy-duty trucks carrying the canvas-wrapped vehicles to the U.S. military's north pier. They reported no major incidents along the 19-mile route after they got by the demonstrators.

Wife Of POW: Bombing Raids Have To Stop

TOKYO (UPI) — Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency (VNA) Monday quoted the wife of a U.S. pilot shot down while bombing North Vietnam as saying the raids "have got to stop" and said the mother of another flier called the bombing "so unnecessary."

VNA said the women were scheduled for more sightseeing in the North Vietnamese capital today. Charles, Gartley and Maj. Edward Elias of Valdosta, Ga., all prisoners of war, were released Sunday in a downtown Hanoi ceremony. They are expected to leave for home Saturday.

VNA, monitored in Tokyo, said the American women had visited the Bach Mai Hospital, largest in North Vietnam, and "learned that the doctors and medical personnel had performed surgical operations on 29 victims of a U.S. bombing just the previous night."

The dispatch said the women were shown the Trung Dinh residential quarters where "four U.S. 2,000 pound-bombs on June 27 destroyed eight blocks of houses and killed or wounded 44 persons, mostly women and children."

Communists Launch Offensive On S. Vietnam Central Coast

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops Monday launched heavy attacks on the Central Coast against defenders of a district capital and nearby outposts in South Vietnam's least secure province, military sources said today.

Three American advisers with a government unit were wounded in one of the attacks, centered near the district capital of Bong Son in Binh Dinh Province 290 miles north of Saigon, the U.S. command said. Binh Dinh has long been rated by U.S. pacification experts as the country's most dissident.

The command also disclosed that two U.S. Navy airmen were missing in the crash of their A6 Intruder jet northeast of Hanoi Sunday only hours before the North Vietnamese government released three American prisoners of war in a ceremony in the capital. Spokesmen said the exact location of the crash and its cause were not known.

Air Force spokesmen officially announced that Capt. Charles D. Debellevue, 27, of Lafayette, La., was credited with bringing down his sixth North Vietnamese MIG jet fighter—giving him more MIG kills than any other American in the Vietnam War.

In air action, the command reported 230 U.S. fighter-bomber strikes Monday over North Vietnam and said 15 B52s bombed Communist positions around Dong Hoi just north of the Demilitarized Zone. Spokesmen said the fighter-bombers knocked out 12 bridges, 24 warehouses, 18 trucks and 16 small supply ships. A total of 57 B52s hit targets in North and South Vietnam Monday and today, officials said.

About 2,000 government paratroopers today began pushing north of Quang Tri City along the Thach Han River and almost immediately met heavy Communist mortar, artillery and recoilless rifle fire, UPI correspondent Barney Seibert reported. The airborne troops were trying to push the North Vietnamese back into the Demilitarized Zone after recapturing the city's fortress Citadel Friday, ending 140 days of Communist occupation.

In an English language broadcast heard in Saigon today, Hanoi Radio insisted Quang Tri was still in North Vietnamese hands and that 24,000 "enemy troops" had been "wiped out" over the past 82 days.

Mill Valley Tackles Dog Problem

The Mill Valley City Council last night established a seven-man committee to come up with solutions to the city's dog problem. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 1)

The council acted after listening to John Gill, new Marin County Humane Society director, who was making his second consecutive appearance before the council.

Gill warmed the somewhat disgruntled audience by announcing that the humane society had decided to staff Mill Valley with a full-time animal control officer. In the past, the control officer only worked in Mill Valley part-time.

Gill also recommended the council sharply increase the impound fees charged owners of dogs that have been picked up by the humane society. He suggested the rates be raised to $10 for the first impound, $15 for the second and $25 for the third. The intention, he said, was to penalize those irresponsible dog owners who are causing all the problems.

Several councilmen offered a variety of different impound fee schedules, but Gill quickly urged them to adopt the same fees recently adopted by San Anselmo.

After some discussion, the council decided not to set a new fee schedule but to instruct the city attorney to draft an ordinance allowing the council to set new impound fees at a single meeting by council resolution.

Gill also suggested that a ceiling of three dogs per single household be established in Mill Valley. He said he thought such an ordinance should include a "grandfather clause" allowing owners of more than three dogs, at the time of the ordinance, to keep their extra pets.

Before long, the council began to ramble through a series of possible solutions to the city's dog troubles. Councilman Gerald J. Hood said Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker's wife, Joan, had an excellent suggestion.

Mrs. Boessenecker approached the microphone and recommended the creation of a dog committee that would thrash out the dog problems and present the council with a series of proposals.

After some disagreement over composition of the committee, the council agreed it should consist of a representative from the humane society; Mrs. Boessenecker; Francis Wolff, who put the public spotlight on the problem of wild dogs on Cascade Drive; Cherrie Mackey; Mayor Jean S. Barnard; a Mill Valley veterinarian, and a representative of the chamber of commerce.

RICHARDSON HIGHLANDS — A new name for a new development proposed by a Washington, D.C., developer for 36 acres along Donahue Street and Guy Circle in Marin City. The developers envision 284 garden apartments and 160 condominiums clustered around a pool, social hall and combination basketball/volleyball/paddleball court. The plan will be considered, along with four others, by the redevelopment agency on Oct. 10.

Performing Arts Sets Repertory

The Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts has announced its first full repertory season under the executive direction of James P. Funk.

"Oedipus Rex," conceived as a primitive fertility rite, will open Oct. 5, followed by Jean Cocteau's "The Infernal Machine," a comedy based on the Oedipus legend.

An original rock musical will debut Nov. 17.

In January, "Moonchildren," a whimsical look at the youth culture, and two plays by Israel Horowitz, "Acrobats," and "Line" will play in repertory with a chilling old mystery, "The Ghost Train."

Nightspot Use Draws Approval

Mill Valley's city council went over the application of the Sweetwater cocktail lounge with a fine-tooth comb last night, then unanimously approved the proposed nightspot on Throckmorton Avenue.

The lounge's application for a conditional use permit had been granted by the planning commission but was appealed to the council by a group of residents who believed the lounge would create too much noise or alter the character of Mill Valley.

The Sweetwater lounge, which will replace The Office at 153 Throckmorton Avenue, will present live entertainment along with its wine, beer, liquor and snacks.

Fred Martin, president of a group of local residents which has invested in the pub, said he had been assured that he didn't need a variance to the city's parking requirement.

He said that since Sweetwater's business represents a continuation of the use of the premises, he expected his lounge would continue as a nonconforming status.

After a moment of confusion, City Atty. Leland H. Jordan agreed that the new business constituted a continued use of the building and did not require any new variance.

After a few questions, the council unanimously quashed the appeal of the planning commission's original approval.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

APPRECIATION — Awarded a certificate of appreciation to Doris Bassett, who served on the city's architectural advisory committee for more than five years.

HOUSING AUTHORITY — Heard a report from the executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority, Wallace K. Sheppard, on the past year's activity. Sheppard praised Mill Valley as one of the most progressive cities in the housing field in Marin.

SCOTT VALLEY — Approved plans for an underground pipeline which will carry water from Scott Valley to Richardson Bay, presented by Charles Murphy from Flood Control District 3.

TOPICS — Decided to send a letter to Sacramento indicating Mill Valley intends to meet all deadlines to qualify for TOPICS street funds. The council also scheduled an Oct. 3 public hearing on the Miller Avenue master plan, phase one, and instructed staff to prepare a thorough study of all unresolved questions on the plan by Oct. 16.

Favorite Plan For Marin City Emerges

A real estate consultant has recommended that the Marin County Redevelopment Agency accept the offer of a Washington, D.C., developer to build garden apartments and condominiums in Marin City, labeling the firm's proposal as "precisely the development contemplated by the redevelopment plan."

The consultant, Douglas C. Myers, made his recommendation after reviewing proposals from five developers to build a variety of residential units on 36 acres of open land in Marin City.

Originally, Myers did not intend to single out any of the five proposals in his report to the redevelopment agency. But he reconsidered after reading the firm's offer to buy the land for more than $1.1 million and build 284 garden apartments and 160 condominiums on the property.

The homes will be market-rate units, rather than low-cost housing. Despite protests from some residents, the agency has set itself against additional low-cost housing in Marin City.

Myers recommended the agency accept the offer from Mid-Cities Developers, Inc., saying it proposed the highest price for the land, outstanding architecture and the most thorough affirmative action plan to help the area's minority residents.

Myers also reviewed, but was less impressed by, proposals from Subsidized Housing, Inc., of Beverly Hills; Inland Steel Corp. of Chicago; Barry Slatt Mortgage Co. of San Francisco and Larwin Corp. of Los Angeles.

The Mid-Cities proposal met every criteria established by the redevelopment agency for the contemplated development, Myers said. Its plan to provide opportunities in employment, investment and training for local residents was particularly thorough, he said.

In a 24-page statement of its affirmative action program, Mid-Cities promised (1) to hire local residents at almost every stage of construction and maintenance of the new development, (2) to encourage community participation in planning, construction and maintenance phases through the project area committee, (3) to pursue construction of nearby shopping areas and recreation areas to enhance the livability of Marin City, and (4) to assist local residents in establishing minority businesses.

All five proposals will be reviewed by the redevelopment agency on Oct. 10.

According to agency executive director Wallace K. Sheppard — who also was impressed with the Mid-Cities proposal — the agency will probably select the developer at its meeting that night.

Immigrant Held In Driving Case

After they arrested a San Rafael man on suspicion of drunken driving Saturday night it was discovered he was an illegal immigrant, reported Larkspur police yesterday.

Pedro Perez Perez, 38, of Apt. #1, 35 Valencia Street, San Rafael, was stopped after his car swerved violently at speeds up to 40 miles per hour on Magnolia Avenue, said police, and records disclosed he was an unregistered alien.

He was booked into Marin county jail on suspicion of drunken driving and held for U.S. Department of Immigration authorities for deportation, according to police.

Vintage Car's Radiator Taken

The vintage car is being restored by Mrs. Pedelaborde's husband, said police, and the radiator was intact the day before.

Sausalito Council Split Over Terminal

Fraser and Heynneman pushed unsuccessfully for approval of the plan on condition that the underground parking lot be elimiated, the city be given use of the North Sausalito parking lot for weekend tourists, the district share half the development and operation and maintenance costs of the park plaza at the downtown terminal, vehicle access to the North Sausalito lot be only via Gate 5 Road, and the district subsidize shuttle bus service between the lot and downtown.

The discussion, however, rarely touched on the five conditions. Instead it bogged down in Mrs. Sweeny's repeated pleas for "all kinds of study that we need to do" to plan the waterfront before deciding what to do about the ferry terminal. (The city has been studying the waterfront for decades, and had had numerous "master plans" drawn and adopted to guide such decisions along the waterfront.)

Mrs. Sweeny also asked for study of the effects of ferry wake on the shoreline and of the longer travel time on patronage if a North Sausalito terminal were built. (The bridge district's naval architect completed these publicized studies two years ago.)

Heynneman, commenting he was disturbed "that we still are not ready to decide," argued that under the bridge district's plan "much of our downtown area can be enhanced."

Fraser cautioned that if the district drops plans for its terminal because of city indecision, it will be five to 10 years "before we have another chance. We have nothing now; we have nothing to lose now except an ugly, unaesthetic mess."

Mrs. Sweeny, however, said the district "could ill afford to give us up," citing the profitable tourist traffic its ferry carries to Sausalito on weekends and holidays.

Strong opposition to the plan also came from Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt, who said only half of the ferry commuters come from Sausalito. When the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's station opens near the Ferry Building in San Francisco, he said, ferries will bring far greater hordes of tourists to Sausalito.

The president of the Sausalito Citizens Council, Alan Conner, warned that the plan "puts a very severe burden on downtown Sausalito." He said he was an enthusiastic ferryboat commuter, "but I love Sausalito a little bit more than the ferryboat."

Carl W. Spring, corresponding secretary of the citizens council, objected that the plan would "turn downtown into a bus terminal for the benefit of upcounty commuters." (The district will build a terminal in Larkspur for Central Marin ferry commuters.)

He denounced district officials as "long promisers and short deliverers," saying they were trying to "make a sucker out of Sausalito."

H. Thomas Rogers, chairman of the Sausalito Recreation Commission, suggested the existing service be continued without addition of a new terminal. "Let's say to them, 'leave the service as it is, or go away.' "

Mrs. Sweeny objected that "that kind of finality isn't necessary."

The other sharp criticism of the evening was aimed by Fraser at Supervisor Michael Wornum. He said Wornum had been "a miserable failure in the past year representing us on the bridge board," adding Wornum should have been present last night.

(Wornum was before the Mill Valley City Council last night, pleading to no avail for its approval of future use of Northwestern Pacific Railroad's right-of-way for rapid transit. Story, page 1)

fluent in Spanish and "has contacts with many people outside this country."

Bittman said Hunt had lost his job and so had his wife when a reporter called the Spanish embassy where she was employed about the case.

Peter L. Marulis, attorney for Liddy, made the same plea in a lengthy recitation of his career, most of it with the FBI. He noted that Liddy was the author of a movie, "Stay Alert and Stay Alive," which is still used by the FBI and police in training.

He said Liddy was appointed in 1969 as special assistant to the secretary of the treasury and worked on task forces on organized crime, drug abuse, and explosives control before being named counsel to the finance committee of the Committee to Re-elect the President. He also worked on the White House staff the attorney said.

Sirrica gave each side 15 days to file motions and 10 more days to file responses. He denied defense lawyers' request for more time, indicating the case probably would be tried promptly.

A George Washington University law professor has asked the court to appoint an impartial, unbiased prosecutor in the case.

John Banzhaf III criticized both the Democrats and the Republicans when he filed a 28-page application Monday. He said the Democrats should have filed the aplication themselves but "would rather have the issue than the special prosecutor."

At the White House this morning, President Nixon conferred with Republican congressional leaders and they said afterward that they did not believe the alleged bugging would be an issue in the presidential campaign as far as voters were concerned.

"The indictments are on the record and they clear the White House and any other of the responsible people on the Committee to Re-elect the President," Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott said.

Banzhaf also criticized the Justice Department, which has been handling the investigation, for demonstrating "the evil of the conflict of interest." He pointed out that Nixon's campaign manager, Clark MacGregor, last Friday announced that the Justice Department would publish a further report about the investigation.

"An announcement by a spokesman for those being investigated as to what the investigator will do strikingly demonstrates the dangers of the conflict of interest this application seeks to correct," Banzhaf said.

The law professor said former Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien has called repeatedly for appointment of a special investigator but has "refused to take the one step which might possibly lead to the appointment."

"It appears to me that Mr. O'Brien is contented in taking one approach in public and another in private," Banzhaf said.

U.S. District Judge Charles Richey has said he will rule by Wednesday on a motion by defendants to dismiss O'Brien's $1 million damage suit. He also will rule on a motion to add to the list of defendants former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, Nixon's chief fund raiser, and Hugh Sloan, a former official of the Committee to Re-elect the President.

They contended the defendants demonstrated the merits of the case by failing to challenge some of the claims made in the suit.

"This is one of the most hotly contested cases in the federal courts and it is inconceivable that anyone would conclude that the plaintiffs would concede any motion to dismiss," the Democratic attorneys wrote.

day asking that the center be restrained from using the school. The suit charged that the unauthorized use made it impossible for the district to use the building itself, or go ahead with plans to lease it to the Marin City Community Services District for use by various community groups in Marin City. The district also stated that continued use by the learning center might result in cancellation of fire insurance for the building.

After Judge Wilson ruled yesterday, Royce McLemore, learning center director, said the group would not resist the court order to leave and planned to move its materials and equipment out today. (The center occupied the vacant building about a month ago, cleaned it repaired it and readied it for classes which began last week with about 80 students in attendance.)

This morning the parents began moving desks and materials from the building as a deputy sheriff stood by to see that the evacuation was completed.

But the center people moved back into Manzanita School once the deputy left, and Mrs. McLemore said today she and other staff members are prepared to fight any move to physically eject them.

"The Sausalito School District is trying to do everything possible to stop the Marin City Learning Center from educating our children in our own community," Mrs. McLemore said. "But we're staying," she added. "We dont' have any other place to hold our classes."

Guilty Plea In Property Case

James Michael Booth, 29, of Woodacre pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of concealing stolen property and a second count of burglary was dismissed.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner accepted the plea, but set sentencing for Oct. 30 in the court of Judge Joseph G. Wilson, who negotiated the plea. Booth pleaded guilty on condition his violation be declared a misdemeanor when he is sentenced.

Booth was arrested May 24 by sheriff's deputies after William F. Wright of Linares Road, Forest Knolls, told them he had seen a rug stolen from his home in a pickup truck which he followed to Booth's residence.

BART Has Its First Failure

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Bay Area Rapid Transit District's new rail system had its first train failure Monday, causing a delay of 20 minutes.

A following train was coupled to the stalled one which was then pushed to another station.

Mrs. Clark was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut lip, bruised knee and a sprain.

Former Fireman Admits To Arson

A former volunteer fireman charged with setting fire to his former home in Bolinas Saturday was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday, then released without bail.

Post was arrested in Petaluma after an 80-mile-an-hour chase and admitted setting fire to the nineteenth century victorian building at 19 Brighton Avenue, according to Petaluma police and Marin sheriff's investigators.

He said he went to the $58,000 home at 4:30 a.m., threw gas on the house and lit it to prevent his ex-wife from getting a second mortgage, sheriff's officers reported.

Post was a Bolinas volunteer fireman until two years ago, but more recently worked for his brother at a Sausalito restaurant.

Innocent Plea In Credit Case

A 21-year-old Mill Valley resident who allegedly had stolen license plates and bought a tire with an invalid credit card pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of concealing stolen property and the credit card violation.

A preliminary hearing for Daniel John Pasquale on the two felony counts was set for Oct. 3.

Sheriff's deputies arrested him in Strawberry Wednesday after he tried to buy a tire from the Texaco service station on Frontage Road. Pasquale fled when the station attendant started phoning for verification of the credit card, deputies said.

ent contractors over whom no franchise control is established.

But the state claims that financial agreements in the nature of fees and overrides among distributors advancing through the ranks of the company bring the makreting plan under franchise investment regulations.

Goldstein said making the company subject to such regulations would require substantial expense and necessitate a "whole new administrative structure."

Carlyle R. Brakensiek, counsel for the state Department of Corporations, said Furst's ruling would have no effect on the other pyramid companies in Patrick's empire unless the department of corporations moved similarly against them.

The state attorney general's office, meantime, also has brought legal action against Sta-Power, as well as Alexander Taylor Inc., clothing firm in the Patrick conglomerate.

bassy in London said two other "suspiciously bulky" letters were received today but were not opened. Explosives experts were examining them.

The British Foreign Office, which expressed "our deepest condolences...for this terrible incident," said the envelope was mailed from Amsterdam.

A woman employe who was in a nearby office said: "As far as we know the man was sitting in his office when he received a parcel addressed to him. We do not know if the parcel was delivered by hand or through the post."

Investigators were confronted with the mystery of how the envelope got into the embassy. The Israelis maintain the strictest security on parcels delivered to their establishments in any part of the world.

MENA in another report said informed sources in Beirut expected Riad to reach a settlement of the dispute in planned talks on both sides of the Lebanese-guerrilla issue. They said Riad would meet with Arafat after his talks with Salam and other Lebanese officials.

Jail Ordered For Pot Sale

Donald Eugene Dilly, 20, of Novato, was ordered yesterday to spend four months in jail for selling almost an ounce of marijuana to an undercover narcotics agent for $10.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner placed Dilly on probation for five years and, in addition to jail time, ordered him to undergo testing for drug use and treatment for drug abuse.

Dilly was arrested March 25 on a warrant charging him with the sale of 22 grams of marijuana on Nov. 19. "Usually when people sell marijuana, they will sell anything they can get their hands on," the judge said.

He said Dilly, who was subsequently arrested on suspicion of concealing stolen property, is "trying hard" for state prison.

San Rafael Considering Law On Burglar Alarms

The San Rafael City Council last night continued consideration of an ordinance aimed at regulating fire and burglar alarm systems in the city after alarm company representatives balked at proposed penalty payments for false alarms.

The ordinance would require alarm companies to obtain a license from the police department to conduct business in San Rafael. It also sets installation and quality control standards as well as penalty fees for faulty systems.

The ordinance has been requested by Police Chief Joseph J. Brusatori in the wake of 2,500 false alarms last year which consumed 88 man-days.

Alarm company representatives balked at provisions of the proposed ordinance which allows the chief to levy a $20 per hour penalty payment on an occupant or permit holder who does not appear at the scene within 30 minutes after an alarm has been tripped.

Brusatori said that several weeks ago an alarm had buzzed for two days before the fire department finally ripped it out. Alarm representatives argued they needed more time to get to the scene of an active alarm.

The ordinance would also levy a $25 fee for every false alarm over three that occur in any month.

"What constitutes a false alarm, and who picks up the tab — the company or the occupant?" asked one alarm company representative.

Another representative claimed the ordinance would put small alarm firms out of business and suggested that a company be paid a flat fee by the city if an alarm resulted in the capture of an intruder.

Jerry Hallett, representing American Sentry Systems of San Rafael, said that the ordinance should include provisions for fining the phone company. Hallett, backed by other representatives, said phone exchanges and careless technicians were responsible for "more than 50 per cent of all false alarms."

"I'll look into this and take care of the phone company part of it in the morning," declared Councilman Harry A. Barbier, a phone company public affairs official.

Barbier had earlier argued that careless storeowners who tripped alarms when opening or closing shop were responsible for the false alarm problem. The council agreed with Barbier that some sort of ordinance was needed to combat false alarms that "take men off the beat and put them where they don't belong."

The council asked City Atty. Fred E. Robbins to revise the ordinance with an eye toward designating responsibility for false alarms. The matter will again be considered on Oct. 30.

San Rafael Council Doubles Bedroom Tax

The San Rafael City Council last night more than doubled the city's "bedroom tax" levied for construction of new dwelling units.

The council, with John A. Miskimen dissenting, voted 3-1 to hike the tax from $30 to $75 per bedroom and from $60 to $75 per mobile home unit. Mayor C. Paul Bettini was absent.

"I don't think this council should add to the inflationary cost of new construction," Miskimen said, calling the measure a "nice easy tax that gets lost in the shuffle."

Councilman Fred E. Jensen said the levy was "the fairest tax we've ever had."

All bedroom tax funds are used for public recreational facilities, according to Parks and Recreation Director Andrew J. Snyder, who urged the hike last night.

Snyder said the bedroom tax so far had netted only $40,604 and "this isn't enough to acquire parkland when it becomes available."

The tax insures that new residents pay their fair share of the cost of recreational services, Snyder said.

The San Rafael City Council also:

McCARTHY CO. — Put over to Oct. 30 consideration of an appeal by the Terra Linda Homeowners Association and others of planning commission approval of a townhouse and apartment complex off San Pablo Avenue proposed by McCarthy Co. of Northern California. The council Oct. 30 will also hear a rezoning requested by the firm, which was not ready to discuss it last night.

GENERAL PLAN — Approved a $79,100 contract with the planning firm of Duncan and Jones for work on the city's general plan. The contract provides for five general meetings and three public hearings on the general plan, which is expected to be completed by fiscal 1973-74.

PERSONNEL — Hired Linsey Trimble for work in the parks and recreation department at a monthly salary of $692.

WARRANTS — Adopted the warrants after "careful review," according to finance committeeman John A. Miskimen.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned in memory of Louise A. Boyd to Sept. 25 at 8 p.m. for a meeting on redevelopment.

J. A. Loos Installed By Jaycees

Jackson A. Loos has been installed as president of the San Rafael Jayceees, succeeding James Steele.

Peggy MacDonald, wife of Robert S. MacDonald, was installed as president of the Jaycettes, women's auxiliary organization.

Loos is director of security counseling service for Insurance Co. of North America. He and the new Jaycettes president both reside in Marinwood.

Featuring the installation banquet at Villa Rafael was the "Jaycee of the Year" award to William G. May. The past president's plaque was presented to Steele.

Other officers installed by Donald Lindquist, district governor, were Edward Rann, state director; Kenneth Hunter, internal vice president; May, external vice president; Louis H. Peixotto, secretary-treasurer, and Clark Woolston, director.

Installed as officers of the Jaycettes were Jill Hunter, vice president; Marie Peixotto, recording secretary; Judy Steele, corresponding secretary, and Gloria Brown, treasurer.

The Jaycees, formerly known as junior chamber of commerce, is a young businessmen's organization. Among its projects in San Rafael are the display of flags on downtown streets on holidays and the "orange crate derby."

Children's Theater Set 'Beauty, Beast'

The children's theater of the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts will present "Beauty and the Beast" at 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Saturday in the Park School Auditorium.

The cast, which consists of eight adults and three children, performed the same play at Old Mill School during the summer.

Scouts Set Drive for Membership

Marin County Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers will conduct a membership drive the week of Sept. 28 to Oct. 5.

Scout representatives will be at neighborhood schools in the evenings to inform interested boys and parents about the program.

More information about the exact dates and times representatives will be available can be obtained from the school nearest a youngster's home.

The Marin Council Boy Scouts has announced that a home donated to them to be sold as a fund raiser has netted $10,000 for the Scouts.

Navy Sued Over Dumping Order

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—The Navy was sued Monday for failing to comply with a court order to stop dumping 380,000 gallons of partially treated waste water daily into San Francisco Bay.

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board asked Alameda County Superior Court for a permanent injunction against dumping from the Alameda Naval Air Station and civil penalties of $6,000 per day for further violations.

The board said it issued an order Oct. 1, 1971, to eliminate waste dumped in the bay after only minor treatment to remove oil and sludge.

Hub Commission Votes To Freeze Open Space

The snowballing drive to freeze Marin's open space pending land use study gained more momentum last night when the San Anselmo Planning Commission added its weight.

The commission unanimously sent to the city council its plan for strict temporary bans on building, subdividing and rezoning, but not before the complaint of at least one property owner was heard.

Philip S. Bundschu of The Alameda, who said he has 58 acres in and adjoining San Anseimo for sale, claimed the proposed four-month emergency ordinance would be inverse condemnation of his land.

"Those that can afford to take this to court will and if I had the resources, I would too," he said. "I want to develop my property, but I can't if you have this moratorium. Am I to be penalized because I bought my land 17 years ago and have paid taxes on it all these years?"

Commission Chairman Duane C. Ragan told him times have changed making the city general plan and zoning rules out of date.

"I know times change, but my taxes don't change," Bundschu retorted.

His was the only obstacle to the proposed ban which had been hatched at previous sessions. The commission passed it with little comment and Bundschu was the only spectator in the audience of 20 who spoke.

As finally recommended, the measure, which could be extended up to two years, covers all undeveloped parcels and all commercial lots, developed already or not.

"Any land use which would in any way permanently change the conformity of the land (such as by grading, excavation, fill, pilings, construction, or the commitment of the use of the land beyond a period of one year) or rezoning shall require a use permit," the proposed emergency ordinance says.

A use permit would be granted only if the commission should find "substantial probability" that the use would be consistent with proposed zoning and general plan revisions.

The proposal is modeled after that of San Rafael, but unlike San Rafael's or those of other Marin cities, the proposed ban covers all undeveloped sites, not just the larger ones.

Bundschu called the phenomena of moratoriums which has already reached the majority of Marin cities the "kind of thinking that 'I moved here first and I want to look at your land so you can't use it.' "

The San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

ORGANIC RESTAURANT — Approved an application by Beverly Patrick for a use permit to sell beer and wine and provide unamplified live entertainment in a new restaurant called The Enchanted Garden scheduled to open at 726 San Anselmo Avenue on Oct. 15.

DELICATESSEN — Referred back to the applicant, Patricia C. Barbera, an application for a beer and wine use permit for a restaurant to be called The Plank Delicatessen in part of a large building at 21 Mariposa Avenue and directed her to try to find some off-street parking spaces.

TREES — Referred back to William B. Wiley his request for a frontyard setback variance to build a home and carport at 60 Crest Road suggesting he redesign the structure to save the tree screen along the road.

Shriver Charged On Solicitation

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI)— Joseph H. Blatchford, director of ACTION has charged that Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver used unauthorized names of former Peace Corps and VISTA volunteers for political solicitation.

Blatchford, who said he was in the area campaigning on behalf of the Committee to Reelect the President, also alleged Monday the lists may have been stolen or illegally taken from ACTION headquarters in Washington, C.C.

"Soliciting former volunteers for political or commercial purposes is a direct violation of a policy Shriver himself established when he was head of the Peace Corps," Blatchford said.

Strawberry Fall Classes Announced

The Strawberry Recreation District has announced fall classes in dance, slimnastics, pre-school rhythms, yoga and art. Information on these courses can be obtained at the community recreation center.

The board has also announced that a meeting of the Strawberry Planning Committee will be help tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the community center board room.

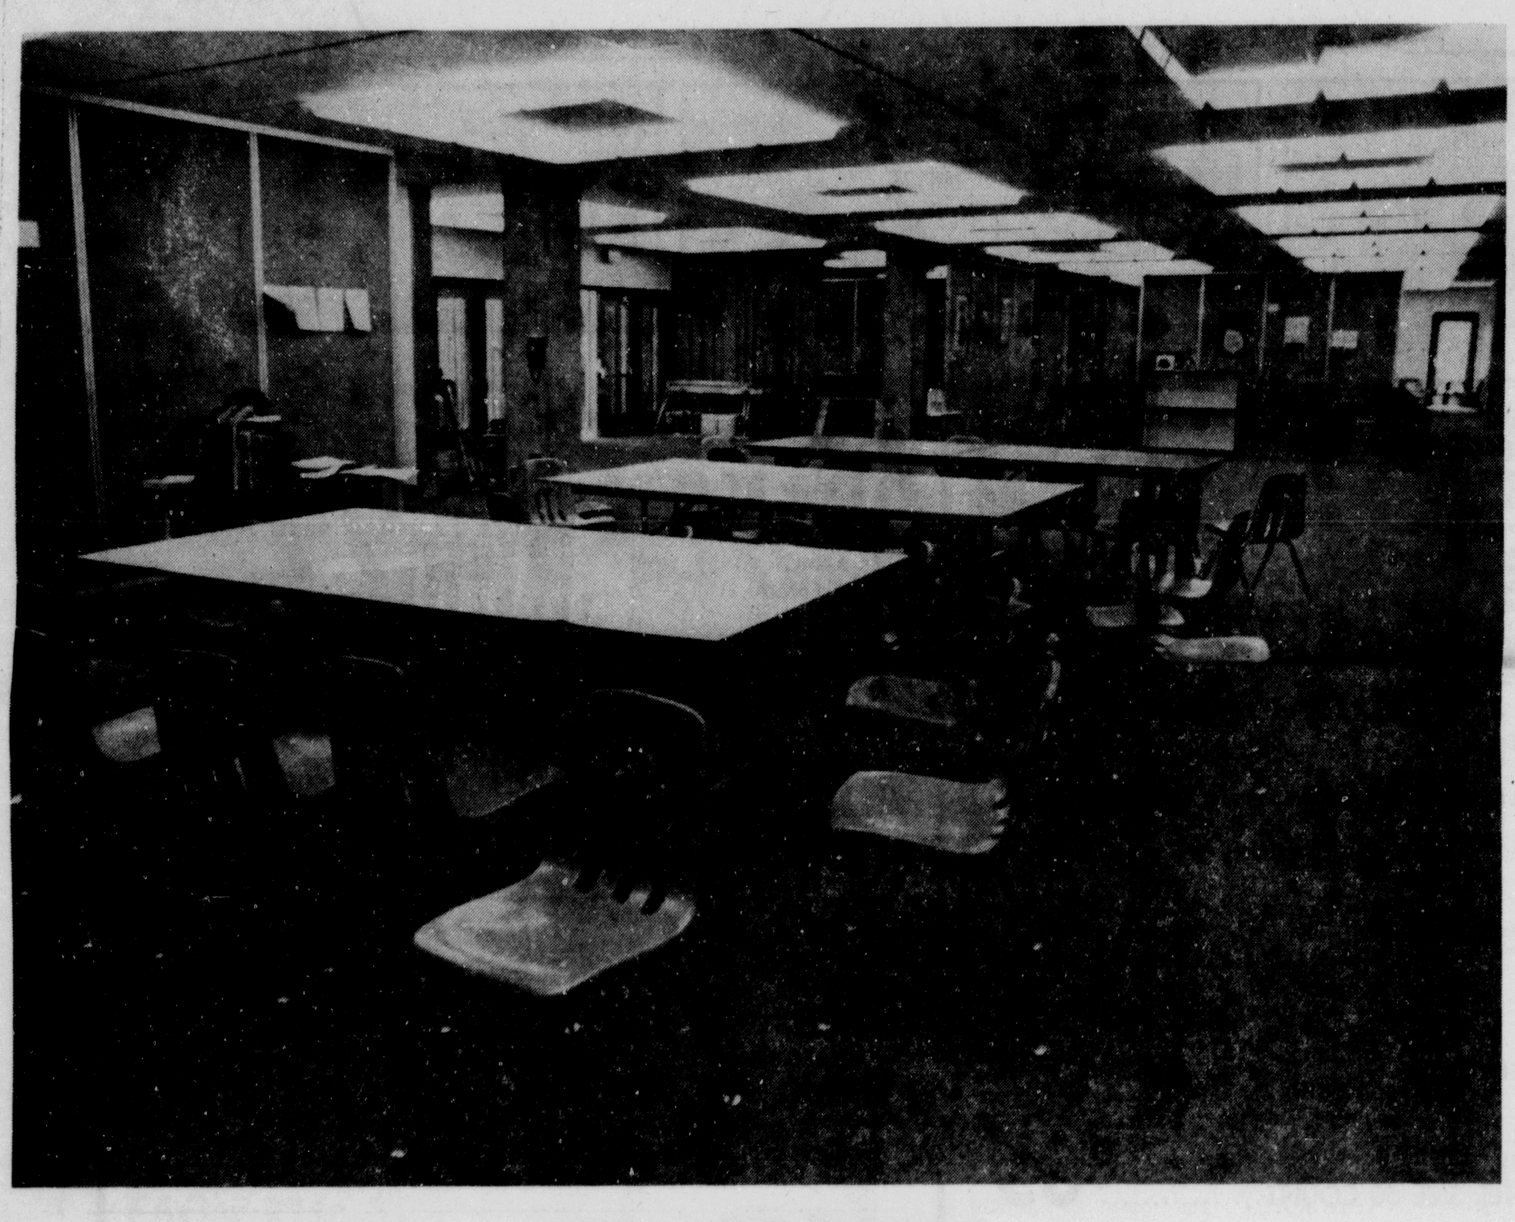
OUTDOOR PLAY — Physical education classes at Casa Grande will remain outdoors until the gymnaisum in the foreground is completed. As at more established schools, students tend to remain on campus after school for a quick game of basketball. Players (from left) are Mark Polk, Frank Aikens and George Donate, all 15-year-old sophomores.

NEW CAMPUS — The administrative center of the new Casa-Grande Junior-Senior High School in Petaluma is the focal point of a $2.8 million facility that also includes a gymnasium, three classroom buildings and a recreation center on 18 acres. The newly-opened school is located on Casa Grande Road and Ely Boulevard South.



AIRY CLASSROOMS

Movable partitions form individual classrooms at the Casa Grande school. Each of the three classroom buildings has 12-class sections, housing students in grades seven through ten. Eventually a separate building will be constructed for junior high classes and the school expanded through to the twelfth grade.

OUTDOOR LOCKERS — Open Air lockers protected in a kiosk-style area are sprinkled throughout the Casa Grande High School campus. Beamed building entrances cast shadowy designs in the afternoon sun.

RUGGED EXTERIOR — Rough-hewn redwood gives a rugged exterior to buildings at Casa Grande. Interior work on this multi-purpose room is continuing. The building section will also double as a cafeteria to serve 300 students at a time. Meantime, students eat bag lunches on an adjoining patio.

MAIN OFFICE — Secretary Virginia Dechene handled a barrage of telephone calls — a part of opening week confusion at the Casa Grande school. Scene is the administrative center of the facility, which is in Petaluma schools system.

NEW BRITISH RESIDENT

Cuckoo Inderjit, 12, was one of 193 Asians who arrived in Stansted, England, today after being expelled from Uganda. As if to typify her confusion, she carried an African doll under one arm, and a western doll under the other.

Reno Youth Sent To Jail For Robbery

A 19-year-old youth who admitted using drugs since he was 14 was ordered yesterday to serve six months in jail for robbing a Novato grocery clerk by saying he had a gun in his pocket.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed James Clifford Bennett of Reno on probation for five years and gave him credit for time in jail since his arrest May 16.

The district attorney recommended state prison despite a plea negotiation in the case.

Bennett admitted in July that he robbed the clerk at the Short Stop market at Rowland and South Novato boulevards of $127, then bound and gagged him in the bathroom of the store.

He was arrested minutes later in a field behind the store, but had no gun.

He told his probation officer that since the age of 14 he has taken more than 200 LSD trips and used morphine, methamphetamine and heroin.

Garment Theft In Strawberry Nets Probation

A Millbrae woman who tried to exchange a garment she had stolen the previous day from a Strawberry shop was ordered yesterday to spend four months in jail.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court suspended sentencing of Caroline Jean McIlroy, 30, and instead placed her on probation for five years on condition she serve the jail time.

"I think she'll appreciate this after a year or so — the fact that she's been stopped short of state prison," the judge said.

Mrs. McIlroy was arrested March 12 after she set off the shoplifting alarm both entering and leaving the Little Daisy Dress Shop in the Town and Country Shopping Center.

Sheriff's deputies said she entered the store to exchange a $10 blouse taken the day before and left with an additional $45 in clothing that she hadn't paid for.

She had two previous theft convictions and was charged with attempted burglary and concealing stolen property.

Astronaut Assails Marin 'Mind' Firm

Combined AP and UPI

Astronaut Edgar D. Mitchell has accused Mind Dynamics, Inc. of San Rafael of being oriented toward "sensationalism, faddism and ego games," but says he was criticizing the self-improvement firm "as a friend."

Mitchell, who conducted experiments in extrasensory perception while circling the Moon in January 1971, was an invited, paid speaker at a gathering of 1,500 Mind Dynamics students in San Francisco on Sunday.

Midway through his speech, he began to criticize his sponsors:

"I've seen the ads and frankly they turn me off," he said. "It depresses me that they're oriented toward sensationalism, faddism and ego games.

"I've never seen anything in them about helping people grow in wisdom, compassion or humility. There is no short road to instant enlightenment," Mitchell continued, "and a three-day course in Mind Dynamics is certainly not going to give it to you."

The Mind Dynamics firm offers courses in which students of all ages are told they can greatly improve their mental powers and their material positions through use of alpha brain waves and other mental training.

Ryan Testifies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After listening to some of the military's top officers, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said Monday he was puzzled no one higher than Gen. John D. Lavelle knew of illegal air strikes in Vietnam.

Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force Chief of Saff, tld the Senate Armed Services Committee he had "no knowledge or basis for belief there was any such action by anyone else" other than Lavelle, according to Stennis.

Head of the firm is English-born Alexander Everett, former private school headmaster, race car driver and restauranteur. A major stockholder is William Penn Patrick, owner of Holiday Magic and a number of other sales-oriented firms based in San Rafael.

After returning to Houston, Tex., astronaut Mitchell explained yesterday to United Press International that "I was not going after Mind Dynamics any harder than I was going after the organizations that are saying things that cannot be substantiated by scientific data . . . I am trying to help police" the mind expansion industry "before there are cries of fraud and charlatanism."

Mitchell on Sunday attacked a Mind Dynamics ad using his name as "unscrupulous and dishonest."

Robert White, senior vice president for Mind Dynamics, later explained that the ad was a reprint of a news story, in which the reporter, not the firm, made the association.

White said the firm was surprised and shocked at Mitchell's criticism. "If he disagreed with us, he should have come and told us and not accepted a fee to tell us from a platform."

The Mind Dynamics spokesman said, "Our type of training does turn people on . . . we don't advertise instant sex. We do advertise that Mind Dynamics can work on weight, smoking, driving."

He insisted that Mind Dynamics can back its self-improvement claims and "people don't expect more than what we offer them."

Mitchell said that after he retires from the astronaut program Oct. 1 he will form his own corporation to promote scientific research in parapsychology. He has been involved with a number of mind science groups since his moon trip.

Marinwood To Discuss Open Space

The Marinwood Community Services District board last night set 8 p.m. Oct. 12 for public discussion of a $600,000 bond election to finance open space acquisition.

Passage of the bond — which will be voted on Jan. 23 — would allow the district to acquire about 350 acres of open space, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager.

The measure would cost the owner of a $30,000 home about $30 a year, she said.

Though no priority acquisition list has yet been established, a priority committee is currently contacting homeowners and developing a list of open space parcels that may be acquired, according to board member Frank Solomon Jr. He said the board has also authorized an appraisal and title search of some undeveloped parcels in the district.

The open space action comes on the heels of a district poll which asserted that 89 per cent of 824 residents queried favored open space acquisition.

The Marinwood Community Services District board also:

EASEMENT — Asked the county to deed to the district an easement on pedestrian walkways near the picnic area adjacent to Miller Creek School, rather than purchase walkways leading directly to schoolgrounds.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Oct. 12.

Three Petaluma Thefts Reported

Three Petaluma businesses reported weekend thefts to police yesterday.

Robert Pope of the Sorensen Funeral Home, 969 Petaluma Boulevard North, said a large bronze statue valued at $400 was stolen.

Young America Homes reported that building materials valued at $400 were stolen from the construction yard on San Rafael Drive and that windows were broken in 15 homes under construction there for a loss of $400.

Agency Official Is Suspended

Keith E. Kelly, deputy director of the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency, has been suspended from his duties pending a hearing before both agency boards.

Kelly, 45, was suspended Friday by executive director Wallace K. Shepherd who said the two men found it "difficult to work together." He gave no other reason.

Kelly, who has worked for the agencies since February 1971, said he would appeal the suspension to the housing authority and redevelopment agency boards, which are responsible for the hiring and firing of top administrators.

State's Population Growth Rate Down

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A state official told a legislative hearing Monday that immigration into California has gone "dramatically down" and birth rates have declined "drastically as well" in the state.

Norman Stern of the state Department of Water Resources was testifying before the Assembly Committee on Environmental Quality chaired by March K. Fong, D-Oakland.

In the 1950s, Stern said, his agency projected California's population at 54 million persons. He added a couple of years ago the projection was revised downward to 44 million by the year 2020.

But the figure has again been decreased, he said.

Mrs. Fong said the figure should be reduced to 25 million —five million more persons than live in California now.

The lawmaker said the state "should emphasize the quality of life rather than the quantity of life."

Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, said the whole question of population policy came down to "whether there should be government control of the reproductive nature of his society."

But Assemblyman Robert G. Wood, R-Monterey, asked whether government "has the right to tell people they can't live" in an area that is overpopulated.

City Planner Sherman Griselle said, "Individual property rights are protected by the Constitution and the courts, but the state has the right to plan for the population it foresees."

Rohnert Park Is Advised To Buy Ranch Acreage

The Rohnert Park City Council was advised last night to buy a 187-acre ranch as a regional park site.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the city recreation commission unanimously recommended that the John Rapoza Ranch east of Sonoma State College in the foothills of the Sonoma Mountains be purchased for such a park.

Commissioners said they toured the land by jeep and found it has great possibilities. The council said it would also like to tour the ranch and set the jaunt for Sunday at 1 p.m.

Recreation director James Pekkain said state funds might be available to help the city buy the ranch which is listed on the market at $1,500 per acre for a total cost of $280,500. Pekkain said little initial development work would be needed since it could be used immediately as a wilderness area with hiking, bicycle and horse paths.

The council also granted a contract extension to Oct. 15 for Argonaut Constructors of Santa Rosa to complete widening work on Snyder Lane.

The council adjourned to Sunday at 1 p.m. to tour the ranch and set next Monday at 7:30 p.m. for a joint meeting at city hall with the planning commission on a sign ordinance.

State Resources Board Loses To Sierra Club

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The State Resources Board's agreement not to oppose construction of a nuclear power plant in Mendocino County is void and not enforceable, a Superior Court judge ruled Monday.

Judge R. A. Brown ruled in favor of the Sierra Club which challenged the agreement between the state agency and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., which plans an $831 million plant near Point Arena.

Both the State Public Utilities Commission and the Atomic Energy Commission must give approval before construction on the plant can begin and Judge Brown's order does not prevent PG&E from seeking such approval.

David Pesonen, attorney for the conservationist club, said the ruling means that certain state agencies which had been "muzzled" by the agreement are now free to oppose the plant.

In filing its suit, the club asserted the state agency "illegally delegated state regulatory powers to PG&E even though PG&E is the object of such regulation and has a vested financial interest in the outcome."

The club also noted the agency entered the agreement without holding necessary public hearings.

Judge Brown's ruling was in the form of a consent decree to which PG&E agreed.

The Sierra Club is objecting to the plant on the grounds that it would be inappropriate in the scenic area near Point Arena. It also questioned the proposed plant's nearness to the San Andreas earthquake fault.

'New Voter' Lesson For Older Citizens

The second issue of the New Voter, edited by Peter C. Meyer, Marin County elections officer, contains a story with a message for old voters as well as new.

Entitled "The Red Tape Makers," it relates that in researching some local issues for the New Voter, four researchers called the Civic Center all at once, on different subjects — but none of them knew just whom to call. It continues:

"THEY KEPT telephone operators, secretaries, administrators and assistants tied up for 20 minutes; calls were transferred, the same stories were repeated three or four times, memos and notes were written, referrals made, new addresses and telephone numbers recorded . . .

"Unfortunately, this was standard procedure at the Civic Center — they were used to it. And what a waste of time it was! We admit our mistakes; we didn't know where to call.

"Take, for example, the missing light in the local public park. We wanted a new one installed. Your choice of jurisdictions ranges from county public works, to city, to community services, to park district, to lighting district, to county or city park department. When the proper jurisdiction was found, they said they contracted with the county for park maintenance services and the county said they did perform maintenance but not on the lights. That was a new department and there the man was out for coffee.

"Somehow local government is a mystery to us because we don't keep informed or participate more often. And instead of making one quick informed call, we create that bureaucratic demon of the run-around. It's our government and our red tape too."

BLAMING GOVERNMENT — whether federal, state, county, city or district — for a "runaround" is common practice. And government bureaucracy sometimes seems most expert at avoiding responsibility by using the "runaround." But, as the New Voter piece points out, citizens create or exacerbate this by not knowing where to call or whom to ask. They don't know because they don't keep track.

The chore of keeping track is difficult, especially in California with its large assortment of special districts and its numerous layers of government. But it's a chore incumbent upon the citizen if he wants to get maximum returns for his tax dollars. He can't get action if he doesn't know where to ask.

The tremendous confusion which causes departments at Civic Center and city halls to be constantly answering inquiries that should go to other departments or other jurisdictions is created by an uninformed citizenry.

The uninformed citizenry has mostly itself to blame. But no one — until Peter Meyer came along with the New Voter — has made much of an effort to provide the basic information.

IF MEYER'S program works out as he intends, the New Voter generation will have better ideas of where to take problems. But the old voters could use some education along this line, too.

And if they got it, they might realize that the multiplicity of jurisdictions is largely unnecessary, and that many of the special districts could be abolished with a saving in taxes, no reduction in services, and a lot less of the "runaround."

Life Within The Womb And Issue Of Abortion

By RUS WALTON

Whoo-eee! Did I walk into a thicket of thorns!

The other week I did a column on abortions. I wrote that abortion is the taking of life and therefore — even though the state or the medical profession or the individual may condone it — it is murder.

Well, since then the mailman cometh! Frequently.

Most of the letters have been thoughtful. Courteous but firm. And in disagreement with my position. There have been several recurring arguments which deserve comment. I cite one letter as typical. It is a well-reasoned, well-mannered communication.

FIRST, THE WRITER contends that the life which sparks when first the egg and sperm unite (to form the zygote which becomes the embryo and then the fetus) is not human life. It is, he writes, but animal life that does not become human until it is born. Thus, abortion cannot be considered murder.

He is, I believe, in error.

Animals beget animals. Human beings beget human beings. The life of that individual organism, which is created to develop in the mother's womb, is indeed a separate and unique human life.

PERHAPS THE BEST way to put it is to quote Dr. Thomas Johnson, professor of biology and embryology at the University of Virginia:

"Is it possible that by some magic, at the time of birth, this alleged potential being is somehow, within a matter of minutes, transformed into an actual human being?

"To rational individuals, the answer is incontrovertible. Both the unborn child and the newly born child is an actual human being and at the time of birth the child is merely moving from one required environment (aquatic) to a new required environment (gaseous) so that it can continue to develop into the succeeding stages of life."

Those who favor abortion may find it convenient to regard the intrauterine being as not human. It may ease the conscience, but it does not erase the murder.

THE READER goes on to quote Exodus 21:22-23 in support of his contenion that the fetus is not a human life. That scripture says in essence that if a man strike a woman so that she has a miscarriage, the culprit shall pay the woman's husband damages. Why, asks the reader, if a life was taken was not a life required ("a life for a life")?

There is a vast and cardinal difference between accidental death (miscarriage) and premeditated murder (abortion). That is made crystal clear in Deuteronomy 19: 4-6. "Whoso killeth his neighbor ignorantly, whom he hated not . . . he shall live . . . there is no sentence of death for him." Exodus 21:22 also makes that point.

If we go back to the beginning, the solution is self-control and morality, virtues which are fast losing ground in this old (or "new") world. The truth is that abortions are usually the "easy" way out for indiscretion or appetite. And, the easier the escape, the more frequent the indiscretion.

LET ME QUOTE Dr. Johnson once more:

". . . in the dark cavity (of the womb) our of sight, older humans find it possible to pretend these younger humans are not living or are not human.

"If the growth of the child were to be observed by the mother, the issue of abortion would most likely never have become a matter of world-wide concern. For what psychologically healthy mother, seeing the unborn child within herself, would choose to destroy it?"

Or, as the nurse gasped after the doctors had aborted a perfectly developed 24-week fetus and deposited it in a surgical bucket, "Oh, God! What have we done?"

"Are you saying that I and the Gallup poll are hogwash?"

"Quick, Henry! Inside you'll find a little timing device."

Community College Challenges Emerging

I want to compliment you on your excellent editorial on Friday about the College of Marin. As a candidate for the Marin Community College District Board of Trustees I agree that the challenge of the college's increasing enrollment and its corollary issues are just beginning to be felt. This very challenge is one of the very reasons I am a candidate for the college board.

Let Councilmen Be Gourmet Guides

I think that the councilmen and city managers, etc., should wear a small badge showing their name and rank so that we could see what is good to order for lunch or dinner, because it must be good to cost so much.

Of course that is only peanuts compared to other things, but we might as well start with peanuts and a drink or two.

Airport Arguments Found Unconvincing

There has been considerable discussion recently about joint use of Hamilton Air Force Base. Most of the conversation on both sides has been made by relatively few people. Generally, the citizens of Marin could care less about an airport one way or another.

Who is it then that is doing all the talking? On the pro side; the airport commission, who are commissioners of nothing and of course want to be commissioners of something; the owners of large tracts of land in the area of the base, who would profit handsomely by the South San Francisco, San Bruno type of industrial development which would come about; a few misguided citizens that shrug their shoulders and say, "You can't stop progress," and of course the airlines.

On the con side are the people who recognize what we have in Marin. Natural beauty, reasonable quiet, pollution free air, and tolerable traffic.

The proponents of joint use have yet to show any advantages to the citizenry of Marin. Instead, their arguments are that the bad effects won't be too bad. Not too much additional noise, dirt, air pollution and traffic. Even on those negative arguments they are on very shaky ground. Their arguments are based on theories, and not proven scientific facts. On the positive side they say, "convenience". Convenient to how many? Perhaps to one tenth of one percent of the total Marin County population. . . .

Let's wake up the citizens of Marin, and stop the kind of "progress" that has resulted in polluting all of our waterways in this country, and in making most of our air in urban areas unfit to breath.

Food Stamp Expose Dishonest, Irresponsible

It is reporter Marlene Freedman, by her own account in the Sept. 15 I-J, who flunked the food stamp test. And the Independent-Journal flunks as a responsible newspaper, if it sends a reporter to perjure herself in the county offices in order to prove that persons can gain temporary advantage if their word means nothing and they are willing to face the consequences of perjury. I hope that none of the higher-ups in the I-J put reporter Freedman up to this caper, for is not conspiracy to commit a misdeamanor a felony?

Reporter Freedman had her little laugh, and now she faces possible prosecution. . .One question remains: What was the point of this hypocritical "expose"? Everything from driver's licenses to passports to superior court testimony rests largely on the sworn statements of presumably honest citizens. The welfare department is no different. Our country would crumble if the sworn words no longer had value. Publicity stunts like reporter Freedman's don't give very good example for upholding basic American values such as honesty and integrity.

RICHARD J. BOYLAN

Further 'Expose' Ideas Suggested

In regards to Marlene Freedman's article (Sept. 15), "Stamp Program Is Tested," front page no less, I was amazed at the fantastic promotion of "journalizing." I believe I once heard a reporter say, "When there is no story, make one." I feel that this is what has happened here. The I-J made a story . . .

What Marlene actually did was to, tongue-in-cheek, give the police department all the evidence they need to arrest her for fraud . . .

When one is in dire need of food, there isn't time for a period of investigation, a pregnant mother, a starving child, a broken father, might be induced to commit their own fraudulant crime. Or the mother might be forced to sell something which she has cherished since birth. Why? All because of one "made story."

This could result in quite an injustice done to ones in need of food. With our country, of which I love very much, providing billions for foreign friends, enemies, traitors, what have you, why can't we here in Marin County feed a few needy people in our own midst, on the home shore, without some news hunting hound forcing a story, if this is a story? . . .

Welfare frauds are being investigated now. In fact there is rather a large drive on to weed out these unlawful recipients of food stamps. When they are apprehended they are usually given some kind of jail sentence, at least in the San Bernardino area which has recently made the news in that area.

What will the "I-J" look for next in the line of "forced" news? Let me suggest a few ideas that should fit into your satirical exposes; Serial 2: assume the role of a police lieutenant, call up some 83-year-old little old lady, ask her to meet you at her bank. When at the bank, or take her valuables back to her home and then steal them. Then you can write an expose on the fallibility of banks and how easy little old ladies are to rob.

Serial 3: buy a rifle and a blank, hide yourself at one of McGovern's rallies and shoot him with blank while he is speaking. Then you will have material on how easy it is to shoot presidential candidates.

Serial 4: you might steal a plane with the same cool, calculating, skillful scheming, planning, and manuvering as you did in your "food stamp caper." If you bring the plane back, don't worry about being prosecuted for you were just gathering material for a "muckraking."

McGovern Gets Some Good News In Rock-Ribbed Maine

AUGUSTA, Maine — When Sen. George McGovern comes to Portland for a brief New England exposure, he will get some much-needed good news from Democratic National Committeewoman Nancy Chandler. Mrs. Chandler, a prime mover in the McGovern campaign in Maine, says that volunteers have been coming in at the rate of 500 a week.

It is the considerable political experience of this pretty, lively young woman, that is unprecedented. Part of her job is to put these volunteers to work manning telephones, ringing doorbells and doing the other donkey chores of a campaign badly in need of momentum.

A month ago it looked hopeless. Now . . well, anyway, there's hope. Three out of four of Marine's delegation in Congress are Democrats and so is Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis.

But this is Sen. Edmund Muskie's home state and the feeling lingers on that he, rather than McGovern, should have been at the head of the ticket. When he was the vice-presidential candidate with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey four years ago, Maine ended up in the Democratic column. This time Muskie declined McGovern's offer to run again for vice president, giving undisclosed personal reasons for his decision.

THAT IMPRESSIVE Republican institution, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, is running for re-election for a fifth term. Her campaigns are traditionally as cozy as a church supper. In her statewide race six years ago she is said to have spent $12,000. As one comment has it, most of that must have gone for the fresh rose that she wears daily as her trademark.

Senator Smith, the only woman in the Senate until the appointment of Mrs. Elaine S. Edwards of Louisiana, is being challenged by William D. Hathaway, who represents Maine's Second District in Congress. His private polls are said to show thus far a depressing prospect. The trouble with running against Margaret, or Maggie as she is known to man, woman and child, is to get a grip for an attack that does not seem ungentlemanly.

That was the dilemma of Robert Monks, who opposed her in the primary. He ran an aggresive campaign attacking her record in Congress or the lack of a record. But loyal Maine folks took care of him with the slogan: "Monks, Millions, Massachusetts," the last a reference to his origins in the neighboring state. He is said to have spent up to $300,000, which came out to $10 a vote in losing by two to one. That was the biggest boost to Maine's economy since the start of the Nixon administration.

While Margaret's age is top secret, the intimation is that when she finishes another six-year term she will be 80 or 81. To talk about her age, even though Monks' private polls showed this was the biggest doubt about her re-election, might in that fine bureaucratic expression be counterproductive. The report here is that Ralph Nader and his raiders are planning to open up prior to the election on her entire career, first in the House and then the Senate.

AS FOR THE lady senator, she shows not the slightest concern, visiting the state more often than customary, which is hardly at all, but otherwise tending to her knitting and maintaining her near-perfect attendance and voting record. If the Republicans should win the Senate, she would be chairman of the armed services committee, in a position to exert powerful influence on defense contracts, which are not abundant in her native state.

To carry Maine, McGovern would have to pass a miracle. With so many miracles on a grander scale to be passed between now and Nov. 7, this one rock-ribbed Republican state must be toward the bottom of the list. In the Republican debacle of 1936 Maine was one of two states that Alf Landon carried, the other being Vermont.

I remember campaigning with him when we came into Maine. At Portland, the speaker's stand was put in left field in a baseball park. That evening a fog rolled in and for most of the people in the grandstand he might as well have been speaking from the moon. Surrounded by eager-beaver amateurs, Landon's campaign suffered from some of the ills plaguing McGovern.

That was when, under a Maine law, the voters here cast their presidential ballots in September and the victor could trumpet, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation." For Landon it turned out rather differently.

Rise Of Quota System Stirs Protest From Jewish Leaders

Two of America's most articulate minorities — black people and Jews — may be heading toward a clash over the use of quotas as a means of preventing discrimination.

The basic concept of a quota system is that each group in the population is entitled to proportionate representation in such matters as the composition of delegations to national conventions, the distribution of jobs, and the makeup of a school's student body.

Thus far, blacks generally have had good experience with quotas. They have found them a concrete and effective way of avoiding tokenism and insuring a fair degree of black participation in the political, economic and educational life of the nation.

BUT MANY JEWS have a longstanding dislike of quotas. They look upon them as a device for enforcing rather than combatting discrimination. This attitude was shaped in large part by the custom which prevailed at many leading universities prior to World War II of admitting only as many Jewish students as necessary to reflect the Jewish proportion of the overal U.S. population.

Jews constitute a very tiny percentage of the total population (around 3 per cent) but a much larger proportion of those with high scores on I.Q. tests and college admission exams. Thus the quota system operated to deny admission to many Jewish students who would have qualified easily if judged on their individual abilities.

In recent years, most leading schools have been accepting students on the basis of individual merit rather than imposing ethnic, racial or religious quotas. But Jewish leaders see the quota system raising its head again — most conspicuously in the delegate-selection rules enforced at this year's Democratic primary. And they're upset about it.

PHILIP E. HOFFMAN, president of the American Jewish Committee, has written identical letters to President Nixon and Sen. George S. McGovern, telling the two presidential candidates why Jews feel strongly that "the American system," which is an open society, is based on individual rights, not group rights."

"We are opposed to quotas," Hoffman said, "because quotas are the negation of judging a man on his worth alone."

Recalling the long battle of his committee against quotas as a tool of discrimination, Hoffman said, "It would be tragic now to adopt a national policy, whatever the motivation, that would reintroduce the concept of judging a man on the basis of his skin color or the church he attends."

PRESIDENT NIXON in his letter of reply told Hoffman, "I share the views of the American Jewish Committee in opposing the concepts of quotas and proportional representation." He said he does not regard them as "appropriate means of achieving equal opportunity."

McGovern, who headed the rules reform committee which set up age, sex and race quotas for the Democratic convention, told Hoffman, "I share the concerns you have expressed and reject the quota system as detrimental to American society." He expressed belief that "it is both necessary and possible to open the doors that have long been shut to minority group members without violating basic principles of non-discrimination and without abandoning the merit system."

By FRANK FARRARA

Two Planks Apes Olympics To Keep Politics Simon Pure

It was early summer when Cyrus T. Cyrus, mayor of Two Planks, Neb., out watching the corn grow, pondered about restoring some dignity to the art of politics.

"Politics is known as a dirty game and I'd like to change that," he said to the farmer who served part-time as town clerk.

"Say, sports are known as clean, especially amateur sports. Maybe we ought to work a little more sportsmanship into our meetings," the mayor said.

"Great idea," the clerk said. "We'll be as Simon pure as the Olympics."

WHEN THE NEXT town meeting opened there was a scuffle at the doorway because a delegation of Iowans was trying to enter.

"If those Iowans are allowed to speak at this meeting, we're walking out," said a sizable group of border residents who were opposed to Iowa's policy on moonshine.

Mayor Cyrus and other council members went into a back room and emerged about 45 minutes later with a decision. The Iowans were banned.

No sooner had the council chambers filled than the local newspaper reporter filed an official complaint that the reporter from the "big city" newspaper wasn't using a regulation pencil.

"He has to use the same pencil that every other reporter uses or he'll have an advantage and will be taking notes faster," the local reporter complained.

Councilmen at first said the "big city" reporter could use the pencil he was accustomed to, but later reversed that decision just before the pledge to the flag.

DURING THE PLEDGE, the town custodian spotted two farmers shaking the dust out of their hats instead of standing with hand on heart.

The farmers were summarily banned from the hearing, leaving the Farm Bureau short two of its best debaters during the fight over rural roads.

Another disturbance erupted about 10 minutes after discussion started on a new railroad crossing, when two railroad attorneys arrived.

"Gentlemen, you have missed the start of the discussion and under our rules you cannot participate," the mayor said.

"Your honor, we apologize for our tardiness, but we were informed by the president of the railroad, the crossing matter was to be on the agenda at 9 p.m., and it's only 8:15 now so we thought we had ample time."

"That's most unfortunate," the mayor replied. "But, as you see, the attorneys for the other side were here on time, and we can't make an exception to our rules."

THEN THE FIERCEST battle of the night erupted between the businessmen and the Two Planks Homeowners Association over the concession rights to the hot dog stand at the Fourth of July picnic.

With speakers on the verge of blows, Mayor Cyrus put a limit on debate. "We're cutting this off at 10," he said.

When the town clock struck 10, the mayor called for a vote and the businessmen won by a 3-2 vote.

A spokesman for the homeowners argued that the town clock was three minutes fast and that in reality, the mayor had cut off debate at 9:57 p.m.

The town clerk ruled that indeed the town clock was fast and the mayor opened the debate for three more minutes.

The council voted again and this time the homeowners won the concession by a 3-2 vote. The disgruntled businessmen stalked out and refused to take the popcorn concession.

After the meeting, the mayor, proud of his new system, asked a bystander, "How did it go?"

"It seemed like politics as usual to me," he answered.

Dixie Trustees Seek Volunteers

Volunteers to study the effect of Proposition 14, the Watson tax revision initiative, are sought by the Dixie School District Board of Trustees.

The Citizens' Finance Advisory Group will study the effect of the proposition, if passed, on school taxes, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell. Those interested on serving on the study group should contact the district office, he said.

The first meeting of the group has tentatively been set for 8 p.m., Oct. 2 in the board room of the administration building.

ART BUCHWALD

Gotta Have Totalitarian Trade To Keep Free Enterprise Alive

WASHINGTON — It is one of the ironies of the world we live in that the Communist countries may yet bail us out of our trade deficit mess.

Billings, Montana, an economist with the Department of Commerce, told me at lunch the other day that the capitalist system now depends on how much goods the Soviet Union and Red China buy from us. And the Communist system depends on how much goods then can sell to us.

You would think both sides would hold out so the respective systems would fail. But that isn't how it's working.

Billings told me, "The Russians need us, and we need the Russians."

"BUT HOW CAN YOU do business with Commie S.O.B.s who are trying to impose their totalitarian methods on the freedom-loving countries of the world?" I asked.

"What's that got to do with the price of wheat?" Billings demanded.

"I'm not talking about the price of wheat. Everyone knows that the Soivet Union has promised to bury us."

"No country that makes a grain deal with the United States can be all bad," Billings said. "Of course we have ideological differences with the Communist bloc, but they can be overlooked providing the Soviets contribute to our gross national product. Great Britain isn't buying our wheat. And the United States needs bread."

"Bread?"

"MONEY. It is obvious that we can no longer depend on the freedom-loving countries of this world to buy the things that the United States manufactures so it can be the strongest country in the world. Therefore, our only choice is to find customers among the enslaved peoples of the globe who have been deprived by their system of the good things in life."

"That makes sense," I admitted.

"Who do you think saved the Boeing Aircraft Co. this year?"

"I know it wasn't the Mexicans," I said.

"It was the Red Chinese. They have just ordered $150 million worth of Boeing jet planes. The economy of the entire northwest part of the United States has been rejuvenated because of this order."

"But these planes will carry passengers around the world who don't think the way we do," I protested.

"That is not our concern. Denmark thinks the way we do, but when is the last time they bought a Boeing 707?"

"I hear the Red Chinese also gave us an order for wheat."

"Exactly. And Canada, our closest neighbor and friend, won't even buy a box of Post Toasties from us."

"IT SURE IS a crazy world," I said, "when you have to count on your enemies to keep your economy going."

"We don't consider anyone who buys wheat or planes from us an enemy. They may have their faults, but we like to think of them not as adversaries but as customers.

"Once you take a Soviet or a Red Chinese buyer to lunch, you find out they're really very nice people," Billings said.

"Say, a thought just occurred to me," I said. "I wonder what would happen if, at the next Paris peace talks meeting, the North Vietnamese offered to make a grain deal with us. Would we still consider them ruthless, aggressive, international gangsters?"

Billings replied, "It would all depend on the financial terms of the deal."

Burglaries By Force Increase

There have been almost twice as many forced entry burglaries in Corte Madera so far this year as at the same date last year.

In the August report of the Corte Madera police department, chief David L. McIntosh lists 27 break-ins of Corte Madera homes by the end of August. Last year the total at this time was 14.

Adding another 12 no-force burglaries of homes for the year brings the town's burglary total to 39, compared to 29 at the end of August 1971.

But while burglars have increased their activities the town's police have increased their traffic surveillance.

Patrolmen had already issued 853 parking tickets by the end of August, more than doubling the total of 386 handed out by the end of August 1971. They wrote 110 moving vehicle citations, compared to 47 at the same date in 1971; and issued 336 citations for violations of road and driving laws, against 222 last year.

By the end of last month Corte Madera police had collected $18,042.41 in fines and forfeitures, well up on last year's comparative total of $10,516.84.

Immunization Survey Planned By Census Teams

Survey teams from the Bureau of the Census will be visiting selected Marin households this week to determine how many family members have been immunized against communicable diseases.

The survey is part of an annual national sampling used as a basis for planning national disease prevention programs. Information is asked about immunization against measles, influenza, smallpox, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

All door-to-door interviewers will present an official red, white and blue Bureau of the Census identification card, according to a spokesman at the Bureau's regional office in Seattle.

A total of 44,000 families will be surveyed nationally, including 1,150 in the Bay Area.

'Turn-Around' General Plan Due Perusal

By JEFF GREER

A countywide general plan that could turn around the patterns of Marin's growth and might force closer city-county planning coordination, will be presented to the City-County Planning Council on Thursday.

The county planning department staff will guide the council in a "walk-through" of the 120-page document with its related graphs and tables, at 8 p.m. in the planning commission chambers at the Marin County Civic Center.

The session will not be a formal public hearing — two of those will come later before the council on Oct. 5 and Oct. 19, according to Sol Silver, chief of advance planning for the county department.

The new draft of the general plan makes no major departures from the preliminary countywide plan that has been discussed by county and city officials and citizens for the past year. It contains many more specific figures on proposals to limit population, acquire open space, and provide economic diversity, than the preliminary plan, and spells out some major policy changes implied in the preliminary plan.

Probably the most controversial facet of the plan is its proposal to strengthen the city-county council's power over planning for the county and all cities and sub-areas within the county. The agency would be a watchdog to assure that the county or the cities not operate at cross-purposes to each other or the general plan in approving future development.

The new general plan draft contains the results of four years of study by Marin planners, consultants and committees on problems of transportation, open space, housing, expansion of urban services, geologic hazards and other issues whose eventual solutions will determine how Marin appears in the year 1990.

After its "walkthrough" introduction to the plan Thursday, the city-county planning panel will hold a special workshop at 8 p.m. Sept. 30 on the controversies among the proposals drafted by the county planning staff or suggested by citizens, cities and other sources.

Silver said Friday that the two formal city-county council hearings in October will be followed in the next two months by hearings before the county planning commission and supervisors and in all the cities. He said he hoped that the final draft of the countywide plan could be ready for adoption by all the public agencies involved early in 1973.

Like the preliminary plan, the new countywide general plan divides Marin into three north-south "corridors." Most urban development would be restricted to the eastern corridor along Highway 101, and the central and western corridors would be held to low density, mostly agricultural and recreational development.

The new draft's "turn-around" features center on:

1. Vastly expanding the amount of public lands retained as open space in the eastern, urbanized corridor. Only 2.5 per cent of the corridor's acreage now is in public open space; the plan calls for public open space ownership of 41 per cent of the corridor's land, by the year 1990. Sixty-three per cent of the corridor's land now is undeveloped, according to the general plan's charts. Acquiring 30,000 acres for open space would cost an estimated $49 million.

2. An attempt to switch Marin's breadwinners from a commuting life to working nearer home, with provisions for the necessary nonresidential economic development of Marin's eastern corridor.

3. Holding the county's predicted population growth rate to about 3,800 persons per year, contrasted with the 7,700 persons expectable if no population growth curbs are put on the cities and the unincorporated areas.

4. Through establishment of a "housing mix" required by state law, and other economic factors, the plan seeks to guarantee that Marin in 1990 will have class diversity.

Unrestricted free market development would give the county a population of 364,000 persons by 1990, with 53 per cent of the families in the high-income (over $14,000 a year) bracket, 40 per cent in the middle income bracket and only 7 per cent earning less than $8,000 a year, in 1970 dollars.

The countywide plan calls for Marin to be home in 1990 for only 286,000 persons, with 35 per cent high income, 45 per cent middle income and 20 per cent low income — almost exactly the mix in 1970.

5. Limiting private transport facilities to a maximum eight-lane freeway status for Highway 101 without a second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge; only two instead of three proposed ferryboat terminals, and no commercial use of Hamilton Air Force Base unless studies convince planners that it will avoid adverse impact on the environment. Mass transit would be encouraged.

The plan proposes departures from traditional government including revenue sharing between cities and the county, and banking land for future public agency use. He would limit utilities and other public services in presently undeveloped areas outside the eastern corridor and would establish a very different pattern of land use than is predicted under the free market concept.

The plan explans that once adopted, its provisions will become specific, official policy statements rather than the flexible guidelines that formerly were the rule in California planning efforts. This is a result of new state laws, which also will require the countywide plan be followed up by frequent review and enactment of five-year "action plans" to achieve the policies adopted.

"The functions of the City-County Planning Council should be expanded so that it can take on responsibility for countywide plan implementation," the draft reads. "It is clear that new organizational methods of coordination and review are essential if the goals of the countywide plan are to be achieved. Relying upon the 12 jurisdictions (11 cites and the county) acting independently will not do the job."

The draft suggests that "the 12-member jurisdictions would retain local autonomy, but subject to the overall guidance of CCPC. . .they would delegate some of their policy-making to CCPC as well as some of the responsibility for carrying out this policy."

The city-county planning council would have a countywide review agency to "review and act on public or private proposals of countywide or areawide importance," to set planning targets for the entire county and sub-area on housing, employment growth and open space acquisition for five-year periods, and to prepare an "action plan" every two years, proposing ways to achieve the planning targets.

In its preface, the general plan draft warns that it "expresses concerns of the people of Marin at a time when the environment is threatened," when living costs are driving moderate-income families away, and "when local government units, acting alone, are too fragmented to deal effectively with the resulting wide range of issues."

Diabetes: It Could Happen To You

By FRANK FARRARA

Marin County has about 6,000 diabetics under doctors' care and probably that many others walking around who don't know they have diabetes.

Susan Bellach, a lively 25-year-old San Rafael housewife, tossed out those figures the other day as she told of far-reaching plans to spread information about the disoder.

She is acting chairman-elect of the Marin County Diabetes Association, with headquarters in the Church in Ignacio.

"All of the county is just smothered with diabetes," although it has not received the attention given to heart disease, cancer and other illnesses, Mrs. Bellach said.

"Diabetes has been overlooked," said Sandra Glazunova of Greenbrae, founder and chairman of the association. "People in a wide range of ages are suffering and every age bracket has difficult problems."

Mrs. Bellach, a diabetic since she was 15, said through the association "all of us together can help each other." Particularly, she said, the experienced diabetics can aid the young.

The association seeks to create widespread interest in diabetes and to foster detection in order that people who have it and don't know it may start treatment, Mrs. Bellach said.

A major problem is "trying to reach the young diabetics who deny themselves the right to live a full life and are belligerent about it," she said.

Mother of a young son and active in sports, Mrs. Bellach hoped to convince youths they can "go back-packing or scuba diving and live a healthy long life."

Pessimism, rebelliousness and anger "are just as serious as lack of insulin" for a diabetic, she said. "There has to be perfect control of mind and body."

Medication, either insulin shots or drugs taken orally, food and exercise "have to go hand in hand," Mrs. Glazunova said.

Young people rebel when told "you cannot do this and you cannot do that" and "some refuse to go to school for a while," she said.

"There is a great deal of emotional trauma" and emotional support from the family is needed, said Mrs. Glazunova, whose husband and son are diabetic.

The association, with about 500 members, is operating on the principle that diabetics can learn from each other, Mrs. Bellach said. "Rather than sit and listen to doctors at meetings, diabetics can reach out to other diabetics."

"The idea is to set up day by day living and enjoy life and don't make an invalid out of yourself," she said.

Diabetes is hereditary, can strike at any age and cause serious complications if not treated, Mrs. Bellach said.

The usual signs of diabetes are excessive thirst, frequent urination, constant hunger, loss of weight, itching, tendency to tire easily, changes in vision and slow healing of cuts and scratches.

Persons most likely to have diabetes are relatives of diabetics, people more than 40 years of age and the overweight, she said.

As a precaution, Mrs. Bellach urged that residents get a diabetic checkup from a doctor or "go to a pharmacy and they will give you a diabetic detection test kit at no cost."

She hoped that diabetics, relatives of diabetics, nondiabetics and members of the medical profession could "get together and rap about diabetes."

The association will begin a series of educational meetings at its headquarters at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 28. Three diabetics and Margery Metzger, chief dietician at Marin General Hospital, will lead the discussion.

The group also is preparing a campaign to raise funds and enlist volunteer participation with the theme, "It Could Happen to You," Mrs. Bellach said.

Reading material at the association office ranges from comic books for children carrying information about diabetes to diabetic cookbooks.

"We want to show you can eat luscious things," Mrs. Bellach said. Long-range hopes are for an educational program, counseling, crisis services and attempts to meet the social and economic problems of diabetics.

Mrs. Bellach, who recalled "heartache in my family because of diabetes," said she at first experienced depression, but overcame it and hopes that she can serve as an example to some of the young people who have become discouraged.

"We have to reach the young ones. They are our future."

WOMEN WITH A CAUSE — Sandra Glazunova (left) and Susan Bellach, officers of the Marin County Diabetes Association, tackle the increasing chores at the association office in Ignacio. The association has embarked on a campaign to encourage increased public awareness of the disease, and to help diabetics deal with emotional problems.

Single Police Department On Agenda

The Marin County Council of Mayors and Councilmen will discuss establishment of a single countywide police department when it meets at 6:45 p.m. Sept. 27 in Caleruega Hall, Dominican College in San Rafael.

The longstanding proposal for the formation of one department to serve all municipalities and unincorporated communities in Marin was renewed by the Marin County Grand Jury in its final report for 1971-72.

According to San Anselmo Mayor Warren R. Perry, the group will form a committee to give the grand jury proposal closer scrutiny.

Also to be considered are recommendations by the Association of Bay Area Governments to consolidate solid waste disposal, and plans for the participation of Marin communities in the 1976 National Bicentennial.

Stull Bill Session

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board will hold a special meeting at 3:15 p.m. tomorrow at the Bolinas School to meet with teachers and staff members about the Stull Bill, curriculum matters and other issues.

Two Injured As Car Crashes Into House

Two persons suffered minor injuries Sunday night when a car crashed through a fence and into the rear of a Novato home after a two-car collision.

The car, driven by Karen Ann Goerndt, 17, of 7060 Redwood Highway, Novato, smashed a hole about five feet long and three feet high in the home of Lawrence A. Williams at 95 Sierra Vista.

Police had no estimate of the damage, but the fence was smashed, the exterior wall damaged and kitchen appliances moved about by the crash.

Police said the Goerndt car collided with a car driven by parks and recreation commissioner Geoffrey J. Bywater, 18, of 11 Brassie Court, Novato, at Novato Boulevard and Sierra Vista at 9:21 p.m.

The Goerndt car, which reportedly was trying to pass on the left of Bywater's car, then swerved into the Williams home, officers said.

Miss Goerndt, who suffered cuts of her nose and right ear, and her passenger, Lynn A. MacPherson, 17, of 8 Equestrian Court, Novato, who suffered bruises and scrapes of her right elbow, were treated at Novato General Hospital. Mrs. Williams was examined at the hospital and sent home.

Teacher, Parent Meetings Slated

Annual "Meet the Teacher" nights have been announced for schools in the Dixie School District, said Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

The meetings, all to start at 7:30 p.m., enable parents to become acquainted with teachers and to ask about the educational plans for the coming school year.

District schools which have set meeting dates are Lucas Valley School, Thursday; Vallecito and Miller Creek Junior High Schools, Sept. 26; Santa Margarita School, Oct. 3, and Mary E. Silveira School, Oct. 5.

GROOMING REGISTERED Morgan horse "Red Rogue," ranger Lynn Strong is preparing him for weekend patrol of the national seashore's trails. She also gives talks and demonstrations at the Morgan horse breeding farm there which supplies mounts to other national parks. On weekdays she keeps law enforcement records at the visitor's center.

Girl On Horseback Helps Visitors To Point Reyes

Marin Women

Tuesday, September 19, 1972 Independent-Journal, 13

By PAT BALMES

Ranger Lynn Strong rides horse patrol at Point Reyes National Seashore to help hikers in trouble, tell visitors about their park and do low-key law enforcement.

Lynn believes that she is the only woman on horse patrol for the National Park Service protection division.

Trained in first aid, she helps blistered and overloaded hikers on the trails and can radio, via a walkie-talkie strapped to her back, a ranger in a jeep to drive them out.

Stopping her Morgan horse en route during her four to five hour beat, Lynn chats with hikers and campers about the park's ecology and regulations, directs lost hikers, searches for missing children and radios the station to locate legal campsites for visitors.

Rangers patrolled in jeeps before the Morgan horse breeding farm opened at the park two years ago. Now three or four rangers are on horse patrol.

"PUBLIC RELATIONS are so much better when you are not coating hikers with dust. You are so approachable on horseback, people want to stop and talk. Naturally, they want to pet your horse," she said.

People really like seeing her on mounted patrol, according to Lynn. A woman waited ahead of her on the trail to say, "You work for the park? Fantastic!"

Hikers coming in from the trail report things to the district ranger, who then can radio Lynn. He may dispatch her to check on a reported fire or catch a runaway livery horse and find its fallen rider.

Lynn enjoys her work because "I love people. In the park service we give people services and protection." She has had no bad experiences.

"I have met some really wild hips. Here I came riding in as the authority. We rapped for a while. They ended up liking the park service more after having talked," she said.

She had to argue vehemently with one man about keeping his dog on a leash, but finally prevailed by quoting the statute verbatim. Dogs are now prohibited because visitors failed to leash them, she said.

Lynn rides horse patrol on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays when most of the 1,300,000 annual visitors use the park.

On weekdays she works in the visitors center — radio dispatching, keeping law enforcement records and filling out accident reports, accepting phone reservations and paying accounts. She is also clerk for a San Francisco magistrate concerning the park's citations.

"WE PATROL the scenic southern half of the park, one day riding Bear Valley and Sky trails, the next patrolling Glen and Coast trails and another day going to Lake Ranch. 'We' are the horse and I," said the expert horsewoman.

Most rangers, who have college and ranger training, previously had no experience with horses. Sometimes Lynn rides in pairs with them, since their young horses are in training.

"While we are training a horse we are also teaching a man to ride," said horse handler John Strong, Lynn's fathar. A former San Francisco lithographer, he came to the park a year after Lynn to work at the Morgan horse breeding farm. John, Lynn and other rangers give talks and riding demonstrations to groups of as many as 300 children about the farm which breeds and trains mounts for rangers in other national parks.

Five horses will soon be shipped to Haleakala National Park on Maui and Hawaii Volcanos National Park on Hawaii. Some have already gone to Sequoia National Park and Navajo National Monument in Arizona. Others will be shipped to Yosemite National Park to replace those destroyed in a recent barn fire.

Five are ridden on horse patrol. Each works only three days a week because people who meet the rangers want to pet the horse. If he were ridden more, he would become nervous, she said.

LYNN BEGAN riding at 4, and her father was president of Tamalpais Trail Riders for several years and the family participated in its activities while she was growing up.

The Strongs kept their horses near Fort Cronkite on one of several ranches leased by Boyd Stewart of Olema.

"We did cattle roundups on his ranches. I've been on roundups in hailstorms. I've given thousands of veterinarian shots and have done lots of branding," said Lynn.

"Once I helped take 120 loose horses 80 miles in the Sierra. Three of us kids were supposed to stay ahead of the herd with the lead mare. We took those horses through towns, through people's backyards and past their cars. We lost three.

"At a fork in the road we took the wrong turn and the lead mare took the right one. What a race to catch up! We jumped everything in our path," she said.

She got her first horse at 14, and got "Muscles" when she was 17. The Morgan's pictures hang in her brightly decorated cottage, which was the servants' quarters for the summer home on the original 8,000-acre Kelham ranch.

She shows Muscles English, Wstern and sidesaddle at Morgan Horse Club shows. With three other rangers Lynn rode as color guard at Golden West National Morgan Horse Show in Monterey this summer, where they "busted out" their mounts, galloping with flags flying.

"I used to come down from University of California at Davis just to be with my horse. I thought I wanted to be a veterinarian but it would have taken too long," she said.

WHEN SHE was graduated in anthropology two years ago she heard of a temporary job with the national park service. She became a clerk-typist, "earning practically nothing." She was used as a matron in law enforcement situatins. She dispatched 14 hours a day during the recent bay oil spill.

Next she was designated park technician, which is a low-grade ranger. She helped out at the horse farm, and when they became shorthanded on the horse patrol because the men were going to ranger school, Lynn kidded them that she wanted to ride.

"They knew I could. They let me. It worked out well; the public seemed to like it," said ranger Lynn.

Her only problem was clothes. She could have ridden in a blouse and jeans but people would not have known what she was. So without asking, she bought a man's park service uniform.

"It took me a couple of hours to cut it down to fit. When I appeared in the men's uniform the rangers seemed a little bit shocked," she said.

"I enjoy my rangers. They are great guys. They help me a lot, kid me a lot and keep me in my place," she said.

Because of the park's isolation, all Lynn's friends are park service personnel.

Most rangers are married; they couldn't stand the isolation otherwise. It takes a special type of woman to marry a ranger. She has to be tolerant when he is called out just as they are ready to sit down to dinner, Lynn said.

"I want to stay with the park service. Once you get used to it it would be hard to work any place else. It's a life, not a job," she said.

Youth In Arts Series Starts

The second season of Youth in Arts, a series of performances for Marin school children, will begin Oct. 11 with a ballet concert by the Marin Civic Ballet Association.

The success of last year's performances has made it possible to offer Marin County students an enlarged program of cultural enrichment for the coming school year, according to Mrs. Robert P. Rimes of San Rafael.

Last year 26,799 kindergarten through eighth grade students saw the performances, sponsored by the Junior Theater of Marin, Marin Civic Ballet Association, Marin Symphony Association and the Marin Museum Association.

All performances will be held at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Youth in Arts is a non-profit venture operated by a board of directors composed of representatives of each of the sponsoring organizations. The program is run by volunteers from the Junior Theater, who serve as ushers at the performances.

So successful was last year's pilot program that a $10,000 grant was given Youth in Arts by the San Francisco Foundation. The money will provide seats for disadvantaged students. A minimum donation of 35 cents per seat is requested to defray expenses for other students, but since all reservations are made through Marin County schools in some cases the costs are absorbed by Parent-Teacher Associations.

Youth in Arts has an office in the new Marin Civic Ballet Association Building and has hired a parttime coordinator, Mrs. Helen Crotty.

The calendar also includes Oct. 26, Marin Shakespeare Festival's "The Wizard of Oz;" Nov. 6, Music for Minors "Carnival of Animals;" Nov. 21, San Rafael High School Jazz Ensemble's "What is Jazz?"; Dec. 6, American Conservatory Theater Young Conservatory's "Mr. Scrooge;" Jan. 11, Marin Youth Orchestra's "Twentieth Century Music;" Feb. 6, Western Opera Theater's "La Cenerentola;" Feb. 15, Music for Minors "Babar the Elephant," Feb. 21, Theater Flamenco's "Spanish Music;" Feb. 27, Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts' "Gretchen and the Goblin;" March 13, Prince Charles Junior Bagpipe Bank, "Bagpipe Concert;" March 20, Masque Unite, Junior Theater of Marin's "Wicked Witch of Endor;" March 27, Mike Conway of West Marin School "Art Spectacular;" April 5, Terra Linda High School drama and music departments' "Fiddler on the Roof;" April 10, California State University, San Francisco Theater Arts Department's "Story Theater;" and May 11 Pacific Regional Ballet Association's "Pacific Ballet Festival."

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Mother, Daughter Feel Better When Jealous Father Leaves

RAP:

Ever since I can remember, my mother has taken me along shopping, to women's parties and other things she goes to without my father. I wondered why Dad would ask me questions like "Did you stay there the whole time?" etc., and then when I was about 13 I realized it was because he was so awfully jealous of Mom that he made her take me along as a "spy." Later, I asked her why she put up with it and she said it was the only way she could get out of the house.

Well, from then on I didn't go with Mom, except to showers where I was specifically invited. She'd drop me off at a friend's and pick me up later, then brief me on the way home so I'd know what to tell Dad. She did the same for me when I started dating, because he raised Cain about boyfriends and wanted me "chaperoned."

It wasn't right, lying like that, but if you knew my Dad, you'd understand it was the only way. He would go into such a mad fit, he wouldn't speak for days, and "get even" in crazy ways like breaking something Mom loved or tearing up one of her favorite dresses. Once he even gave away our dog, after Mom danced twice with the husband of a friend.

Mom kept all this from me as long as she could, but after she poured it all out, we tried to help each other.

Well, we got careless, and Dad found out. I was really with my boyfriend the night he "dropped in" to see Mom (and me) at a women's party. It was a wild scene, when we all got home, with him accusing us of terrible acts, and us finally telling him exactly how much we resented his jealousy and distrust.

So then he left, and it's been a week and he hasn't been back. Helen and Sue, I feel guilty saying it, but this has been the most peaceful week of my life, and I think Mom feels happier too.

This morning he called and said if we'd apologize and promise to straighten up, he'd come home. He doesn't even see he drove us into deceit. Neither of us has done anything we're ashamed of. He's given us a month to come crawling. Please what would you two say? — FINALLY FREE AT 17

FINALLY FREE:

If we felt as relieved as you and your mother apparently do, we'd say, "Don't come back, sir, unless you can leave this pathological jealousy behind or at least in the hands of a therapist."

You erred when you began sneaking to avoid scenes. Possibly it's too late now for a change, but unless your father makes a try, and you two will help, this family may be better off separated. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I'm a 16-year-old girl and have a great guy. We both agree we're not ready for sex — we want good clean fun — but my parents obviously think differently.

If I'm dressing and Jim arrives, Mom sends him into my bedroom (or tries to). If we're at a swim party, Dad nudges Jim, mentions my 36-23-36 figure and smirks "You could sure have fun with that, huh?" This makes Jim feel dirty, so he says, "I'm not that kind," and Dad says, "I just don't understand you kids!"

Or when Jim comes over to play cards, Dad says to Mom, "Come on Irene, let's go to bed so the kids can get on with their hanky-panky."

Honest, we don't want to. What's so uncool (to my father) about wanting to stay a virgin? — NICOLE

DEAR NICOLE:

You've gotta be kidding! But just in case you aren't jivin' us, here's a word to your folks: "Trot back to your own generation and stop playing the hip parents. This stuff makes no points with kids!" — SUE

DEAR NICOLE:

Sudden thought: Maybe your Dad is kidding — like with reverse psychology that will keep your "No's clean," because you don't buy his embarrassing "Yes's." (Improbable, but then some fathers aren't too bright.)

. . .Or maybe your parents pride themselves on being terribly modern, when in reality they're just terribly unaware. — HELEN

Modular Furniture Has A Renaissance

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

The growing need for furniture flexibility has inspired a renaissance in sectional or modular furniture. It seems foolish to say renaissance when the idea of modularity is such a recent one. But actually the firsttime around, this concept seemed a bit too boxy and clinical for most homeowners.

The new breed of sectionals fits more gracefully into the plans of the family that likes a country look or a free, eclectic mix. And they're as great for the 20th-Century gypsy as for the stay-puts.

I've frequently voiced a dislike for dead-end seating arrangements. You know, the kind that completely locks a person in on three sides. But Ido think the U-shaped and closed grouping is a great solution for a center-of-the-room location.

SOME AMATEUR furniture arrangers (that includes most of us) find it hard to get their furnishings away from the wall. Major and minor pieces still cling to the perimeter of the room, securely nudged up against a protective wall. Are we afraid to be free and exposed out in the middle of a space? Actually we'd probably use natural light sources better, if we started thinking more realistically.

For example, the sofa that settles against a long windowless wall never gets an even distribution of light. Consequently the person sitting on it must use the left or right corner of the sofa, somewhere near the lamp table. That puts unusual stress on the upholstery. All the weight and wear then occurs at the two extremities.

The grouping shown today is a nice example of how the U-shaped arrangement works in a medium-size room. The main entrance is o the near side of the library table, so grouping is faced away from the door. Just off the area rug is another loose arrangement of game table and chairs. The only true wall pieces are the storage brackets made of beautifully finished wood. The solution was created by Duke Piner, AID.

WRAPAROUND, WALKAROUND — The nice thing about this setting by Duke Piner, AID, is how he created two islands of comfort for various activities, yet nothing clings to the walls as in the ordinary room setting. Traffic can flow around the main conversation and play areas.

Pinches And Dashes Are Important

A secret pinch of this and an extra dash of that is the way most cooks finish off their favorite recipe.

If you admire their cooking and ask for the recipe, it's those last little finishing touches that never show up on the recipe card they give you.

You can follow the recipe to a "T" but never can quite duplicate that subtle flavor or aroma.

Famous chefs will often admit to that secret pinch or dash, but you'll never find out what it is.

However, these same chefs will also insist that the secret pinch or dash is the same every time and the accurate measurement of ingredients is the most important step in cooking.

Board Of Education Meets Over Ruling

Marin County Board of Education members went into a long closed session last night with Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino about a court's ruling that it must pay the attorney's fee and costs for a suit against it.

But board members emerged and said nothing at all about Marin Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick's order that it pay $500 fees and court costs to Sausalito attorney A. Leonard Bjorklund who filed on behalf of Pieter Toal to get the names of candidates for board vacancies released.

Asst. Supt. Robert E. Spain said board members were closeted with Godino "for a very long time but made no statement when they emerged."

The board announced the names of two people recommended for appointment to the county Schools Personnel Commission and set a public hearing on the actual appointments for Oct. 25, at 8 p.m. postponing its Oct. 17 meeting to coincide with the date.

Spain said Juanita Turner of 1470 Pastel Lane, Novato, has been recommended by the classified employees' organizations.

$865,000 Awarded In Airplane Death

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A superior court jury last night awarded $865,000 damages to the family of Los Ranchitos attorney Steven J. Dedina III, who was killed when his light plane crashed into a Peacock Gap hillside April 18, 1970.

Trial required five weeks for the wrongful death suit originally seeking $3 million from Spectrum Air Inc. of Novato, part of the William Penn Patrick corporate empire aircraft mechanic Leroy Rusch of Novato and others.

Attorneys for Dedina's widow, Sandra, 36, of 22 Knoll Way, Los Ranchitos, and four children, charged that faulty and negligent repairs has been made at the Novato aircraft firm to trim tab and elevator controls on Dedina's plane. It crashed three minutes after he took off from the Smith Ranch airstrip, narrowly missing a dozen Peacock Gap homes.

Other defendants including Bellanca Corp., the plane's maker; Holiday Magic Inc. of San Rafael and others, were dismissed from the case in earlier hearings.

Mrs. Dedina's attorneys, Vincent R. Ruocco and James Boccardo of San Jose, reported that they had turned down an offer for a $750,000 settlement before the case went to the eight-man, four-woman jury on Friday.

Oft-Arrested Drug User Gets Probation

Despite pessimism by a probation officer, a Marin Superior Court judge yesterday gave probation to a long-time drug user who sold drugs to an agent two months after his release from prison.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner placed Willard Homer Hammond, 37, of Gate 6, Waldo Point, on probation for five years and ordered him to spend six months in jail.

Deputy probation officer Jesse W. Johnson said Hammond showed "absolutel no interest in our program" but said everything else had been tried on Hammond, who was first arrested for possessing heroin in 1954 and has had seven subsequent drug arrests.

The last arrest was in December 1971 on a warrant charging him with selling 2.8 grams of heroin to an undercover agent for $60 in June 1971.

He pleaded guilty to the felony sale charge in July.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Vernon Smith, claiming Hammond's record is "atrocious," recommended state prison, but Gardiner replied "I'm satisfied he is not really a villain, a person trying to harm society."

The judge noted that even a prison term for possession of heroin failed to change Hammond. "These things aren't doing him any good," the judge said of past sentences.

Leonard Williams of Newark changed his plea Monday as his trial was about to begin. He is scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 26.

Traffic Stop Nets Arrest In Drug Counts

The arresting sheriff's deputy said that when he stopped a car at 9:05 p.m. in which Joy Lynn Campbell was a passenger on Manuel T. Freitas Parkway, he detected an odor he thought was marijuana.

He said he found a hypodermic kit in her purse and half a lid of marijuana in her luggage.

Miss Campbell was booked into Marin County Jail in lieu of $1,500 on suspicion of possessing marijuana, being in a place where drugs are used and having drug equipment.

Comedian Silvers Is Hospitalized

NEW YORK (UPI)—Comedian Phil Silvers is undergoing treatment at St. Clare Hospital for an undisclosed ailment. A hospital spokesman said Monday he has been in the hospital "for some time" and is in satisfactory condition.

Silvers, 60, was starring in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" on Broadway when he became ill.

Nixon signed the bill Monday in his office in the presence of Rep. William Colmer, D-Miss., its sponsor, and Adms. W. M. Enger and George Ryder. The cost of construction will be paid by the Seabee Memorial Association.

$14,000 In Jewels Stolen From Actress

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actress Marlo Thomas lost about $14,000 worth of jewelry in an apparent burglary of the penthouse apartment she has been living in. Police said Monday that three necklaces, a bracelet, 24 rings and several pairs of earrings were taken.

Miss Thomas, daughter of entertainer Danny Thomas and star of the TV series "That Girl," told police the jewelry was taken Sunday. Police said a burglar apparently jumped about 12 feet from the roof of the building to the terrace of the apartment to gain entry.

Political Polls' Effect Disputed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two educators testified today there is no evidence that polls create a bandwagon effect on voters if a political candidate is found to be significantly more popular than his opponent.

Dr. Charles K. Atkin of Michigan State University and Dr. Harold Mendelsohn of the University of Denver outlined their views for a House subcommittee studying the effect of polls on elections, policymaking and political fund raising.

Subcommittee Chairman Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., has proposed legislation to require disclosure of the sponsor of a poll that is made public, the size of the sample and other information such as whether it was taken by telephone, mail or in personal interviews.

Public opinion pollsters, said Nedzi, should disclose enough information so the public may "evaluate a particular poll, and also to provide those who feel aggrieved by the results a basis for questioning and challenging them."

Mendelsohn, a communications professor and leadoff witness, said there is a "healthy form of skepticism" about polls, partly because of misinterpretations of the poll results by journalists.

"Despite charges that published poll results and election forecasts based on polls act to persuade voters to climb on the bandwagon of projected winners, I have found no empirically sound evidence to substantiate the concern as it relates to significant proporations of the electorate," said Mendelsohn.

He said the complex factors in deciding to vote for a candidate include social background, interest in politics, the issues, records of the candidates, group affiliation and partisanship.

Poll results may have influence on the decisions "of miniscule numbers of voters," according to Mendelsohn, but "their power in the face of the tremendous barrages of bold, unabashed propaganda that candidates customarily unleash in their campaigns appears to faint indeed."

Atkin agreed "there is no evidence of a simplistic 'bandwagon effect' on the electorate," but he said many voters refer to the preference of others in arriving at their final decision.

"The poll may show the candidate's strength as greater or lesser than anticipated," said Atkin, "and this discrepancy yields a 'relativemajority' that may be favorable, unfavorable, or merely in accordance with expectations."

New Novato Plan Nearing Reality

By FRANK FARRARA

Nearly a year in the making, a new Novato area general plan, designed to maintain the city's rural-suburban environment, is approaching public hearings and adoption.

The plan, first to be entirely developed locally, will succeed the 1966 Novato area general plan prepared by the Marin County Planning Department.

Copies of the proposed plan, recommended by city planning staff, have been distributed for public view and comment, and the city planning commission is expected to begin public hearings next month.

Included are policies governing noise, natural hazards, conservation, housing and scenic highways — all elements not covered in past plans.

While the housing committee pushed for a strong policy to provide low and moderate income housing, protesting residents said they didn't want Novato to become the low and moderate income housing center in Marin.

Under the proposed policy, Novato would have as much low and moderate income housing as necessary "to satisfy the needs of those persons who reside or work in Novato."

"Novato's role shall be balanced with other cities of the county to avoid a concentration of low or moderate income housing in any one area of the county," according to the proposed plan.

Regarding land use, the plan "is far more restrictive on land use possibilities than the 1966 plan," the staff reported.

Development thus far has occupied most of the flatland of Novato and Ignacio valleys. The land still vacant "generally" is either hilly, below sea level or in small parcels, the planning staff reported.

Under the plan, land about 200 feet elevation, the Lower Novato Creek flood plain, marshes and lands north of Gnoss Field "generally" wouldn't be put to urban use but would be used for agricultural and light recreation purposes "unless it is found to be in the public interest to change their status."

On the problem of noise from military planes, trucks along Highway 101, general traffic and trains, the plan calls for reducing the impact of such transportation noise.

Noise levels will increase with increased population and, "since trucks are the noisiest vehicles, increased industry and commerce will tend to increase the noise still more," the planning staff reported.

As proposed, noise zones would be established designating acceptable and unacceptable areas for homes.

Near Hamilton Air Force Base, where commercial flights might be added to existing military flights, noise exposure would be a factor in making decisions on land use.

"If it becomes necessary to plan for commercial aircraft use of Hamilton Air Force Base, the city will evaluate noise impact based on a maximum level of use, rather than evaluating noise from the proposed initial uses," the staff said.

In areas where there are geological hazards such as landslides, ground settlement or earthquakes, building would be prohibited or permitted only on analysis of the specific site.

Listed as earthquake areas are 500 feet on either side of Mount Burdell Fault, from the mountain to San Pablo Bay, and the San Antonio Creek watershed.

Designated as landslide areas are the hillsides between Indian Valley and Mount Burdell faults and "on and around the old landslides between Big Rock Ridge and the Indian Valley Fault."

To achieve open space, the plan proposes integration with other systems, state, regional or county, and calls for "every urban development" to contribute to the open space system either by dedication or money, or both.

Under the plan the city would permit agricultural preserves within the city, keeping land in agricultural use with accompanying lower tax rate.

As proposed, the routing of Highway 37 westward to Point Reyes National Seashore would be on the north side of Mount Burdell rather than through Novato Valley, as previously contemplated.

The staff also recommended that the city seek to have the state designate Highway 37 as a scenic highway, both along the present route and along any westerly extension.

Young Dancers Set For Australia Trip

Novato's Scott Fetterly and Karen Keller will fly next Monday night to Australia to represent the western U.S. in world ballroom dancing competition, thanks to the generosity of Marin residents — and particularly William Penn Patrick.

Patrick, president of Holiday Magic, yesterday bought the young couple their round-trip airplane tickets to Australia, thus assuring they will be able to make the trip.

Mrs. Ronald Keller, Karen's mother, reported that other contributions and proceeds of fund-raising events total $801, ample for expenses aside from plane fares. This includes $154.60 contributed by fellow employees and owners of the Independent-Journal, where Scott's father, Ralph Fetterly, is employed as machinist.

Scott and Karen got the chance to go to the competition "down under" by amassing more points in Latin-style ballroom dancing than any other couple in contests sponsored by the U.S. Amateur Ballroom Dancers Association. In Sydney, Australia, they will compete against winning dancers from other nations around the globe during the first week of October.

They will leave from San Francisco International Airport Monday at 9 p.m. by Qantas Airlines.

While receiving, the young dancers proved also that they can give to others. They presented a demonstration at a fund-raising event for the Diabetes Foundation Sunday at the Church in Ignacio, but refused a share of the proceeds offered to help in their trip, insisting it should all go to help research on diabetes.

McGovern Policies Draw Meany String

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—AFL-CIO President George Meany made his strongest attack yet on Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern Monday, calling his economic policies antilabor and his backers unwashed intellectuals and homosexuals.

Speaking to the convention of the United Steelworkers of America, Meany said the Democratic convention that nominated McGovern did not give organized labor its proper voice, and instead:

"We listened to the gay lib people ... We listened to the abortion people, we listened to the people who looked like jacks, acted like jills and had the odor of johns."

Reportedly fighting back against pressures within the labor movement in favor of McGovern, Meany described delegates to the convention as "the so-called intellectual elite," saying 39 per cent of the delegates had postgraduate college experience, and 31 per cent came from families with incomes of more than $25,000 a year.

"But the working people are the backbone of the American economy, and the working people will not be bypassed or shunted aside by the so-called intellectual elite or any other elite."

Meany said that while the economic policies of Nixon and those advocated by McGovern "may differ here and there on details, they agree on controls and compulsion for workers, but they leave the fat-cat coupon-cutters alone."

He said McGovern favors "more guideline on workers' wages but no controls on food."

McGovern Campaign Lags —May Buy Television Time

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern may get off the campaign trail next week in an effort to pep up his lagging campaign for the presidency with a nationwide television talk to the American people.

McGovern's advisers said the Democratic presidential nominee, disturbed by his inability to communicate with the people through the news media, was "seriously considering" dropping off the campaign trail for a few days to return to Washington at midweek and purchase television time for a direct talk to the people.

Down 34 percentage points in the polls, McGovern scheduled appearances in four cities today —Chicago, Milwaukee, Flint, Mich., and Columbus, Ohio—in a continuation of his effort to reach as many "media markets"—areas covered by local television stations and newspapers — as physically possible.

In a statement issued in Chicago today, McGovern—a minister's son-endorsed the support of private and parochial schools with taxpayer funds, a position to which he has been leaning for several weeks.

He said he backed legislation pending in the House to provide income tax credits for parents who send their children to nonpublic schools.

McGovern announced, after several weeks of deliberation, that he backed legislation to provide a tax write-off for parents who send their children to nonpublic schools.

Atlhough the Supreme Court has not yet ruled whether such tax credits would be consistent with the Constitution's church-state separation provisions, McGovern said the direction of the court's opinions indicated they eventually would.

McGovern's statement was a bid for the support of the nation's Catholic voters who have been cool to him. Some big city leaders with large Catholic constituencies have long urged McGovern to take a firm stand for public aid to the Catholic schools—many of them in dire financial straits.

McGovern's top aides feel he hasn't been able to communicate his complex ideas for changing American society through the regular news channels and needs a crack at a nationwide audience to convey his ideas directly.

Government Recalls 2 Million Vitamins

SUN VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration has ordered the recall of 2 million vitamin pills manufactured by Strong Cobb Arner Inc., it was nnounced during the weekend.

The FDA said the pills contain Amorbarbitol, a sedative that can cause a dangerous reaction if taken by heavy drinkers or those with some lung ailments. Last month the government ordered the recall of another large batch of vitamins manufactured by the same firm.

Three Killed As Train Hits Auto

MODESTO (UPI)—Three persons were killed Monday night when a Southern Pacific train struck a car broadside about four miles south of here, the California Highway Patrol said.

A CHP spokesman said three adults believed to be from Southern California were killed instantly when the train struck the car and carried it for almost a mile before coming to a stop.

Authorities worked for about two hours to rescue the victims from the car.

More Cooperation Asked In River Park Development

The Petaluma City Council last night called for better cooperation between the city and Sonoma County in developing Shollenberger River Park.

The council called for a special study by the recreation, music and parks commission to see where negotiations stand on developing the 20-acre park adjacent to the city boat-launch ramp off Lakeville Highway.

The county has appropriated $34,000 for development of four acres of the park and has applied for a $25,000 federal grant. If approved, the funds would provide picnic areas, lay equipment, landscaping on the four acres and fencing of the 20-acre area to protect children from the drainage ditch, Petaluma River and railroad track.

The council said definite arrangements must be made for the remaining 16 acres of the park.

Councilmen said that if the county did not plan to commit further funds, the land should be turned over to the city for development.

Little League baseball and soccer leagues have offered to develop a portion of the park if they can have exclusive rights to the playing fields.

The council said it also was concerned that the county may put a two-year limit for the city to develop the remainder of the park and that funds may not then be available if work also is to continue at Miwok Valley and Lucchesi Parks.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

DEMOLITION — Was told it will cost $1,300 to demolish a substandard city-owned house at 303 Post Street and an estimated $5,000 to make the house livable enough to rent.

BUSES — Directed a letter to William R. Lucius, Sonoma County representative to the Golden Gate Bridge District board, asking that at least one bus be assigned to serve commuters in East Petaluma and that a study be done on possible commuter parking lots.

CAR — Called for bids on a passenger sedan for the police department with optional air conditioning.

CITATION — Received a 1971 pedestrian safety citation from American Automobile Association.

BUILDING — Heard that 16 developers have submitted requests for 3,013 living units for 1973-74. The development control board will recommend which may be built under the 500-unit limit for the year.

PROTEST — Asked that a resolution be prepared protesting action by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors to charge all costs of the June water bond election to the county water department. The council said it would result in increased water rates and that the election cost should be borne by all residents.

ADJOURNED — Met in closed session to consider an appointment to the planning commission and adjourned to Monday at 7 p.m. to continue consideration.

McGovern Gets ILWU Support

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union executive committee endorsed Sen. George McGovern Monday but said the Democratic presidential nominee would have to be kept under "constant pressure" if elected.

The independent union, with about 50,000 longshoremen, warehouse, sugar and pineapple workers on the West Coast and in Hawaii, said the pressure on McGovern would be necessary to secure the interests of the working man.

The endorsement of McGovern was foreshadowed by ILWU leader Harry Bridges who earlier referred to the South Dakota senator's record on labor issues.

Major Crime In S.F. Decreases

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—During the first eight months of this year, major crimes decreased by 20 per cent in San Francisco, Police Chief Donald M. Scott reported Monday.

The largest decrease was in burglaries — 9,574 compared with 12,461.

BEST IN THE COUNTRY

Marin's Young Racing Champion

By PAT PERRY

After two years' racing quarter midget cars 10-year-old Chris Cook of Larkspur has collected trophies that far outweigh his slender body.

Last month Chris became Senior Rigid Stock Champion of the U.S. and Senior Modified Stock Champion of the U.S. at the Grand National of Quarter Midgeting in Huntsville, Ala., the first child in the sport's history to win both races at a grand national.

Chris, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Cook of 170 Piedmont Court, Larkspur, is in fifth grade at Larkspur-Corte Madera School, but he said that not many of his classmates know he's a U.S. champion "because I haven't told them."

He entered the fast-growing sport by taking training classes at a Hayward track on Saturday mornings, then raced in novice classes before entering senior classes after his ninth birthday.

He races most Sundays from February through November, and this year's championship at Huntsville was his thrid grand national.

His mother, Jennie Cook, explained that the quarter-midgets have a four cycle continental engine like that in a lawnmower with the car's minimum weight at 150 pounds. They have to be pushed to start, and aren't considered dangerous to the child drivers.

"The children must wear seat belts, leather or vinyl jackets and gloves, crash helmets and the cars are fitted with roll bars or cages. The worst I've ever seen are cuts," she said, "although there's quite a bit of bumping in races. I'm more worried about him riding his bike in Larkspur than in his cars on the track."

Chris said the cars travel at around 30 miles an hour, but he's driven as fast as 55 miles an hour in the "A" class.

Chris owns two quarter-midget cars, which are meticulously maintained by his father, plant manager at the Dr. Pepper bottling company in San Francisco.

The qaurter-midgets start with a stock engine of 7.5 horsepower, which is modified up to 13 horsepower. The cars are raced "suspended" or "rigid" — in which case the axle is made rigid with resultant slower speeds.

Homemade cars can cost as little as $150, said Mrs. Cook, but purchased cars like Chris's pair can cost anywhere from $300 to $1,000.

"The engine has to be stock to ithin thousandths of an inch tolerance," explained Mrs. Cook, "and the winners' cars' engines are torn down after each race to make sure."

There were 443 entries at the grand national from 50 states, said Mrs. Cook, and the sport has a reputation of keeping close family ties, since generally fathers maintain their offsprings' cars while mothers work alongside the track and come in for their share of push starts.

And how did Chris become the fastest 10-year-old on wheels in the United States?

"I guess it's because my dad works so hard on the cars," he said modestly.

Toliver Hired For New Post

James T. Toliver Jr., controversial Sausalito educator, has been hired as director of the Oakland Street Academy, a federally funded educational program for youngsters unable to function successfully in public schools.

Last night the Sausalito School District board granted him a leave of absence from teaching duties for the remainder of the 1972-73 school year.

The 37-year-old Toliver, who is teaching fourth grade in Sausalito this year, will begin the new $21,000-a-year job tomorrow.

In is new post he will direct formulation of the academy — now in the planning stages. The program is funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and administered by the Bay Area Urban League which originally proposed the alternative school system.

Toliver said the academy will eventually include three schools with approximately 300 students, many of them dropouts from public schools. "The academy will attempt to direct these students back to academic and vocational pursuits," he said.

Toliver's five-year career in Sausalito schools has been a stormy one.

When Walton was fired in May of 1970, Toliver was named special assistant for the district, then was himself dismissed in May of 1971. At that time the school district board charged him with "unprofessional conduct, disruption of school district activities" and "interfering with the purposes and processes of school discipline."

He appealed the firing in Marin Superior Court and was reinstated — as a teacher — by the school board in February of this year, a week before the case was to go to court.

He taught first grade last year and was assigned to fourth grade for 1972-73. His current salary in the district is $14,000.

Bagley Speech Blasts Prop. 14

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Passage of Proposition 14 on the November ballot "could impair California's business climate for decades," Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said today.

The measure's sharp cuts in local government's property tax revenue probably would force local taxes on gas, water and electricity, thus driving up the cost of manufacturing, he predicted.

Speaking before some 300 unity and shipping line employees at the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. auditorium, Bagley appealed to California businessmen to join labor in opposing the proposition. Utility taxes were local government's only alternative for new tax revenue, he said.

Business also would face a threat from the Legislature, according to Bagley, because the $1.3 billion deficit imposed by the proposition would increase pressure to hike the tax rate on business property. Assessing business property at a rate higher than that for residential property "will slit many business throats," Bagley said.

He also predicted the proposition would encourage more local governments to take over private utilities as a new sources of revenue. "If you want to help socialize the power industry, you should love the Watson Initiative (Proposition 14)," he said.

The proposition, drafted by Los Angeles County Assessor Phillip Watson, would cut property taxes by about 40 per cent and shift the financing of welfare and education to the state.

Supervisor Blasts Stamp Test Story

Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum lashed out today at the Independent-Journal for what he called a "shabby trick" in reporting laxity in the administration of the county's food stamp program.

He charged that the I-J "took advantage of the humanitarian instincts of the (welfare) department" when a reporter — assigned by the city editor to masquerade as an unwed mother — applied for and received $64 ic food stamps.

Wornum's verbal blast came as the board of supervsiors ordered its staff to prepare a report on the number of fraudulent food stamp cases found since the program began and to develop "cost figures" for staffing the welfare department to check every applicant.

(Currently, only a portion of food stamp applicants are investigated by the department on a random sampling basis.)

Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella estimated it would require between 30 and 47 additional investigators to check every food stamp recipient at a cost of about $250,000 more per year.

"There's no question she (I-J reporter Marlene Freedman) would have been caught," Wornum said, adding the story "was not fearless reporting."

As reported last week, Miss Freedman applied for and received food stamps in a period of about 20 minutes and the following day returned them to stunned welfare officials.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, who told the board the masquerade had been referred to the district attorney's office for possibly perjury violations, supported the welfare department's action in giving the stamps.

"The tenor of the welfare law is to give aid immediately and check (the recipient) later," he said.

"I think we should encourage the district attorney to have the guts and go against the paper (I-J)," Wornum said, adding however "I doubt if anything will happen."

Wornum was backed by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste who said Miss Freedman should be prosecuted the same as anyone else who files a false application for food stamps.

Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said he would make no recommendation on prosecution since that was the responsibility of the district attorney.

Sword Attack Woman Is Committed

A crew-cut woman who wounded a fellow employee in a Sausalito shop with a samurai sword has been committed for 90 days to the California Institute for Women at Frontera for study of what sentence she should receive.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court ordered the temporary commitment of Frances Gail Simpson, 29, after she pleaded guilty to a charge of stabbing Norman Williams, 20, a shop steward at Heath Ceramics.

The attack took place Aug. 4, but she was not captured until the next day in Mill Valley.

She originally pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, but psychiatrists found her legally sane although psychotic. Her guilty plea was on the condition her sanity not be questioned.

Agency Addition Called Illegal

A proposal that Corte Madera's Redevelopment Agency composed of the five town councilmen be augmented by two appointed lay members was called illegal last night by Town Atty. Albert Bianchi. (Another Corte Madera council story, page 1.)

The request from the Mariner Cove Improvement Assn., was becked by lone councilman Robert J. Flahive, but mayor Holmes S. Norville and councilman Harold B. Wagstaff said they disliked the idea of mixing elected and appointed representatives on one board.

The association's board of directors made the request last week after deciding that agency action would strongly affect school tax bases. "The Redevelopment Agency's going to have a major impact on the economics and character of the town's future development," said association vice president Philip O. Sasso from the audience. "Fantastic amounts of money are involved, up to $6 million."

"To put this in the hands of a council that may be out in one and a half years is toying with danger."

And he warned Mayor Holmes S. Norville, and Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff and the absent Councilman Edward W. Colthurst that all three of them had been threatened with recall this year.

Town Atty. Albert Bianchi stated that a redevelopment agency could be five or seven appointed members, or the town council, but not a mixture of appointees and councilmen, so the suggestionwas illegal. It would be possible, he said, to have additional non-voting appointed members.

Mayor Norville said that "by the time the next election comes around the decisions relative to the redevelopment will have been made," and Councilman Wagstaff said he disapproved of mixing elected and appointed representatives. "A monolithic group does a better job," he said.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

Students Tell Truth On Lying

The poll was conducted by Dr. Bernard Cosneck and his research assistant, Nancy Lockington. They asked 491 VSC students whether they had ever told a lie, and 490 of them said they had.

Cosneck said the "biggest cause for lying was the fear of punishment for 31.3 per cent of the students. The next most mentioned cause was the wish to avoid hurting someone, 24.3 per cent. And the third largest cause was the desire to avoid a disagreeable situation, 18.3 per cent."

Cash Taken

A thief took two cash bags containing $700 and a pair of $35 binoculars after forcing the rear door of McArthur's Bar, 218 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, sometime yesterday, police reported today.

Teachers Ask Budget Restoration

The Ross School District Teachers Association asked last night that $5,000 lopped earlier from the district's 1972-73 budget be restored for instructors' salaries.

The funds had been declared surplus by Ross School District trustees last month when they adopted a $617,581 spending program. The $5,000 was the difference between the salary of Rena Safford, a kindergarten teacher who retired after 23 years at Ross School, and her replacement.

Supt. Thomas A. Anderson said the board didn't take action on the association's request because the matter wasn't on the agenda. Adding the $5,000 also would involve alteration of the teachers' salary schedule, Anderson said.

The board also took its first look at recommended eacher job descriptions advised under a state law requiring evaluation of instructional performance. After a lengthy discussion between board members and faculty, according to Anderson, the recommendations were left for a year's trial before adoption by the board.

The Ross School District board also:

LEGISLATION — Agreed with the intent to form a legislative committee through the Marin County School Boards Association.

SAFFORD — Postponed renaming the Ross School District Trustee Scholarship Award in honor of Mrs. Safford, pending reevaluation of student qualifications and the purpose of the award.

GIFT — Accepted $1,400 in video tape equipment from the Ross School Parent-Teacher Association, which raised enabling funds through a variety show.

TRANSFER — Denied permission for third grade student Jeffrey Wynne to attend Kentfield schools because of uncertainty over the residential status of his parents.

MEETING — Is due to meet next on Oct. 16.

Television Watcher Shoots It Out

Gordon Daly of Apartment 15, Meadowsweet Motel, Corte Madera, reported to police that he had pulled his .38 caliber pistol from its holster while watching television on Sept. 1.

"And it went off killing his TV set. The only problem is the T.V. is owned by the motel and he's out $120," stated a late written report by Corte Madera police yesterday.

'Nobody Interested' In School Problem

The question of a school site for children of Madera del Presidio town house purchasers is of no concern to the Corte Madera Town Council, councilmen decided last night, and neither is the problem of getting water to the site.

In fact, said Mayor Holmes S. Norville, nobody is interested in assuming the responsibility of designating a school site, "but Mill Valley is stuck with it."

The council considered a letter from Mill Valley School District — described by Town Atty. Albert Bianchi as "a remarkable exercise in generalities" — in which it said it was unlikely to build a school in Corte Madera, and couldn't promise bus service for pupils to its nearest school at Strawberry Point.

Councilman Robert J. Flahive suggested the problem could be solved "if we told the developer he couldn't build until he worked it out," but his point got no support.

Planning Commissioner David I. Freed told the council that conditions in design review applications could include telling prospective purchasers "that their children wouldn't be going to the nice modern school down the road."

His suggestion was much more warmly received, and councilmen voted unanimously to direct the Planning Commission that part of the covenants entailed in the Madera del Presidio development permission "be a statement that the Mill Valley School District is the elementary school diyrict, and the distance to the school be so specified."

Later in the meeting commissioner Freed asked if Corte Madera's emergency building moratorium would affect the building permit scheduled to be issued soon to the high density housing development.

He also questioned the effect if the Marin Municipal Water District should refuse a water hookup to the project.

Mayor Norville said the moratorium specifically excluded Madera del Presidio, "and it's my understanding it is the obligation of the MMWD to provide water."

Councilman Flahive added: "We're going to have a good development — no schools and no water."

Public works director Arthur N. Morrison said that the town won't issue a building permit until the water is guaranteed.

Tennis Club First-Phase Plans Pass

The Novato Planning Commission last night approved precise development plans for the first phase of the Olive Ridge tennis club complex at Olive Avenue and Deer Island Lane.

In the first phase, Attillio Quartaroli, a San Francisco contractor, plans to build 10 tennis courts, a swimming pool and a golf pro shop.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

APARTMENTS — Approved precise development plans by International Concrete Systems Consultants Inc. for a 32-unit apartment project on 2.3 acres on the south side of Rowland Boulevard, midway between Leafwood Drive and South Novato Boulevard.

DIABLO TRIANGLE — Denied a request by International Concrete Systems Consultants Inc. to amend the South Diablo Triangle master plan to permit 83 apartment units on 2.27 acres on the east side of Diablo Avenue, south of Warner Creek.

SIGN ORDINANCE — Continued indefinitely discussion on proposed revision of the city's sign ordinance submitted by the Downtown Merchants Association and the planning staff.

MEETINGS — Scheduled a public hearing on the revised Novato area general plan on Oct. 12 and canceled its regularly scheduled meeting on Oct. 23. The commission's next meeting will be at 8 p.m. Monday at Novato Community House.

Fire Department Proposal On List

A plan to reorganize the Sausalito Fire Department will be presented to the Sausalito City Council at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

The council will also consider a proposal to create a new position, of building inspector-zoning administrator. Building inspector William L. Hynes will retire Oct. 1 after 20 years with the city and City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr is recommending that Hynes duties be combined with zoning administration responsibilities into a new position.

Coffee Speaking Areas Announced

Michael Peevey, a candidate for Marin County supervisor in the fourth district, will speak at coffees this week in Corte Madera, Larkspur and Woodacre.

THE "OLD LADY"

who lived in a shoe had so many children she didn't know what to do until she saw our shoe in San Anselmo. The "Old Lady" remarked: "My, you have five or six or even seven bedrooms, and I can train all my children to be Olympic Champions in the huge heated & filtered swimming pool." — And after they're through, they won't catch cold because there are 2 fireplaces in this shoe. This is not an "Old Boot," by any means, and doesn't need a new heel or sole. If this shoe sounds good, then try it on.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Rheumatic fever is a generalized disease that involves the joints, skin, heart, lungs, and other organs. But brain involvement (Sydenham's chorea or St. Vitus' dance) is one of the most dramatic manifestations. For reasons unknown, most of the victims are pre-pubertal girls. Sydenham's should not be confused with Huntington's chorea, which is an hereditary disorder that develops in mid-life.

The onset of St. Vitus' dance is vague. Parents may notice that the child is becoming nervous and irritable. The tyke grimaces and spills her milk and food. Jerky, purposeless involuntary movements of the face, arms and legs are the most striking features. The youngster tends to spread out and extend the fingers when holding the arms out and turns the palms outward when the arms are held above the head.

EFFORT AND excitement increase the jerkiness, which is more noticeable also when the child tries to eat, dress, or pick up an object. Illegible handwriting, slurred speech, and stumbling are frequent. These children cry without provocation and are a pitiful sight because of their helplessness. Muscle weakness is evidenced by testing the hand grip. Now and then the muscles quiver or twitch.

CHOREA IS BEST treated by keeping the child in bed with padded side boards to prevent injury when thrashing about. Self-injury and tongue biting may occur due to the violent, uncontrollable movements. The room should be quiet and dim because noise and bright lights aggrevate the symptoms. Sedatives and tranquilizers are helpful. Cortisone is also used. Artificial fever treatments may be needed to bring severe cases under control. But these measures seldom are necessary because the disease usually subsides spontaneously after a few weeks or months.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

OPERATION DIDN'T HELP

O.D. writes: A person who was operated on feels worse than he did before the surgery. The doctor says there is nothing wrong. Please advise.

REPLY

People do not imagine symptoms such as pain or nausea. Distress exists, but it may be of nervous orgin rather than from a diseased organ. The psyche often complicates traumatic experiences such as a major operation, and sometimes recovery is prolonged for months. The surgeon who recognizes this trait may refuse to operate, knowing that whatever he does will not lead to a cure.

THOUGHTLESS HUSBAND

A reader writes: What advice do you have for a man who is married to a woman with spastic bowel? He insists it's a lot of bunk so that two years of treatment has done no good.

REPLY

My advise is directed toward the wife. She should stop complaining to her husband about her spastic bowel and make the necessary adjustments to avoid or minimize tension, fatigue and anxiety.

RAYS FOR SINUSES

REPLY

It was a recognized form of treatment some decades ago, but is not effective when the sinuses need to be drained.

True Bridge Saying—Save Something For A Rainy Day

When I was one-and-twenty my mother said to me: "Put something away for a rainy day." But I was one-and-twenty; no use to talk to me. And now I'm two-and-twenty (to say the least) — and oh, 'tis true 'tis true. (What's more, I have a bridge hand to prove it.)

DREW TRUMPS

South won the first trick with the king of clubs and drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king.

Declarer next cashed the top spades and ruffed a spade with the ten. Now he could lead the low heart to dummy's nine to lead a fourth spade.

When South then led a diamond, hoping to reach dummy for the good spade, West stepped up with the ace of diamonds and led the nine of clubs. East took the rest of the tricks with clubs, and South was down two.

SHOULD NOT RUFF

If South had been mature enough, he would have put awayhis last trump for a rainy day. That is, he would discard the five of clubs instead of ruffing the fourth round of spades.

If East then returned a diamond, the best defense, West would take the ace of diamonds and lead the nine of clubs. South would ruff with his carefully preserved last trump and reach dummy with the king of diamonds to cash the last spade as his tenth trick.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - A K 7 5 2
♥ - 9 7 5
♦ - K 10
♣ - Q 6 3.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You have 12 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You can afford to exercise your option because you have good high-card structure (2½ Quick Tricks) and a good five-card major suit.

Prison Escapee Is Captured

A San Quentin escapee was recaptured Sunday when he reported the theft of his borrowed car from a parking lot at the San Mateo County Jail where he was visiting a friend.

Samuel James Havard, 42, was placed in San Quentin's maximum security facility to await disciplinary action on an escape charge, according to public information officer Al Silva.

Havard walked away from the prison's minimum security facility with two other prisoners on Jan. 18, 1971. The other two have been recaptured. Havard was serving a five-year-to-life term for attempted robbery and kidnap.

The car, which Havard told police he borrowed from a friend, is still missing.

Remodeling Session Is Delayed

A public hearing set for tonight at 8 o'clock in Fairfax on a proposal to build a new firehouse and remodel the police department has been canceled, City Administrator Robert E. Crowe has announced.

He said the hearing — which has not yet been rescheduled -- was postponed because final cost estimates of the project have not been prepared.

Crowe said the city council and the planning commission would meet in closed session at 7 o'clock tonight in the Fairfax Women's Club to discuss a suit filed against the city by Denkmann and Co. The company says the city has illegally delayed approving a tentative map for the hotly debated Cannon Village and Tennis Club.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson has ordered Hugh O. Winn, chairman of the Fairfax Planning Commission, to either approve the map or show cause Sept. 27 why he shouldn't have to.

The developer filed the tentative map July 17, but no action has yet been taken by the commission. The city municipal code says action must be taken within 30 days or the tentative map "shall be deemed approved."

Memorial Building's A Year Old

This month will mark the first anniversary of the Marin Veteran's Memorial Building.

It was opened a year ago Sept. 26 with a gala celebration. Since then, 200,000 people have trouped through the $4 million building's auditorium, exhibit hall and grounds.

The circular building on the shores of the Civic Center lagoon has become not only an integral part of the Marin County landscape, but an integral part of the county's cultural life as well.

In the first nine months since the building opened, 129 performances were staged there.

There were 14 pop music events; four one-man comedy shows; four rock concerts; 12 films; 10 lectures and miscellaneous talks; 25 plays and dance performances, and 34 concerts, symphonies, and musicals.

The grounds and exhibit areas of the building were used for 26 fairs, auctions, antique shows, and conventions.

According to Leon G. Kalimos, executive director of the building, the most popular event in the building's short history was a series of four performances by the San Francisco Symphony with Seiji Ozawa conducting. Some 7,500 people attended them.

Next in order of patronage came the Marin Open House concert, 2,500; the Duke Ellington concert, 2,088, a Harry James concert, 1,700, and two performances by Lawrence Welk, 1,859.

The 13 programs of the Youth in Arts program, some with two performances, drew 26,799 school children and their teachers.

(Attendance figures for other events sponsored by other amateur or non-rofit groups were not available since ticket sales weren't handled by the building's box office.)

The festive opening night affair which last year launched the building attracted 1,773 people, each of whom paid $15 apiece for tickets.

Workmen in hard hats were still putting the final touches to the building as the opening night crowd arrived in its finery. The crowd drank 960 bottles of California champagne and listened to Maestro Sandor Salgo conduct the Marin Symphony Orchestra in Darius Milhaud's "Suite in G."

MARIN SHOWCASE — The Marin Veterans Memorial Building is bathed in a festive glow of lights whenever a nighttime program is being staged. Since the theater and hall opened one year ago next Tuesday, the building has housed classic concerts, rock performances, plays, film festivals, a dog show, county fair displays and other cultural events.

Opening night was acknowledged a success despite the $9,000 deficit the county ran up paying for the bash.

The building's second major event, a benefit rock concert for Marin Open House didn't fare half as well.

It was promoted by Sausalito pharmacist Fred G. Mayer over the objections of Kalimos who told the Marin County Supervisors, "hard rock has a philosophy of turning people on, which results in a physical reaction such as jumping on seats and dancing in the aisles."

The ensuing damage ($2,000 worth) to carpeting and seats resulted in a $16,000 lawsuit which the supervisors filed in May against Marin Open House and the concert promoter.

Since then, the building has had an uneventful history except for minor accidents and squabbles such as a $1,000 flash fire in December caused by workmen spraying lacquer which ignited, and a demand by Musicians Union Local No. 6 that 16 musicians be employed at all building events.

In its first nine months, the memorial building took in $49,000, and it is expected that $60,000 will be taken in this fiscal year, according to Michael Mitchell, the county auditor-controller.

Highlights of the coming season include appearances by the San Francisco Symphony, the Vienna Boys Choir, performances of "Tom Paine" and "Applause," Christmas season staging of the "Nutcracker" ballet by the Marin Civic Ballet, and mime Marcel Marceau.

According to Kalimos, the building's exhibit hall is perfectly suited for handling gatherings of three and four hundred people. So far, four conventions have been booked for the season: the American Contract Bridge League's Marin Unit; the District 513 Conference of Rotary International; the Championship All-Breed Cat Show, and the Western Regional Ballet Conference.

The building will still run up a $170,000 deficit. The supervisors appropriated $231,556 for 1972-73 to operate the building and to make needed improvements.

Salaries for the staff of four will account for $66,195; supplies, maintenance, insurance, utilities, and other services will cost $118,101, and $47,260 has been earmarked for fixed asset improvements including a catwalk above the stage, new lighting, sound and kitchen equipment.

What's ahead for the building?

Oxidant, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Ross Sewer Survey Is Ordered

The Ross Valley Sanitary District board last night told district engineers to go ahead with surveying Sylvan Lane in Ross so that its new sewer trunk line — stalled by Ross's legal dilemmas over the Corte Madera Creek flood control project — can be installed underground.

Board president Eugene A. Ostaggi said the sewer extension had been projected to travel within the concrete-lined creek channel.

Because lawsuits in Ross have delayed the channel project for at least a year, the sanitary district must run the 30-inch-wide pressure line underground through Ross.

Ostaggi said engineers will survey Sylvan Lane before beginning condemnation proceedings to acquire easements for $lv41$or Frederick S. Allen predicted it the line.

Board members didn't discuss the cost of additional rights of way, Ostaggi said, although at the Sept. 14 meeting of the Ross Town Council, Mayor Frederick . Allen predicted it would cost district taxpayers' an extra $300,000.

The sewer trunk line is a replacement for the 1920s-era sewage lines presently serving Ross Valley. The sanitary district is responsibile for the entire Corte Madera Creek drainage basin, from Fairfax to the bay.

Acupuncture Is Now Accepted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Acupuncture is now classed as an accepted technique of medical practice by the Missouri Medical Association.

The association adopted a resolution Monday that John Hailey, executive secretary of the Missouri Board of Healing Arts, said was intended to prevent laymen from practicing the ancient Chinese technique of acupuncture.

"Any doctor who wants to practice this in Missouri would have to be licensed through this board," Hailey said. "The license permits doctors to practice any form of medicine, such as surgery, general practice or any other types."

5 Permit Pleas Win, 1 Loses In Belvedere

Use permits for alterations and additions to homes under the city's moratorium on building were the main items to come before the Belvedere Planning Commission last night.

According to secretary William H. Rafter, the commission recommended granting use permits to: Carl Baker for 31 West Shore Road, Stuart R. Pollak at 13 Oak Avenue, Thomas E. Solinsky at 9 Laurel Avenue and M. C. Powell at 9 West Shore Road. It recommended denial for an addition to the front but approved an addition to the rear of a house for Joseph E. Sheeks at 166 Bella Vista Avenue.

All items will come before the Belvedere City Council on Oct. 2, he said.

The commission also approved splitting two lots into three on Point Belvedere for Hamilton Vose III.

The commission reviewed and commented on plans for 60 townhoufe units on Red Hill Circle submitted by the Tiburon Planning Commission, but took no action. The Belvedere commission believed the density was too high and the design too massive, Rafter said.

Attack Suspect Pleads Guilty

A 22-year-old Novato man charged with raping a date has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to statutory rape.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner set sentencing of Steven Hickman for Oct. 24.

Hickman was bound over to superior court on charges of rape, statutory rape and oral copulation, but the district attorney decided to file only the one charge because of evidence problems.

Hickman then agreed to plead guilty provided he is sentenced to 10 days in jail, placed on probation. The judge also agreed to reduce the count to a misdemeanor after six months of good behavior.

Hickman was arrested after his date for a wedding party in San Francisco July 29 told Novato police he drove her to his home, then beat and raped her, according to police.

Sen. Moss Wants Cigar Ads Off TV

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Television advertisements for small cigars will be off the air next year if Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, has his way.

The ads, he said Monday, were an attempt to thwart the ban on cigarette commercials under federal legislation.

Some College Loans Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. Office of Education official conceded today that government-guaranteed loans to some college students have been delayed as long as one month because of red tape.

"But we are getting evidence that the schools are aware of delays and are making arrangements to take care of these students," said David C. Bayer of the agency's division of insured loans. "The log jam has been pretty much been broken."

Bayer released figures showing that the amount of loans under the guaranteed student loan program was $240 million lower this year than it was last year because of new higher education legislation and increased paper work for everybody involved in the loan process from the government to the student.

Mrs. Chisholm Cites 'Power Of Ballot'

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., says that cynical Northern blacks could learn a lesson about voting from their Southern brothers who have learned the power of the ballot box.

Speaking to about 300 persons Monday at the Jersey City Job Corps Center for Women, Mrs. Chisholm said a multitude of changes in the South were brought about by blacks who have begun to vote. "You cannot bring changes in society unless you exercise the right to vote," she said. "If you don't vote you get what you deserve."

Redevelop Area Worth Is Clarified

Marin County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel said today he was misunderstood in an Independent-Journal article yesterday which asserted he claimed San Rafael's redevelopment area represented almost half of the city's total $160 million assessed valuation.

Actually, the area proposed for redevelopment represents about 31 per cent, or $50 million of the city's assessed valuation, Broemmel said.

Redevelopment Agency Executive Director William J. Bielser, however, said the area proposed for redevelopment represents about 20 per cent, or $33 million of the city's assessed valuation.

Broemmel said all property in old San Rafael — and not just the city's redevelopment area, as reported yesterday — represented almost half of San Rafael's assessed valuation.

Virtually all the commercial property in old San Rafael south of Puerto Suello Hill — excluding the Miracle Mile commercial district — is proposed for redevelopment, Bielser said.

Judge Suggests Vietnam Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— U.S. District Judge William T. Sweigert suggested Monday the U.S. Supreme Court make "a final statement" on whether American involvement in the Vietnam war is constitutional.

The high court should resolve the issue for the American people "who have been torn with controversy over the Vietnam war and who could again in the future be faced with a similar presidential war involvement," Sweigert said.

Sweigert made the comments in dismissing a suit filed last year by Alden B. Campen, San Jose, Calif., and others who challenged the legality of the conflict because Congress had not passed a declaration of war.

The dismissal was based on a 9th U.S. Circuit of Appeals ruling in a previous case that citizens have no standing to challenge the constitutionality of the war.

Covered-Up Pot Arrest Revealed

A Sausalito man faces narcotics charges in both Marin and San Bernardino county courts after being arrested in Larkspur on Sept. 7.

John Freeman Finley, 25, of 109 Marion Drive, Sausalito, was arrested 12 days ago, on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia, according to Larkspur police who suppressed the arrest report until yesterday.

After his arrest it was learned that there was a $10,000 warrant outstanding against him by San Bernardino County authorities for failing to appear on a conspiracy to transport marijuana charge.

According to Larkspur police, they were called to a house at 23 Onyx Avenue at 12:32 p.m. on Sept. 7 by its owner, Sheldon Penrose Donig of 340 Laurel Avenue, San Anselmo, who reported a possible dead body from a narcotics overdose.

Finley is alleged to have been found naked on a living room couch with marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia in the house.

Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire set Finley's bail at $5,000, Larkspur police said.

Until the Independent-Journal learned of Finley's imminent court appearance all details of his arrest had been concealed by Larkspur police on orders by Capt. Charles J. Mattos.

No reason for the secrecy could be ascertained. Larkspur's police chief Howard H. Clark is on vacation, and Mattos who for some time yesterday ordered the arrest report withheld remained unavailable for comment.

Larkspur's police dispatcher-clerk, Sandie Simpson, said the report was not released because Finley was already wanted by San Bernardino authorities, and it was not necessary to make reports on warrant arrests.

Subgroup To Meet

A public meeting of the Citizens Advisory Committee on the Preparation of the General Plan, Housing Element and Open Space subcommittee will be held at 8 p.m. next Monday in the council chambers of the San Anselmo City Hall.

First Meeting Of Marin's 49er Fans

The talk was of bump and run, double coverage, pass patterns, and fighting tobacco stains on the Candlestick Park AstroTurf.

Doing the talking was Dick Witcher, wide receiver in his seventh year with the 49ers, and doing the listening were about 50 members of the Marin Chapter, 49er Goal Rushers, at the booster group's first luncheon meeting of the 1972 football season.

Pass receivers do not like artificial grass because of the burns received when diving for catches. Witcher is no exception. "Myself, I would rather play on grass," he said. Among the reasons artificial grass comes into Dick's disfavor is the possibility of infections.

"There's always that chance because scrapes take so long to heal and with baseball players there are always tobacco stains."

HE'S RIGHT. When you see those baseball players with a huge wad of chewing tobacco in their cheek, they have to spit somewhere. Instead of fertilizing the dirt it just sits on top of the artificial grass. Fortunately the turf periodically is cleaned with vacuum cleaners.

"It's not too bad at Candlestick, but some of the fields around the league are filthy," said Witcher.

ABOUT THE BUMP and run — a tactic used by defensive backs to slow the receiver down by bumping him near the line of scrimmage before he can start his pattern downfield —Witcher said fans will be seeing less of this because the "rules have caught up with it."

A change in the rule says a defensive back can't touch the potential receiver once he is parallel with him. In the past, the defender bumped and shoved the receiver as he ran alongside him, before the pass was thrown. "More teams are getting away from using it (bump and run)," said the 6-foot-3, 204-pound graduate of UCLA.

Witcher defended quarterback Steve Spurrier who has drawn some criticism for a shot put type pass he threw one yard to Witcher in the end zone in the final quarter of Sunday's game against the San Diego Chargers, a game the Niners won, 34-3. The pass was intercepted by cornerback Joe Beauchamp.

"HE HAD TO THROW the pass the way he did," said Witcher, "because there was a defensive man between us. The guy (Beauchamp) who intercepted it came from behind, out of nowhere."

One of the boosters asked if 49er head coach Dick Nolan is hollering at his players when he's seen on the sidelines shaking his finger emphatically at someone.

"Dick Nolan's criticism is done in a way that you don't feel it is really criticism. I've never seen him yell at anybody on the field in front of the players," said Witcher.

WITCHER WOULD be the first to agree that it's hard to get fired up over a team like the Buffalo Bills, the 49ers' next foes, but the whole 49er team realizes it's an outfit just like this, one that won only one game all last year, that would love to knock off a league contender.

Witcher did say that four games on the 49er schedule appear to be the key ones. He listed the games with Dallas (Nov. 23), Minnesota (Dec. 16) and Los Angeles (Oct. 8 and Dec. 4) as the make or break contests.

They all sound tougher than Buffalo.

Redskins Victorious On The 'Anniversary'

He celebrated at the expense of the Minnesota Vikings.

Exactly two years earlier, Malinchak, a seven-year veteran from Indiana, was cut from the Detroit Lions' roster, and almost out of football. It is difficult to latch onto another job when cut one day into the regular season, which it was two years ago.

But Malinchak found a job with Washington, and was around Monday night to celebrate—by blocking a punt 2 1-2 minutes into the game and running it for a touchdown, and by recovering a fourth quarter fumble to set up the winning score in a 24-21 Redskin upset victory.

The two plays, and a host of other Minnesota miscues, spoiled the regular season debut of quarterback Fran TarKenton, who completed 18-of-31 passes for 233 yards and two touchdowns.

Other Minnesota errors included a third quarter fumble on the Washington 20-yard line by Oscar Reed with the Vikings leading 14-10, and a blocked 41-yard Fred Cox field goal attempt by Washington's Ted Vactor at the close of the first half.

"If ever there was a team victory, tonight was it," exulted Washington Coach George Allen, who now has piloted a winner in the season opener in each of his seven years in the league.

Allen said the "turning point had to be Malinchak's recovery of the fumble on the 20."

"I don't know what happened on that play," said Clint Jones, who fumbled the kickoff runback. "Somebody hit me from behind. Whoever it was made a pretty good play."

Malinchak, rejoicing over receiving his first game ball as a pro, still was bitter about his late 1970 demise from Detroit. He would only say, "That kind of thing is unheard of."

This year, he had another close call. He was cut by Washington two weeks ago, but was reactivated last Tuesday after the final roster cut.

"I had faith I'd be activated for use on the special teams," He said. "We emphasize special teams a lot. From looking at films, we determined during the week that we could block the Vikings' kicks.

"We saw their ends weren't blocking strong. On the block punt, I was brushed lightly by No. 43 (Nate Wright), but he took off down field to cover the kick and I had a clean shot."

Malinchak's effort, which even Grant complimented, gave the Redskins the impetus and the Vikings never completely recovered—although they took

GIANT RETIRED — San Francisco base runner Dave Kingman was out at third base last night in Cincinnati after sliding into the tag applied by the Reds' Denis Menke. Bench Blows Stop Giants

He produced one run with a 350-feet homer in the fourth inning and drove in another in the sixth with a 20-foot bunt Monday night.

"Both hits felt good," Bench said after the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Giants 2-0.

"On the bunt, I didn't have a signal on it, but I've tried it before and the other times the ball has just gone foul on me," Bench said. "I knew the element of surprise was there and all I was trying to do was keep the ball away from the pitcher."

The bunt came with two outs and Joe Morgan on third base. Jim Hart was playing about 20 feet behind third on the Astroturf at Riverfront Stadium.

"Somebody told me Hart was playing in the third row of the left field seats," Bench said jokingly.

Hart attempted to field the ball bare-handed, but couldn't come up with it.

Jim McGlothlin, with relief from Clay Carroll in the ninth, made the two runs stand up, although he had to work out of jams in various innings.

"I had pretty good stuff, but I was erratic at the start and was falling behind to the hitters," said the Reseda, Calif., right-hander who yielded eight hits, but walked only one man.

GO-AHEAD TOUCHDOWN

Washington Redskin running back Larry Brown (43) scampered across the goal line for a fourth quarter touchdown against the Minnesota Vikings in Bloomington last night. Brown's short bolt put the Redskins ahead to stay in this National Football League opener for both clubs. Washington won, 24-21. (UPI Telephoto)

White Sox Visit A's In Key Series

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Chicago White Sox need a sweep, which means that the Oakland Athletics will settle for a split in their final two-game series, which opens tonight at the Coliseum.

It will be Tom Bradley (14-14) for the Chisox and John Odom (14-5) for Oakland in tonight's battle, which sees Chicago entering the arena five games back of the A's.

In head-and-head competition between the two pennant hopefuls, Oakland has taken seven wins and Chicago six even though superstar Dick Allen has ripped A's pitching at a .341 clip with four homers and 11 rbi's.

The A's have got second baseman Dick Green back on the roster after he had been on the disabled list almost the whole season. That gives manager Dick Williams five to juggle at second.

Both Chicago and Oakland were idle Monday.

FOR RAIDERS

Second-Guessing Of Quarterback Role

OAKLAND (UPI) — Coach John Madden said today it is easy to second guess the fact that Daryle Lamonica should have started Sunday's Oakland Raider game at Pittsburgh.

"Why didn't people ask before the game?" he said. "They knew all week I was starting Ken Stabler."

The southpaw Stabler failed to move the team and then gave way to George Blanda, who celebrated his 45th birthday by tossing a touchdown pass but then bogged down.

Lamonica came on in the fading moments of the third quarter and rallied the Raiders, who ended up on the short end of a 34-28 score to the improved Steelers.

No one is talking as to who will start Sunday at Green Bay, but nobody would be surprised if it's Lamonica.

This might not only be because of Lamonica's three touchdown passes against the Steelers. Lamonica is considered better against a team with a poor pass rush, since he likes to throw long, and also seems to prefer grass over artificial turf.

Sunday's battle with the Packers will be on grass and Green Bay is not noted for its pass charge.

Coach Madden insisted that the whole team flopped last Sunday.

"When a team doesn't perform well, you can't blame individuals. When you lose, no one looks good. We lacked consistency. We've got to become more consistent."

Many Raider fans were willing to suggest the Raiders seek that consistency with a new starting quarterback.

Meanwhile, the Raiders had some good news today. X-rays on tight end Ray Chester's ribs showed they were bruised but not broken.

Drake Gym Open

Solar Salute Heads The Field At Bay Meadows

SAN MATEO (UPI)—Solar Salute heads 19 three-year-olds nominated to the $20,000 added San Francisco Handicap, which will have its 38th running Saturday at Bay Meadows.

The weekend test at a mile and a sixteenth will decide the sophomore championship of the Tanforan portion of the fall racing season. It was first presented in 1901 at the old Tanforan track in San Bruno.

Solar Salute, who has earned more than $300,000, scored his most notable triumph in the $100,000 added Santa Anita Derby last winter.

Susan Brown In Pacific Coast Net Upset Win

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI)— Oakland teenager Susan Brown upset Judy Alvarez of Florida Sunday for the day's lone shocker in the Golden Gate Pacific Coast tennis championships. Meanwhile, Alice Valentine, a Tiburon Tennis Club summer teacher, bowed to Kris Corcoran, 5-7, 7-6, 6-3.

Miss Brown, only 14, bested her rival 6-3, 6-3, to advance in the star-packed tourney which was reduced to 32 finalists.

Top-seeded Billy Jean King, Margaret Smith Court of Australia and the other leading seeded players play later in the week.

Kate Latham of Palo Alto, Calif., beat Finland's Briggita Lindstrom, 6-2, 6-1, Monday in the final day of qualifying.

Padres Extend Pact Of Manager Zimmer

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —Don Zimmer, manager of the San Diego Padres, has had his contract extended to the end of the season next year, the Padres announced Monday.

Zimmer replaced Preston Gomez in April.

ANKLE HEALING

49er Starting Nod To Vic Washington

(Combined AP & UPI)

REDWOOD CITY — Vic Washington is expected to return to his first-string halfback post for the San Francisco 49ers Sunday, but fullback Ken Willard will be used only part time.

Both have been bothered by ankle injuries although Willard saw fourth-quarter action in last Sunday's 34-3 romp over San Diego.

Washington was held out of the San Diego game, but coach Dick Nolan tentatively listed him Monday as a starter against Buffalo. However, Nolan said Willard has been away from contact too long to start yet so will see only limited action against the Bills.

Larry Schreiber thus will start at fullback Sunday.

Three players injured Sunday are expected back this week but the prognosis is more doubtful for defensive back Ralph McGill, who had a back injury. Others injured were defensive tackle Bob Hoskins, a hamstring pull; offensive lineman Cas Banaszek, who aggravated an old groin muscle pull; and defensive back Jimmy Johnson, who reinjured an elbow.

The One-Handed Catching Method

CINCINNATI — Johnny Bench is the greatest catcher the Reds have had since Ernie Lombardi. Bench can do it all with bat and glove. He was the National League's Rookie of the Year in 1968, Most Valuable Player two seasons later when he hit 45 homers and drove in 148 runs.

This year he already has passed the 100 runs batted in mark and is challenging Nate Colbert and Willie Stargell for the 1972 home run title. Last night, he drove in both runs as the Reds blanked Jim Barr and the Giants, 2-0.

But, as great as he is, Bench's confident one-handed receiving didn't set a new catching style although many of his Riverfront Stadium admirers believe Bench invented the now-accepted classic catching defense of glove only with the meat hand out of harm's way from a foul tip.

"THE FIRST CATCHER I ever saw in a one-handed receiving style was Jake Early," said Charlie Fox. "That was long before the hinged mitt used by today's catchers. Early used to take all the stuffing out of his mitt so he could catch one-handed.

"At the same time Early was catching for the Washington Senators, Hoyt Wilhelm was having a fabulous year with hif knuckler at Minneapolis, then the triple A farm club of the Giants. Wilhelm was brought up by the Giants in 1952. And we made a deal for Early. We figured that anyone who could catch one-handed wouldn't have any trouble catching Wilhelm's knuckler."

Fox, a traditionalist two-handed catcher before his minor league managing days which led to his present job of managing the Giants, never had any built-in prejudices against one-handed receiving.

BUT HERMAN FRANKS did when he managed the Giants from 1965-68. Randy Hundley, a $115,000 bonus baby of the Giants in 1960, was brought up by the Giants in 1965 after five years of minor league schooling.

When Franks saw Hundley's one-handed receiving style, Franks ordered the rookie catcher to use two hands. Hundley refused. Hundley told the manager he wasn't about to have his meat hand turned into a mess of broken fingers and dislocated knuckles that were the trademarks of old-time catching traditionalists.

So it was no surprise that Hundley was traded at the end of the 1965 season to the Cubs for whom Hundley became an iron man behind the plate catching 149 games in 1966, 152 in 1967, 160 in 1968 and 151 in 1969. Successive knee operations in 1970-71 limited Hundley's action to a total of 82 games in those two years. This year Hundley returned to full-time duty with a plastic protective wrapping that covers his right leg from hip to ankle. But Hundley never missed a game because of any foul tip injury to his right hand.

"HUNDLEY ACTUALLY set the modern style of one-handed receiving," said Fox. "Virtually all of today's catchers are one-handed receivers because they can get the job done with the new hinged mitts. It would be impossible to catch one-handed with the old mitts, impossible, that is, unless you took the stuffing out of them like Early did.

"The only negative point in one-handed receiving is on a pitch that nips the outside corner. If that pitch is caught with two hands it's a strike. If caught one-handed with a glove reach across the body, the umpires are inclined to call it a ball because of the reaching catch."

Pirates' Clemente Is Player Of Week

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pittsburgh's Roberto Clemente is the National League Player of the Week for the period Sept. 11 through Sept. 17.

The Pirates' outfielder hit .571 as he went 12-for-21 during the week. Four of his hits were for extra bases as he scored six runs and drove in three during five games.

Bay Area Touring Rugby Team Loses

PONTYPOOL, Wales (UPI)—The Bay Area Touring Side is now 2-2 on its European rugby tour with five games against Welsh and English teams still on its schedule.

The Bay Area team lost 13-9 Monday night to Pontypool with a couple of narrowly missed scores turning the tide. Don Guest lost the ball in the end zone on one occasion and Tom Relles had the ball kicked out of his hands another time as he tried to touch it down. In Rugby, the ball must be touched down before the score counts.

NBA Seattle Team Peddles A Forward

IN BASEBALL

Brooks Leads Oriole Victory

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Brooks Robinson is the kind of guy who gets three hits, scores two runs, drives in another and still gives somebody else credit for winning the game.

That's just what the veteran Baltimore Orioles' third baseman did Monday night after his sparkling performance at the plate led his club to a vital 5-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox that tightened up the tangled American League Eastern divsion pennant race.

Despite his heroics at the plate, Robinson felt the difference was the spectacular catch by centerfielder Paul Blair in the second inning. With the bases loaded and one out, Doug Griffin hit a shot up the alley in left center that looked like it might go for a three-run double.

After Blair made the catch on Griffin's drive, losing pitcher Lynn McGlothen lined out to Blair and the inning was over with Boston leading 1-0 instead of 3-0. The Orioles then started their comeback.

Naturally, that guy Robinson was in the middle of it. He doubled in the fourth and scored the tying run on Dave Johnson's triple.

In the sixth inning with the score still tied 1-1, Terry Crowley walked and Robinson singled him to third. Johnny Oates doubled in Crowley to knock out McGlothen and winning pitcher Pat Dobson singled in Robinson to give the Orioles a 3-1 margin.

Brooks' run-scoring single then capped a two-run rally in the seventh after Blair doubled and Boog Powell and Don Baylor both singled.

In the three National League games, New York blanked Pittsburgh 1-0, Cincinnati beat San Francisco 2-0 and Los Angeles edged San Diego 3-2 in 10 innings.

New York stalled the Pittsburgh's drive for the NL East crown as Duffy Dyer singled in Rusty Saub for the only run of the game in the ninth inning.

Willie Crawford walked with two outs and the bases loaded in the 10th inning to force in the deciding run as Los Angeles downed San Diego.

The loss left the Vikings in the unfamiliar position of last place in the NFC Central Division heading into next Sunday's game in Detroit.

"It set us straight for the season," said Washington quarterback Bill Kilmer. "It's a big win for us against maybe the best club in the league."

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Fifth in a series on Marin County Athletics League football prospects.)

When San Marin High School football coach Bob Martin said, "We will be improved" last week, he made one of the bigger understatements since Napoleon said, "We'll win a few this year" in 1797.

After obliterating Harry Ells of Richmond in a scrimmage ten days ago, San Marin opened its non-league season Friday night by annihilating Healdsburg, 30-0. It was the most lopsided varsity victory in the school's history.

San Marin has quite a bit of improving to do, since it went 1-8 last year, 1-5 in the Marin County Athletic League. But the potential is there, especially in the backfield.

Flashy left-handed senior Hoza Wright is the team's quarterback. An outstanding all-round athlete, Wright was all-league last year as a defensive back, but will spare those duties this season.

San Marin will strive for a 50-50 balance of running and passing, using the I formation on offense. Wright can run in addition to throwing, and senior Fred Doar will be "the outstanding fullback in the league," in Martin's words.

Steve Baldocchi alternates between tailback and tight end, especially since an injury will keep Steve Goins out another week. Tim Lessley and Dave Azevedo are other good backs.

Receiving was a strong point in the demolition of Healdsburg. Greg Pater and Terry Kom alternate at split and Mark Tornai and Craig Leaf at tight end. Greg Sherwood, another tight end, will be eligible to play this week.

In the line, guard Matt Sherill, who was injured much of last season, and tackle Steve Fowler provide the experience. They, Wright, Doar, Baldocchi and Sherwood are the six players who started last year. All told, San Marin has 10 returning lettermen on the skimpy, 25-man roster at the three-year school.

"At least five or six players will go both ways," said Martin. "We'll try a lot of different players at several positions in the practice games."

The secondary in particular will be inexperienced, but it has held up so far, even without Wright. Fowler plays middle guard on defense and is an "anchor man," in Martin's words.

San Marin will play Sonoma High Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Novato High's field, site of all Mustang home games. The league season opens Sept. 30 against Drake.

Nastase Takes Rainier Tennis Tourney Crown

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Ilie Nastase of Romania gained $5,000 in prize money Sunday as he displayed his U.S. Open Championship form in downing hometown favorite Tom Gorman 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 in the Rainier International Tennis Classic Singles Championship.

Nastase played a relaxed game, battering Gorman at times with his serves. He was never in danger in the last set, mounting a 40-love lead in the final game with his serve before Gorman scored.

In the doubles final, Australians Ross Case and Geoff Masters defeated the French teams of Jean Chanfreau and Wanaro N'Godrella 4-6, 7-6, 6-4.

Ducks Unlimited Dinner In Fairfax

By AL GIDDINGS

The Marin County Chapter of Ducks Unlimited will be having its annual "Drakes Only" dinner next Tuesday. The conservation-aimed event will be held at the Deer Park Villa in Fairfax. Cocktails will be at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30.

Also featured will be door prizes, including a Harley Davidson motorcycle, donated by Kevin Dearth of San Rafael. Also on the list of prizes is an all-expense paid trip to the Holiday Hotel in Reno.

There will also be an auction, a drawing for prizes and a film on Ducks.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD to miss this event if you are a duck hunter and conservationist. Monies derived from this event are used for wetlands projects, and duck conservation. There is a limited seating capacity. Tickets can be obtained at Jim's Sport Shop in Novato and the Western Sport Shop in San Rafael.

JUST ABOUT ALL of Marin's finest duck hunters will be there including my old friend, Tom Mack, and, of course, Johnny Eberhart, who absolutely refused to give me any "inside dope" on anyone for this column.

He says: "As it is, they are going to get me this year at the party — whatever that means! Walt Freitas, the president of this chapter, will be there to answer any technical questions you might have regarding ducks. Al Anderson is hosting the event.

INCIDENTALLY I JUST received a brochure from Jim De La Montagna of Black Point, entitled The San Pablo Bay National Wildlife Refuge. Parts read: "The refuge located between the Petaluma River outlet and the city of Vallejo, is an 11,790 acre expanse of open water and tidelands. It is part of the winter home of 40,000 canvas back ducks, more than half the canvas back population of the Pacific Flyway — along with great numbers of loons, grebes, cormorants and terns. Preserving the area's delicate balance and perpetuatiing a self sustaining estuarine environment is the main purpose of the refuge and entails objectives.

1. PROVIDING A valuable wildlife area for public enjoyment including hunting and fishing.

2. Preserving habitat for sizeable populations of birds, animals and fish.

3. Providing areas for marine marsh and upland wildlife, and ecological studies and interpretation.

4. Maintaining the open space, open water, the marsh and tidal mudflats which is an essential to human welfare as it is to wildlife.

Let's talk about ducks. Last year, the statewide bag was 3,401,300 compared with 3,513,000 in 1970. In 1971, 204,000 hunters were reported to 223,100 in 1970. The average seasonal bag for 1971 was 16.7 birds per hunter. Though 1971 hunter survey respondents reported a slight increase in the duck bag, compared with 1970 (15.7), it did not indicate a significant change. With almost 3.5 million ducks in the bag, the 71 season was successful.

STATE OPERATED public shooting areas were productive with an increase in the bag of 18 per cent compared with the 1970 results. Private and commercial gun club hunters bagged about 43 per cent of the ducks bagged statewide in 1971, which is a significant drop below the 49 per cent in 1970. The decrease in the bag was accompanied by a 25 per cent drop in the hunter use on these areas compared to 1970.

THE GOOSE BAG was 373,900 in 1971 as compared with 377,700 in 1970. The average seasonal bag was 4.3 geese per hunter.

The waterfowl picture looks good generally, except for some problems with canvasbacks and possibly redheads. With the season closed statewide on cans this year, let's hope this problem will be cleared up.

Spitz Follows Partly In Weismuller Wake

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Mark Spitz, Olympic swimming champion who is contemplating a show business career, will work through the same agency which got Johnny Weismuller, also an Olympic swim star, his first "Tarzan" role in 1932.

But Spitz "definitely does not want to become another Tarzan," Spitz' new agent said in an interview Monday.

"We'll be handling all negotiations for him in all areas of the business—motion pictures, TV shows, commercial product endorsements," said Norman Brokaw of the William Morris Agency of Beverly Hills, one of the largest theatrical agencies in the world.

Brokaw said a "ballpark" estimate of Spitz' earning capacity in show business is $5 million. "But when you have a thoroughbred like Spitz it can go far in excess of that," he said.

Besides Weismuller, other personalities handled by the William Morris agency, Brokaw said, include Gregory Peck, Sophia Loren, Bill Cosby, Danny Thomas and Jack Lemmon.

Garth Scallon, Spitz' attorney in Sacramento, echoed Brokaw's comments about Spitz not wanting to follow the footsteps of barrel-chested Weismuller in show business. "He (Spitz) doesn't ever intend to play the part of an illiterate man," Scallon said, referring to the Tarzan role.

Forbes-Robinson In Sports Car Race Win

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Elliot Forbes-Robinson of Lacrescenta, Calif. won the Sports Car Club of America's professional formula Supervee series sports car race here Sunday while Bill Scott of McKean, Va., all but sewed up the series driving championship.

Scott led Harry Ingle of Charlette, N.C., by only five points in the standings going into the seventh event of the nine-race series. He picked up 15 points for finishing second behind Forbes-Robinson while Ingle managed only a six-place finish and six points.

Redwood Harriers Favored

There is a rumor that Redwood High School has the inside track to the Marin County Athletic League cross-country championship because coach Doug Basham is the only person who understands the new schedule.

Basham denies it. He admits, however, that he deserves to be favored because, "we have the best team we've ever had."

Those are horrifying words to the other MCAL coaches, since last year's team was about as good an aggregation as anybody cared to face. The Giants went undefeated at 6-0 and won the crown.

This year's team will consist of last year's team — older, stronger and (presumably) wiser. The top two runners, Jan-Eric Moller and Mike Killeen, return. Pete Sweeney, Ned Overend and Bryan Tracy also will be back. Don Elsener and Dave Brainerd will be contending for spots on the seven-man team, along with a top sophomore, Pete Demarais. The only graduate was number three man Mike Sweeney.

Considering this, it looks like a long year for the league's other six coaches, four of whom are new. Warren Fairbanks takes over for Gerry Kobil at Drake, Hugh Broiles for Dan Losee at Terra Linda, Bob Smith for Bob Patterson at Novato and Dave Dwight for Bill Ranney at San Rafael.

In addition to the coaches, the schedule will be new. Three teams will compete simultaneously, but the meet will be scored as if it were three dual meets. For example, tomorrow's opener at Redwood, with San Rafael and Novato visiting, will be scored as if it were Redwood vs. San Rafael, San Rafael vs. Novato, and Novato vs. Redwood.

This enables each team to meet each other team twice during the seven-meet league season. It also produces larger fields in each race, making for better competition.

This type of schedule is currently in use in the Alameda County Athletic League (ACAL) and elsewhere. Basham brought it to Marin, and one of his math students, Scott Setrakian, worked out the specifics last spring.

The league season opens tomorrow at 4 p.m. and will run through Nov. 1, to be followed by post-season meets. In addition to the meet at Redwood, Terra Linda and Drake will be at Tamalpais. San Marin draws a bye. Marin Catholic does not participate.

Tamalpais coach Krieg Vezie predicts he will have "a good team," but concedes it will be difficult to top Redwood. Junior Tony Hyun ("a little mountain goat," in Vezie's words) and seniors Bill Busby and Kian McCarthy will spearhead the team, Joey Biancalana having decided not to come out due to other academic commitments.

San Marin, which battled Redwood for the track and field title last spring, has only seven students out for cross-country. One of them, however, is star runner Gary Lathrop, whose neck-and-neck battles with Moller and Killeen are famous. Also bolstering coach Jim VanDerBeets' team is Dan Turek.

Novato "has good experience" in Smith's eyes, with five seniors on the 10-man team. Drake is just the opposite, with nine freshmen among the 14 runners.

Query To Perry On Spitball Use

CLEVELAND (UPI) — "You understand, Reverend," said alleged spitball pitcher Gaylord Perry. "I'd like to answer that but it would spoil the whole idea."

With some guile the Cleveland Indians righthander Monday sidestepped the point-blank question of George R. Plagenz, ordained clergyman, former sports writer and presently religion editor of the Cleveland Press: "Do you or don't you throw a spitball?"

Perry didn't admit, it, nor did he deny it.

"I'd like to answer that but it would spoil the whole idea," Perry said. "You understand, Reverend.

"The whole idea is to keep the opposing batters guessing 'does Perry throw a spitter or doesn't he.' If they don't know they won't be able to dig in at the plate. You can't knock 21 victories."

Fewer Workers, But More Cars

By JAMES WARGO
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

DETROIT, MICH. — A little-noted aspect of the 1973-model cars being unveiled is that while the auto industry expects to sell them in record numbers, there will be no commensurate increase in the number of workers employed to build them.

In some plants, as a matter of fact, fewer employees will be engaged in the assembly of more cars.

This runs counter to the initial predictions made when wage and price controls were begun in August, 1971. When President Nixon announced the wage-price freeze and successfully urged repeal of the 7 percent excise tax on cars, he spoke of two quick benefits: "Lower prices will mean that more people will be able to afford new cars, and every additional 100,000 cars sold means 25,000 new jobs."

A year later a presidential economic adviser admitted the calculation was hastily formulated and totally in error. The fact is that while automotive sales are soaring, the industry, in what it feels is required strategy, is working hard to keep new employment at a minimum, and, where possible, to reduce it.

As newsmen are being told repeatedly when they attend the introduction of 1973 models, retail sales of passenger cars and trucks in the model year just ending were the highest in the history of the auto industry —a total of 13.2 million vehicles. This exceeds the previous peak of 1969 by 13 per cent. And sales of 13.5 to 14 million units are predicted for the year just starting.

Although the program of wage and price controls may have been a major factor in this surge of auto sales, it is not serving to increase auto employment.

One reason is that long before Phase 1 was announced, the auto industry had a program of its own to keep a lid on the soaring cost of manufacturing cars by minimizing the steadily climbing cost of labor.

No such program can be introduced overnight. It is done one step at a time and one plant at a time.

One of the most significant examples was the General Motors Lordstown, Ohio, assembly plant. Automated welding equipment and other technical advances permitted production of the Vega subcompact at the rate of 100 an hour. This is a 40 percent increase in productivity over a normal plant, but it was achieved without any substantial increase in the hourly work force.

The techniques mastered at Lordstown appear this year in another GM division. Those Fisher Body plants producing the totally redesigned intermediate GM model for 1973 are equipped with the same automatic welding machines, and they make full use of something called modular construction that was developed at the Vega plant.

This involves building various areas of the body in sections, much like prefabricated houses and invariably with many fewer parts.

The inner and outer roof panel has greatly simplified construction and contains 75 percent fewer prts.

Seats on the new intermediate, instead of being two pieces welded on the assembly line, now come as one piece from a metal-fabricating plant. The compartment pan, once a number of small pieces welded on the line, now shows up at the plant as a single piece.

Fisher Body executives will not give the exact number of assembly workers needed on the new intermediate line. They admit it is fewer than on last year's line, but point out that some of the difference is absorbed by a larger work force needed in the plants making components.

Other car companies are attempting to keep the lid on employment but haven't been able to make use of automation to the same extent as GM. Employement, therefore, is slightly increasing.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Stock For Youthful Investor

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am 13 years old and interested in investing $500 in stocks. Later I hope to add more to this. I would like a stock to hold about 5 years and would appreciate your suggestions. — M.S.

A. Johnson Products (ASE), a comparatively young company, seems to be an appropriate choice for a youthful investor. Shares of this black-run company were first offered publicly in December, 1969, although the company was founded in 1954. A complete line of hair-care products designed for use by blacks, as well as a new line of cosmetics, are manufactured by Johnson.

Sales have moved ahead steadily since the mid-Sixties and earnings, until fiscal 1971, kept pace. Increased marketing and manufacturing costs, plus administrative expenses cut earnings to 90 cents a share from $1.00 in fiscal 1970. However, for the first nine months of fiscal 1972 (ended Aug.), earnings were ahead 43 per cent and sales were up 18 per cent. Full-year profit should approximate $1.25 a share. Future potential is enhanced by the anticipated introduction of more cosmetic lines, possible entry into African markets and expanded plant capacity.

Q. As a retired Sears, Roebuck (NYSE) employee, I have accumulated several hundred shares of Sears stock at an average cost of $25 a share. I am liable for capital gains tax of about $40 per share if I sell now. Eventually I will have to switch these shares for greater income. Should I sell half this year and half next year to spread the tax liability? — L.B.

A. Certainly, spreading your tax liability over two or more years is a sensible approach to your problem. However, I would strongly recommend that you consult a tax specialist prior to taking any action. With all the facts concerning your exact financial situation before him, a tax man could then give you expert guidance on the extent of the tax liability you would incur by seilling either part or all of your shares.

Prices Go Slightly Higher

NEW YORK (UPI)--Encouraged somewhat by favorable economic news, investors pushed stock prices slightly higher during the first two hours today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Advances outnumbered declines, 643 to 464, among the 1,532 issues crossing the tape. Two-hour turnover amounted to more than 5,380,000 shares.

Trading increased from Monday's slow pace when many investors were absent because of the Yom Kippur holy day. Aanlysts said investors were encouraged by the Federal Reserve Board's report that industrial production picked up sharply in August.

However, they noted much caution remains. Investors have been concerned about inflation and rieing interest rates.

American Medical International was the most active issue, off 7-8 at 42 3-4 on 204,100 shares, including a block of 199,900 shares at 42 1-2, off 1 1-8.

Prices were slightly higher also on the American Stock Exchange. Champion Home Builders was the most active AMEX issue, up 1-2 at 17 1-4 on 47,900 shares.

BUSINESS ROUNDUP

The Season For Bank Promotions

LOUIS STEINBERG
Office Manager

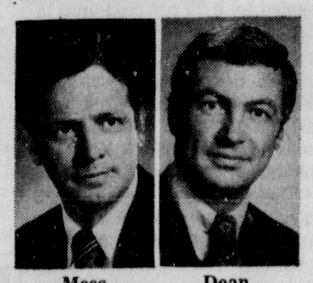
This seems to be the season for bank promotions.

Louis G. Steinberg has been appointed manager of the Point Reyes Station office of Bank of America.

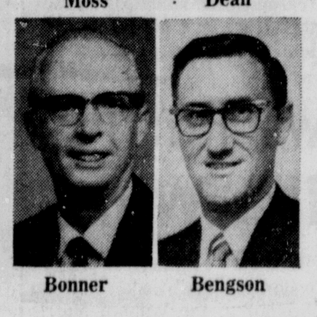
Steinberg succeeds Robert Vilas, who was advanced to personnel administration in the banking chain's San Francisco headquarters. The new manager has been head of the consumer installment lending department of B. of A.'s Henderson Center office in Eureka.

A native of Long Beach, Steinberg joined Bank of America in Sacramento in 1968 following graduation from Sonoma State College. He also worked at the Chico main office before being transferred to Eureka just under two years ago. His wife is the former Julia Novacek of Richmond.

Two Marinites have been promoted by United California Bank in San Francisco.



Moss · Dean



Bonner · Bengson

McKenzie Moss II of Kentfield, a vice president of UCB, has been named manager of the San Francisco main office at 405 Montgomery Street. He had been in the bank's national division.

Moving into the national division is David C. Dean of San Anselmo, an assistant vice president, formerly in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara offices.

Crocker Bank has named Frank F. Bonner of Novato assistant vice president and manager of its Valencia-Mission office in San Francisco. Bonner had been on special assignment.

James J. Bengson has been named assistant vice president of Crocker Bank's San Rafael main office, moving from a similar position at its South San Francisco office.

Two Marinites have been transferred by Wells Fargo Bank.

Richard O. Olsson of Tiburon, formerly assistant manager of Wells Fargo's West Portal office in San Francisco, has been named assistant manager of its Marina office in the same city.

Susan H. Flint of Novato, who has been assistant manager of the Northgate office in San Rafael, has been appointed assistant manager of Wells Fargo's Mill Valley office.

Another of those until-Christmas-only businesses will open Saturday at Interior Fashions, 1022 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur.

It is called the Patchwork, because it will feature handcrafted items, many of them from the "patchwork period" around the turn of the century. Operators are three experienced interior decorators and longtime Marinites, Pat Gustafson and Anita Stone of Greenbrae and Sandy McKenney of Kentfield.

Items on sale will include place mats, table centerpieces, pillows, afghans, etc., along with holiday items in season. Many of them are handcrafted by the owners themselves.

The shop will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, and will have an open house observance on its initial opening Saturday.

Former Astronaut Is Named To Post

DENVER — Rocky Mountain Airways (OTC) announced Monday Walter M. Schirra Jr. was appointed to the board of directors of Rocky Mountain Airways to fill one of two vacancies.

Schirra, best known as the command pilot of the Apollo VII space project, is president of Regency Investors Inc., Denver, a major financial complex leasing industrial equipment to enterprises throughout the world.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance
	Prorated on Miles Driven
40,000 miles	$13.00
45 month	10.00
40 month	8.00
39 month	6.00
36 month	5.00
33 month	4.00
30 month	3.00
24 month	2.00
18 month

Tread Wear Expectancy offer does not apply to tires used commercially.
